GTC kicks off new year with little action

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

The General Tribal Council (GTC) kicked off a new year with an agenda full of items linked to the past during the 2012 Annual Meeting.

The GTC approved the 2011 Comprehensive Annual Financial Audit Report after a detailed presentation by auditing firm McGlandrey & Pullen. No significant findings were discovered and the firm applauded the tribe's ability to mitigate challenges the economic downturn created during 2011.

Approval was then granted for the Treasurer's annual report for fiscal year 2011. The comprehensive financial report revealed an $8.3 million difference between the amounts spent verses budgeted.

New Business

A motion to adopt by-laws for the Trust/Enrollment Committee was not accepted as they were deferred back to the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC) after multiple concerns were expressed. The by-laws are expected to be brought back before the GTC during the July semi-annual meeting.

Vice-Chairman Greg Matson provided an update regarding the tribe's restructuring. According to Matson, efforts will continue to gather input from employees and community members before a finalized plan is presented to GTC. The Vice-Chairman's report was accepted.

Tabled Business

Three of the items listed as tabled business were pulled from the table and then deferred to future GTC meetings while the petition regarding judge qualifications was deleted.

The Judiciary Law was deferred back to the LOC for clarification with streamlined language that included law school training for all potential judge candidates. It is expected back before the GTC in July of this year.

Qualifications were heavily debated as some preferred more education and experience credentials while others felt those requirements would seriously limit the pool of available candidates.

The Personnel Policy and Procedure Amendment to Vacation and Personal Day accumulation was deferred to the next available GTC meeting due to clarification and finalization. The Legislative Procedures Act and Administrative Procedures Act item was also deferred to the next available meeting for completion.

Oneida infant among first to arrive in 2012

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

With a New Year come new beginnings for many people, especially when your newborn baby arrives minutes after the New Year. Oneida families have a habit of being among the first to deliver a newborn in a given year and 2012 is no exception.

Layeesha Donna-Mauricea Wilson made her way into the world on January 1, 2012 and just missed being the first baby born in the new year. She was born at Aurora Hospital; Layeesha was 7 pounds 15 ounces and 21 inches tall.

Layeesha's parents, Michelle Miller and Eluster Wilson, welcomed their new daughter with open arms and initially never thought they would be in this situation.

"Well she wasn't the first baby born in the New Year but they said, and as far as I know, she was the first Oneida baby born in the New Year. She is my sixth child and all my other children were close to two months early, so she is our only full-term baby. Her due date was January 18th so we were expecting to deliver in November. So we didn't know when she was coming," Miller said.

However as the birthing contractions began the couple began to suspect that Layeesha just might be a new years baby.

"We thought that because when I actually started having contractions they came so fast and all our other children came within an hour after contractions started. My contractions started at around eleven o'clock on New Years Eve. So I thought we would have a chance of being the very first," Miller said.

Layeesha Donna-Mauricea Wilson arrived moments after the new year, making her the first Oneida baby born in 2012.

Both mother and daughter are healthy and that is most important.

Grants help pay for energy improvements

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida is using federal stimulus grants to help save on energy costs for itself and its citizens. According to Project Manager Chad Wilson the Oneida Environmental Resources Board (ERB) was awarded a total of $324,700 in an energy efficiency block grant.

"Finally, Indian tribes are allowed to apply for these grants. Otherwise, before it was municipalities," he said.

The grant will be used for three programs; home performance test rebates for Oneida tribal citizens, energy efficiency upgrades to tribal buildings, and helping to pay for a solar hot water system for the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC) currently under construction.

Under the first program, if an Oneida tribal citizen gets a $350 home performance test from Wisconsin Focus on Energy, he/she could get a $100 rebate from the grant.

"They will get a sheet of 'here are your upgrades that you need to make.' For instance, let's say it's a hot water heater, and if they do the hot water heater that Wisconsin Focus on Energy says, they'll get a $250 rebate back from Wisconsin Focus on Energy and with this grant, we're able to give another $250 to match it," said Wilson. There's $10,000 of the grant dedicated to home performance test rebates.

"Hurry up and get them in!" Wilson urged. The rebate is available to Oneida tribal citizens living either on or off the reservation.

The bulk of the grant - $247,350 - will be used to purchase equipment, pay for energy efficiency upgrades to tribal buildings and to help pay the salary for a master electrician. The Oneida Department of Public Works (DPW) have been upgrading the lighting in the Oneida Fitness Center, Oneida Nation School System and Oneida Social Services building to lower wattage lamps and bulbs. Oneida has also received an Energy Efficiency Deployment grant of $227,100 to do energy audits on 44 tribal buildings.

"DPW's switching out the lighting, doing those easy projects first that we know and then after we get back this energy audit, that's when we'll be focusing primarily on spending down the grant money on those energy efficiency upgrades," said Wilson.

Dealing with another type of energy, the Oneida Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP) was able to use grant funds to purchase exercise equipment for the Oneida Family Fitness Center and pay for new flooring in one of the aerobics room, as well as upgrade the sound system throughout the center.

"Not only are we saving energy, we're making healthy bodies as well," said Wilson.

DPP Director Tina Jacobsen stated the grant also made child care available on Mondays and Wednesday from 5:00pm-8:00pm.

"We're reducing or eliminating barriers to exercise," she said.

The ORCCC will receive $67,350 towards the construction of a solar hot water system, which Wilson anticipates will create a big energy savings for the future elderly care center.

"Those types of facilities are known for using a lot of water," he said.

By using the stimulus funds now to create energy efficiency improvements, the ERB hopes to save Oneida money in the future.

"Environmental Health and Safety is also going to be working on an energy management plan because its projected that energy costs are only going to rise over the next 10 years, so if we can kind of stay where we're at by doing these upgrades, we'll be saving money in the long run," said Wilson. "Not only is the price increase going to affect organizations and governments, it's going to affect a home owner as well. So we really encourage people to use the home performance test rebate program and the Wisconsin Focus on Energy Rebate program right now."

Sainthood next year for two from NY's Mohawk Valley

By Chris Carola
Associated Press

FONDA, N.Y. – No one making a religious pilgrimage to Catholic shrines in this scenic yet hardscrabble stretch of New York's Mohawk Valley is going to mistake it for Italy. Yet starting next year, the region can boast of being the home of two of the Roman Catholic Church's newest saints.

The Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha, a Mohawk Indian, spent most of her life here during the 17th century. About 200 years later and 40 miles to the west, the Blessed Mother Marianne Cope began a religious life that focused on providing medical care in central New York and the Hawaiian islands.

On Dec. 20, Pope Benedict XVI certified miracles attributed to the two women, the final step toward sainthood. The women's canonization is expected to happen this year.

When they are elevated to sainthood, they'll be among just 12 of the Catholic Church's thousands of saints who either were born in America or ministered in what is now the United States.

Elevation to sainthood for Blessed Kateri, a first for a Native American, is expected to boost visits to a pair of local shrines linked to her life. The National Shrine of the Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha in Fonda and the National Shrine of the North American Martyrs in nearby Auriesville are located amid the hilly terrain and faded industrial towns along the Mohawk River Valley that stretches from the Albany area to Utica.

Both shrines had already closed for the winter when word came out of the Vatican that the pope had affirmed the women for canonization. Officials at both sites say they expect bigger crowds next year as a result.

"We've been praying for this for a long time, years and years and years," said Friar Mark Steed, the Kateri shrine's director. "It will mean a bit of work in terms of how we can promote it, how we can present the shrine in a better light."

Spread over 200-plus acres of sloping ground on the river's north bank, the property contains the archaeological site of the Mohawk village where Kateri spent her youth and where she was baptized by French Jesuit missionaries in 1676. The shrine's centerpiece is a 230-year-old barn that doubles as a rustic chapel and museum. Images of Kateri's life decorate the rough-hewn wooden crossbeams in the upstairs chapel where American and Iroquois flags hang side by side.

Blessed Kateri's sainthood could be a big step toward helping to heal centuries of conflict between whites and Native Americans, Friar Mark said.

"That may be her spiritual gift to all of us," he said.

Just downriver on the south bank, officials at the shrine of the North American Martyrs say they're also expecting to see an increase in the tens of thousands of visitors who make pilgrimages each year, some from as far away as Europe and Asia.

Kateri was born in the Mohawk village that sat atop the hill where the Auriesville shrine was founded by the Jesuit order in the late 19th century. A decade before Kateri's birth, Father Isaac Jogues and two fellow Frenchmen were killed in the village by the Mohawks. All three were canonized in 1930, along with five other Jesuit missionaries martyred in Canada in the 1600s.

The Auriesville shrine features a coliseum church that can hold about 10,000 worshippers and a separate chapel dedicated to Kateri, the daughter of an Algonquin mother and Mohawk father. Her parents died of smallpox when she was 4, and the disease left Kateri badly scarred and nearly blind. Later, after enduring scorn from other Mohawks because of her Christian beliefs, she fled to a Jesuit mission near Montreal.

Known for tending to the sick and elderly, Kateri fell ill and died at 24. Her remains are entombed in a marble shrine at St. Francis Xavier Church in Kahnawake, Quebec. Dubbed "the Lily of the Mohawks," her story of devotion and kindness is familiar to many Auriesville visitors, said Beth Lynch, the shrine's event coordinator and museum manger.

Mother Marianne Cope's roots in the Mohawk Valley began in Utica, where her family settled in 1840 after emigrating from Germany the previous year, when she was a year old. A factory worker until she joined the Franciscan sisters in Syracuse in the early 1860s, the young nun worked as a nurse and hospital administrator, helping to found two hospitals - St. Joseph's in Syracuse and St. Elizabeth's in Utica - that are still in operation today. Under her direction, no one was denied medical care, according to Sister Patricia Burkard, general minister of the Syracuse-based Sisters of St. Francis of the Neumann Communities.

"Her policy is very much like the Patients' Bill of Rights today," Sister Patricia said.

In the 1880s, Mother Marianne answered a plea from Hawaii for help providing care for leprosy patients at a settlement on Molokai island run by Father Damien, who gained sainthood in 2009. She died of natural causes at the settlement in 1918 and was buried there. In 2005, her remains were brought to Syracuse, where they're in a reliquary located in the chapel at the St. Anthony Convent, which is also home to a Mother Marianne museum.

• See 11, Sainthood

"This is one of the most marvelous things that has happened to the Native Americans in this country and Canada. For the Roman Catholic Church to finally acknowledge that there is someone of great value. That her canonization is an acknowledgement not only of her sanctity and of the faith that many Native Americans have, but it is an acknowledgement of the spiritual depth of all Native Americans. In other words Hoorah! It is about time.

Here at Holy Apostles we've had statues of Kateri Tekakwitha, in our sanctuary and just outside of the church, as far as I can tell almost since the creation of this church. Even the postcard we send out is a statue of her in the sanctuary surrounded by flowers. She really was an evangelist to the Native Americans, she is certainly known throughout the Oneida community as well as all of the Iroquois."

The Oneida Rental Energy Efficiency Program (OREEP)

By Dale "Frissell" Hill
Oneida Housing Authority Project Manager

History

The OREEP program exists as a result of a $3M competitive grant awarded in August of 2009, which was part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act signed into law by President Obama. The grant was awarded specifically to perform energy efficiency measures, with a three year deadline. Several other tribes were awarded the same grant, including the Menominee Tribe of Wisconsin. To date, Oneida is the only tribal entity that has not yet exhausted its $3M grant. There are several reasons for this; the main reason being we did not hire an outside (non-tribal) contractor to complete this project. In that scenario, 40-66% of the budget would be expended on payroll and the remainder would go to materials and supplies. In my experience in the construction industry this is a standard model (2/3-Labor, 1/3-Materials).

I did not want to see $2M (2/3 of $3,000,000) leave our reservation boundaries and benefit those who do not live here. I envisioned completing the project with tribal members through an On the Job Training program. Further, I wanted to see young people who otherwise would not find an employment opportunity perform the job. It was difficult to get the project started under the conditions that I proposed. At that time, the Oneida Nation had adopted cost containment measures and a hiring freeze, so filling the Project Manager position (my job) took Oneida Housing Authority several valuable months to complete. As I stated before, Oneida was awarded the grant in August of 2009, I was hired in January of 2010. I developed the general project plan over the first three months, and after great tribulation, hired my first eight employees on April 11, 2010. I also contracted a tribal member with construction experience to assist in training the staff. The plan that I developed seemed simple: use skilled, experienced tribal members (including myself) to train at-risk young tribal members. The skills I want to share with our young people are: discipline, self-reliance, team work, pride, reliability, and three years of solid work experience in a caring training environment. Honestly, the experience gained in construction is incidental; I did not intend to create six new construction workers every three years, rather as many well rounded young people as possible.

The training should be hard, and trainees will be held accountable. They must learn to be responsible. If we agree they are here because I want them to succeed, then they will accept discipline.

Purpose

So the revised purpose of our grant is instead, "The Oneida Rental Energy Efficiency Program" will train young, at risk tribal members regardless of education or experience, in the area of residential energy efficiency. This training will take place on the homes of low-moderate income tribal families. Trainees will gain experience in framing, flooring, tile, window installation, finish work, plumbing, electrical, metal roofing, mold abatement/mitigation, ventilation, and energy efficiency measures. The energy efficiency measures are described as: each trainee is required to attend training to further his/her technical education; this is not negotiable. Each trainee will be CPR/First Aid Certified, pass the OSHA-10 hour job site safety course, be certified in Fall Protection, Lead Safe Worker, Phase-1 Assessment, Certified Air Sealing Tech, and experienced remodelers."

I also insisted that we rehabilitate homes using a sustainable design process. I wanted to use as many local vendors, materials, and tribal resources as possible. This can be a difficult endeavor but with research and effort we continually make improvements and eliminate outside interests.

When I say tribal resources I am referring to other tribes, including our own. A friend shared this value with me and encouraged me to continue to try and restore the Nation to Nation economy. We can enjoy value in purchasing all of our lumber from Menominee Tribal Enterprises because this activity supports both our Nations' needs. There is value in sharing ideas and working with LCO, Ho Chunk, and other tribes because we can eliminate the need for outside interests in our tribes, even if that commerce is knowledge. These actions usually start small with hand shake agreements and build in endearing trust and loyalty over time.

Status

We have completed approximately 54 remodels in 20 months (since April 11, 2011). Based on community response, our young staff has done an excellent job. There is a lot of work to be completed before the program will be complete but we are up to the task.

The Future

If it were up to me, we would continue this training model; or expand it into a Workforce Development, or Vocational Rehabilitation Program. I believe every dollar spent providing training and experience to young people and those that live in low income housing will return to our people tenfold. If it were up to me, not a single residential contract would be offered outside of the tribe. There is not a shortage of skilled Oneida trade workers; there is a shortage of opportunity.

If training programs like mine end, then I caution everyone who will listen to build more low-income housing. If we don't find opportunities for those who need it most, then we need to increase our social services budgets. I am a true believer in investing in ourselves and this means investing in our young people through education, training, and experience.

Finally, I don't know what the future holds for these young men nearing the end of the training program. The economy is in recession, and the housing market has bottomed out. But out of chaos comes clarity; one of the fastest growing industries is Energy Management, Energy Efficient Rehabilitation, and Sustainable Design/ Rehabilitation. And we are lucky to have a group of young men who are highly skilled, trained, and experienced in this field right here in Oneida! Their future may be as trainers for new trainees, remodeling homes at unbeatable prices and providing energy efficiency services. The revenue from this work could be used to fund more trainees; a self-sustaining training program. Or they may be the first hires for the many development projects that OHA is planning.

One thing is for sure. I have invested a lot of time and energy into their futures but I need help from everyone to finish the job. It takes an entire village to raise a child.

Wisconsin Election Laws: Photo ID and Other Recent Changes

Beginning in 2012, you cannot receive a ballot until you have met ID requirements. (See the "Photo ID Exemptions and Exception" section.) Wisconsin does not issue a separate "Voter ID" card. Instead you must use one of the photo IDs listed below.

Your photo ID does not need to show a current address.

Acceptable forms of Photo ID

- Wisconsin driver license*
- Wisconsin DOT-issued photo ID card*
- U.S. passport*
- Military ID card*

*The above documents may not have expired earlier than the date of the last November election.

- Certificate of naturalization issued within last two years
- Unexpired Wisconsin driver license or state ID receipt
- ID card issued by a federally recognized Indian tribe in Wisconsin.
- Unexpired ID issued by a Wisconsin accredited university or college that contains an issuance date, student signature, and expiration date within two years of issuance, along with a separate document showing proof of current enrollment.

If you are eligible to vote but do not have an acceptable ID, you may obtain a free ID for purposes of voting. Please visit http://gab.wi.gov and click "Voter Photo ID" for more information.

Photo ID is not required for these absentee voters:

- Military electors
- Voters who are permanently abroad
- Confidential electors

Photo ID is not required, but is replaced with alternative requirements for these absentee voters:

- Indefinitely confined voters
- Nursing home and other care facility residents who have ballots delivered by a Special Voting Deputy
- Residents of care facilities who are not visited by a Special Voting Deputy

For further information contact your municipal clerk.

Provisional Ballots: Voters who do not provide Photo ID

Voters, including absentees, who are required but unable to provide photo ID may vote by provisional ballot. Provisional ballots are not counted unless the voter provides an acceptable photo ID to the municipal clerk by 4 p.m. the Friday after the election.

Changes to Absentee Voting

Absentee in the Clerk's Office

Absentee voting in the clerk's office is now restricted to the two weeks before an election. Absentee voting now ends at the close of business the Friday before the election.

The new law prohibits absentee voting and voter registration the Saturday, Sunday or Monday before an election.

Beginning in 2012, absentee voters in the clerk's office must present the same type of photo ID required at the polls (see list on the left).

Absentee Requests by Mail

Beginning in 2012, absentee requests for ballots sent by mail must be accompanied by a photocopy of an acceptable form of voter ID (see list on the left).

Once you have sent the clerk's office a photocopy of your ID, you will not need to send photocopies with future absentee ballot requests by mail, fax or email unless you change your name or address.

Absentee Requests by Email/Fax

If submitting an absentee request via fax or email, you must either include a photocopy of acceptable ID with your request or in your absentee ballot envelope.

Signing the Poll Book

Voters must sign the poll book to obtain a ballot. The poll book now contains a signature block for each voter. Only one poll book needs to be signed.

Voters unable to sign the poll book because of a physical disability are exempt from this requirement. If this applies to you, tell the election officials that you are unable to sign because of a disability. Election officials will write "exempt" in your signature block.

Hospitalized Voters

Hospitalized voters may appoint an agent to pick up their ballot from the clerk's office. The agent must present the hospitalized voter's photo ID to the clerk's office.

Voter Registration Changes

You can register to vote up until the Friday before the election or on Election Day. You must reside at your address for 28 consecutive days to be eligible to vote, and you may no longer use a corroborating witness as proof of residence. Proof of residence is required when registering less than 20 days before an election, on Election Day, and for first time Wisconsin voters registering by mail. For more information on acceptable proof of residence documents contact your local municipal clerk.

OBC Forum...

A New Year filled with New Potential!

As we begin a new year, I start with the premise that we all generally have something to be thankful for. If you're working, alive and reading this, you presumably have that to be thankful for. If you are unemployed and you need a helping hand, hopefully this will be the year that hand is extended to you.

As we move into this New Year, my office is working hard to make sure the government can create new opportunities for the Oneida people. I am doing all I can to make sure we lend a helping hand to the Oneida people. An example of this effort is housed in this article under my per-capita tab.

Now, this time of year always inspires me because there is always something refreshing about the start of a new year. The opportunities that a new year offers to the people are encouraging, whether it's here in Oneida or far away.

Likewise, New Year's resolutions are popular as people try hard to forge a new course. New Year's resolutions may not always be realized, but it is simply the idea of taking a new path that leads us to try to be better or to try something new. The most important part of all of this is getting out there and trying something new. Sometimes the New Year all boils down to giving life a new refreshing try. That is the part I like most, giving life a refreshing try and a new outlook that the turning of a new year offers, it ushers in a general feeling of hope; it's a clean slate.

The more opportunities we take, the more chances we have to do things right, this can only mean better things for us as a people. It really is the continual attempt to do things right that moves us towards being better. So it doesn't matter if you don't succeed at first, it is the idea of trying that counts.

I'd like to think as this New Year begins, that we can cast aside all that plagued or bother us about the year before. For Oneida, it is constant governing challenges that are not always so easy to cast aside, but we must believe that we can work through these challenges. I see us being able to navigate these choppy waters, I see us steering clear of hazards and making good decisions, we can do this.

We must believe that the lives of Oneida people can be better if we can learn to govern smarter and to do things more intelligently! I believe we can achieve all that we desire if the effort is put forth. One of the bright spots for us, hopefully, will be the creation of new and invigorating housing opportunities this year. I am firmly committed to seeing us achieve some new housing opportunities on behalf of the Oneida people. Sadly, we have hundreds of homeless and/or displaced people. So this is a good thing as we move forward, a chance for us to all do the right thing(s) for our people.

In this New Year the challenge will be creating organizational efficiencies while offering an expansion of services. We must start re-tooling built in cost factors so we can create new opportunities moving forward. We will undoubtedly have difficult decisions to make but my hopes and my spirit is with the people. Any nation of good people can prevail against the forces who desire no change or reform. The desire to pursue a course for the betterment of our people cannot be stopped if the Oneida want better lives, we control our own destiny!

Bringing Back Important Program Activity:

Over the last few years as services and programmatic activity have been chocked out and eliminated, we have shed good and meaningful programs. I want to see some of these programs restored, here are just a few programs that I'd like to see restored:

Honor The Elder – The Honor the Elder event was an important gathering which I helped create to honor our elders, but unfortunately over the last few years the event was eliminated. I am proposing that we bring this event back so we can continue on with the honorable tradition of recognizing our elders as they have contributed so much to our tribe.

Small Business Funding – We need to see if we can offer assistance to tribal members who have small business ideas. Over the last few years, small business funding opportunities have dwindled down which is unfortunate because we really should be focusing on fostering some small business growth here on the Reservation.

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

Housing – Housing Options for the Homeless – We need to provide some level of housing here in Oneida for those that need assistance. I have heard from some staff expressing frustration that we have no homeless housing options. I hope we can make this happen soon.

Here is a short list of other programs and programmatic activity which should be reconsidered for funding: Breakfast with the Bunny, asthma services, field trips for our children, further and more comprehensive wage increases, and elder driveway and garage programs.

PER-CAPITA

Following is a proposal I am offering as we begin to have an open dialogue regarding per-capita. As you may be aware, we have to get a new per-capita plan in place this year, so here is my office's first offering around per-capita. I'd like to know what you think, please send me some feedback.

I view any new per-capita plan as a wealth redistribution plan, meaning, ideally more money should land in the hands of the Oneida people, while also creating more opportunities for the people, it's a simple premise. The construct of what I am offering here does just that.

I truly believe this plan will more prominently benefit tribal members because the plan does more and ensures that future generations will have a stronger financial future. The idea is to do more with fewer resources.

In working the numbers, I have found there is a considerable savings opportunity for the tribe. Moreover, per-capita distributions, as laid out below in my plan, reflects a proposed annual distribution of $15,117,403. The actual FY2012 annual per-capita and stipend budget cost this year alone is $25,932,800. Under my proposal we can realize a savings of $10,815,397 annually.

NOTE: "How to utilize the savings": I would note, ultimately, we should easily be able to direct 65% (or $7,030,008) of these savings towards new housing development for the Oneida people. This will be a unique way to help tribal members in a historically deficient area, housing. For the first time in our history, we could be putting direct tribal contributions towards new housing – meaning that the money saved through this new per-capita plan (65%) could be earmarked specifically for new housing development for the Oneida tribal members. The remaining 35% or $3,785,389 worth of savings can be utilized to help balance the budget and pay down our debt with Bank of America.

Here is an overview of my proposed per-capita distribution plan, if you have any questions on this particular plan or the housing plan I am working on, please feel free to email me at: Oneida2011@yahoo.com

Phase I - Minors Interest – "A shift in thinking"

The tribe will contribute $1,000 annually to a Guaranteed Universal Life (GUL) policy for each minor under the age of 18. The premium will be paid for 5 years and the policy would be paid for upon completion of the 5 annual payments and once the minor reaches the age of 18 years old. There are approximately 3,454 members under the age of 18 which accounts for nearly 21% of the tribal population. The annual cost for Phase I is $3,454,000. This plan has some very unique added benefits such as a wealth build scenario that can occur if the money is left to grow until later retirement years.

Total Phase I Expense: $3,454,000.00

Phase II - Meeting Attendance – "Earning what you get"

A tribal member devised this plan section which may be a cost effective way of dealing with both per-capita and meeting costs. Each tribal member attending up to six GTC meetings will receive $350 per meeting they attend for up to $2,100 per fiscal year; that would be the new per-capita matrix. With an estimated 2,400 members attending each meeting the tribe will pay out approximately $840,000 per meeting, with a fiscal year cost of $5,040,000 million. These meeting attendance payments would replace the single per-capita payment and the GTC stipend payment for these six designated meetings.

Total Phase II Expense: $5,040,000

Phase III – Elders – "Maintaining and enhancing"

I am proposing that those tribal members age 62 and older continue to receive the current $1,200 in addition to the Phase II $2,100 meeting attendance payments. In this manner elders will continue to receive the per-capita payments they are accustomed to. Under my plan, elders will receive more money simply by attending a few meetings. Individually, elders could receive the following amounts if they attend 6 meetings annually: See Graph 1 below

Fiscal year estimated cost for Phase III (excluding Phase II Meeting Attendance payment) is:

- 62 – 64: $3,200.00 x 447 members = $1,430,400
- 65+: $ 3,838.14 x 1,353 members = $5,193,003

Total Phase III Expense: $6,623,403

In summary below is a recap of my per capita plan proposal:

- Phase I: $3,454,000
- Phase II: $5,040,000
- Phase III: $6,623,403

Total Per-Capita Proposal: $15,117,403 (My Proposal)

- Minus Current Budget for Per Capita & GTC stipends: $25,932,800 (Current Cost)

Potential Savings: $10,815,397 (Savings)

In summary, this plan puts more money in the hands of the Oneida people, while also creating more opportunities for the Oneida people.

Graph 1

| Age | Per Capita Base | 62+ Per Capita | 65+ Per Capita | Phase II Meeting Attendance | Total Yearly Payment Potential Per Elder |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 62-64 | +$1,200.00 | +$2,000.00 | - | +2,100.00 | =$5,300.00 |
| 65+ | +$1,200.00 | +$2,000.00 | +$638.14 | +2,100.00 | =$5,938.14 |

Upcoming Events / Sessions:

This coming year, I will be actively pursuing innovative ways to reach out to tribal members. I will continue to hold listening sessions and briefings here in Oneida and in Milwaukee but am also looking forward to holding on-line sessions. Tentatively, I plan on having on-line discussions with members, rain or shine, on the first Wednesday of each month at 6pm. I am looking forward to reaching out to as many members as I can in order to talk tribal policy. To start, I will be holding a chat via Gmail, to join my chat search the following email address in Gmail: councilmandelarosa@gmail.com. In the near future, I will be expanding to video chats.

As a reminder, I encourage you to join my email list. Through my email list I will send out updates and other forms of policy information along with other unique opportunities which my office will offer to the Oneida people. Thank you for your time, and as always, if you need any assistance, or are interested in any released memos, reports, additional plan information or would like to join my email list, please feel free to contact my office at 920-869-4426 or through my personal email at Oneida2011@yahoo.com.

Letters & Opinions...

What Have We Become?

Did you ever wake up wondering where you are, who you are? I had been to the Appeals Commission the day before for a PRE-TRIAL Hearing/Meeting and this was not a dream this was a night mare and I was in shock.

I realized that acculturation and assimilation has definitely made its mark in our Oneida Tribe. "WHAT HAVE WE BECOME." Where is our Oneida Culture, Heritage and our Sovereignty? Is this something we wear on our sleeve once a year at the Powwow, put on our regalia, dance around, share our food, and crafts and kind acts of our Tribal members and the rest of the time act like the greater Anglo Societies?

I was to experience the procedure called the Trial Court. What I expected was a forum for a hearing/meeting as spelled out in the Judicial Code so each side could voice their concerns as it pertained to the facts of the matter regarding "Elected Officials versus Employees" and "Pay Back for Cash". The request was placed by the Appeals Commission and scheduled in "TRIAL COURT". WHY? The only issue on trial was the a flaw in the Tribal HRD Procedures.

We were invited into the court room (come into my room said the spider to the fly); the Hearing Body showed up in black robes, the stenographer said; "ALL RISE". I think this was the initial onset of shock. The Black Robe and White Powdered wigs are English. When the Revolution ended, the Black Robes stuck in society (including ours).

A HEARING, but no one was listening. I was represented by an Advocate, I wasn't allowed to speak. So much for Hearing.

The Oneida way was to discuss an issue then come to some type of agreement/consensus? Used to have Talking Circles, NOW we talk in circles. This SYSTEM is set up as a win/ lose, but no one wins.. WHY NOW? So we can compete for status with the outside world?

There are many Tribal Members that are educated Attorneys. I understood the Attorneys were to represent the Tribe against outside forces. WRONG. Not each other... Internal entities of the Tribe are fully represented by these Attorneys and entities are at odds each other. Considering all the Attorney's that have received their Law Degree, there would be plenty that are qualified to serve in a Tribal Justice System as real Oneida Tribal Judges.

General Tribal Members, take a good hard look at our SYSTEMS.....(1) Government, (2) Judicial, (3) Administration and the current relationship they have one with the other. This definitely does not fit our Oneida heritage, culture or our sovereignly. Is this where we should be? A Justice System must be JUST that; JUST and Civil Servants should be CIVIL.

Do we have a Tribal Court? Should we have a Tribal Court? YOU BE THE JUDGE.

(Mathew 7: 1- Judge not, that ye be not judged.)

Respectfully Submitted,
Shirley Hill

Che-Cho-Ter (Morning Dew)

They don't sing about your beauty along Tamiami's Trail, pretty Che-cho-ter of the Seminole Miccosukee;

Before pageants and fashion shows, you were Flor'da's first Southern belle,

While you stood or weaved beside the earthy chickee;

In colorful dress befitting a rainbow in the sky,

When you danced the Green Corn Dance in the Everglades,

Or rowed a draft-canoe under an orange sun's eye,

You were the first "Miss America" before that crown was made.

Delia, warriors I'll risk death just to win half of your heart,

Your beautiful figure still puts me in a sweet trance,

Your face expresses the beauty of all Earth-women from the gods,

You'd do justice to any beauty contest, royal throne or dance;

Oh, they'll never make you a magazine's centerfold,

Though your body's like a natural-born goddess on Earth;

But you're my covergirl, pin-up and "Miss Universe" in one roll,

And I swear against modeling agents who never saw you first.

Your lips are more enchanting than those of Mona Lisa's fame,

A princess by Apache heritage you're worthy of a lover's song;

I marvel at your cosmetic beauty with passionate eyes aflame,

Dorothy; your rich hair that's black, wavy and long!

Who shouldn't want to kiss the finest set of cheekbones

I've seen North, South, East or West or any latitude;

If Hollywood dames saw you, they's prob'ly go out and get stoned,

Then men'll paint your beauty in the Dragoon Mountains' solitude.

What can I say about you Eva-Sun-Goes-Slow,

Young woman of the Crows I eyed gatherin' chokecherries;

Your slim figure in panel belt moves constantly in my mind, and so,

I'd love to caress your refined black hair in a hurry;

But they'll be to T.V. cameras for you on the banks of Wind River, to catch your slender beauty in decorated sken dress;

That you'll never star in a movie, sometimes make me shiver;

Culture hero Old Man Coyote, too, must be mournin' against the West.

Wisconsin Farm Service Agency rules must be met

The Wisconsin Farm Service Agency (FSA) reminds producers and landowners that they are required to have a conservation system in place on all highly erodible land (HEL). Wetland compliance is also required.

Renting new cropland, purchasing new land, breaking up additional land, changing crops, and changing or removing existing conservation practices can result in compliance issues.

Participants are encouraged to contact their local FSA county office before taking any of the above actions.

In addition, it is important that producers and landowners contact FSA before modifying, tiling, draining, dredging, filling or leveling any wetland or drainage ditches. Failure to obtain advance approval for any of these activities can result in loss of all federal payments and program eligibility.

Producers or land owners who would like more information or have questions about HEL can contact their local FSA County Offices or visit www.fsa.usda.gov.

Notice of Availablity

Project Description:
The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is proposing to develop a One-Stop Gas Station and Convenience Store on a 2.5 acre site at 501 Packerland Drive. The project is proposed to alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts related to the 2012 closure of the Mason Street Bridge (part of WI DOT's State Highway 41 improvement). The site is a prime retail location based upon traffic flows in west Green Bay.

A draft environmental assessment (EA) has been prepared regarding the proposed action in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The draft EA contains project information, effected environment, project alternatives and consultation letters.

Comments were requested from the US Fish and Wildlife Service regarding possible impacts to threatened and endangered species, and from the Oneida Cultural Heritage Officer. No significant impacts to these resources are anticipated and recommendations from these sources will be followed.

Need for Project:
To help alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts resulting from closure of the Mason Street Bridge related to State Highway 41 improvement. Development will provide jobs, and it will make use of an existing property that is currently vacant.

Project Alternatives:
This site was chosen based on local traffic flows in west Green Bay. This site is currently vacant and is owned by the tribe. The no-action alternative would not address the potential loss of revenue and would not provide jobs in the local community.

Comments & Availability:
Interested parties can obtain copies of the draft EA from Oneida Environmental, Health & Safety Division at N7332 Water Circle Place, P.O. Box 365, Oneida WI. 543155.

Red Cliff Chippewa to open park to public

A Wisconsin tribe will become the first in the nation to open tribal land to the public, giving visitors a chance to enjoy nearly 89 acres of pristine forestland along the coast of Lake Superior.

The Red Cliff Chippewa are creating Frog Bay Tribal National Park, an area flush with towering trees _ hemlock, white pine, white spruce, balsam fir, yellow birch and white cedar. The park is expected to open in August.

The National Park Service says there are no other parks that are tribally owned or controlled by tribes that are open to the public, according to a Milwaukee Journal Sentinel report.

The tribe is obligated to open the land to the public since taxpayer money helped acquire it.

A Madison couple used to own the property. But David and Marjorie Johnson, who are in their 90s, decided to sell the parcel to the tribe for half its appraised value of $950,000, said Ellen Kwiatkowski, the executive director of local land trust Bayfield Regional Conservancy Inc

``They certainly could have held out for more money, but he was willing to sell it for half the value," she told The Associated Press. ``They wanted to see it in some form of conservation ownership so it would be protected."

To pay for the land, the tribe received a $488,000 grant from the federal Coastal and Estuarine Land Conservation Program, Kwiatkowski said. The money covers the land, closing costs and other expenses, with a little left over to pay for trail development and a sign.

One requirement for accepting money from the CELP program is that the land be open to the public, she told AP.

The parcel offers views of the Apostle Islands, as well as the opportunity to enjoy boreal forest. Once common, the forests were largely decimated by logging in the last century, leaving just a few remnants along Lake Superior and eastern Door County.

Visitors to the Red Cliff park will be able to hear the songs of nearly 90 species of birds. Other local inhabitants include bobcats, bears, deer, wolves and beaver.

Kwiatkowski said her conservancy is trying to balance two competing concerns on the land: giving people access to nature's beauty so they're more inclined to protect it, and minimizing the damage that visitors can cause to the sensitive regions.

To that end, the parking area will only have room for about a half-dozen cars, she said, and people will have to walk to the one-quarter mile stretch of sand beach. Trails will be comfortable but compact, and motor vehicles such as all-terrain vehicles and snowmobiles will be banned, she said.

Red Cliff and the Apostle Islands are considered the hub of Ojibwe culture. But the 14,000-acre reservation, established in 1863, was distributed in parcels to tribal members by 1896 and became fragmented as original members lost properties.

Today, the tribe and its members hold 8,000 acres within the reservation that stretches for 14 miles around the top of the Bayfield peninsula.

Red Cliff Chippewa traditionally fished and harvested wild rice from the bays, and gathered medicinal plants, nuts, berries and other plants from forests. That's why the tribal members appreciate the property being returned to Red Cliff ownership, Abel said.

``These shoreline areas were cherished by the tribe," he said.

Officials want Berlin High School mascot suit dismissed

BERLIN, Wis. (AP) ~ The state wants a lawsuit dismissed that challenges the constitutionality of a 2010 state law that allows the schools superintendent to ban American Indian mascots and logos.

The Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction ordered the Berlin School District to drop its Indians nickname and logo by Sept. 16, 2012, because its promotes stereotyping, discrimination and pupil harassment.

The state had received a complained from a district resident regarding the Berlin Indians' nickname.

The Berlin school district decided not to fight the state ruling, but a group of local citizens filed a lawsuit in October.

The state's motion, filed in Green Lake County Circuit Court Tuesday, claims a lawsuit should be brought by a school district, not individual taxpayers.

The motion was filed on behalf of the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, its Superintendent Tony Evers, and Paul Sherman, an education consultant with the DPI.

Sam Hall, an attorney from Milwaukee-based Crivello Carlson, S.C., is working for the Berlin group. His firm also represented two Mukwonago residents who challenged the state law because the state ordered that school district to drop its Indians nickname.

In that case, a judge ruled the state's effort was unconstitutional because an administrative hearing on the case was unfair. The judge also agreed that the law, as applied against Mukwonago, was unconstitutional because the decision maker, Sherman, had a high risk of bias. Sherman also made the ruling for Berlin.

Hall tells the Oshkosh Northwestern that he doesn't expect a dismissal.

"The Wisconsin attorney general's office filed the exact same motion in Waukesha County during the Mukwonago School District's fight to keep its Indian logo and nickname, and the motion was denied," Hall said.

New law imposes jobless benefits wait

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A new waiting period for unemployment benefits begins this week in Wisconsin.

The one-week waiting period before unemployed workers can begin collecting benefits is expected to save the state an estimated $45 million a year. More than three dozen other states have adopted a waiting period.

State lawmakers instituted the change as part of the 2011-2013 budget. The Wausau Daily Herald says anyone already collecting unemployment benefits will be subject to the one-week wait when their current 52-week benefit year ends.

Unemployed workers are eligible for 86 weeks of jobless benefits in Wisconsin. The maximum weekly benefit is $363.

From 3/Sainthood

Leaders of the Sisters of St. Francis say they expect an increase in visitors at the chapel and museum when Mother Marianne is canonized.

In 2004, Pope John Paul II declared Mother Marianne "venerable," the first step toward canonization after the Vatican recognized her intercession for the unexplained cure of a New York girl dying of multiple organ failure. The Vatican recommended her canonization in December after a second recovery was attributed to her intercession.

Kateri Tekakwitha was beatified in 1980 when John Paul II waived the first miracle typically required. Prayers to her are credited for the second Tekakwitha miracle: the recovery of 6-year-old Washington state boy who had a flesh-eating disease.

"We're considered quote, 'a young country,' compared to Italy, France and Germany," Sister Patricia said. "That we're seeing more saints named from the United States really means that the faith in our country is maturing to the point that we have people who have lived among us who have given us many examples of a good life."

US online gambling fight about when, who - not if

By Oskar Garcia
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS (AP) ~ The fight to fully legalize online gambling in the U.S. is now less about whether Americans will be able to play and more about who will bring the action to them - and when.

A recent U.S. Justice Department opinion opened the door for cash-strapped states and their lotteries to bring online gambling to their residents, as long as it does not involve sports betting.

The DOJ memo also enflamed a battle within the industry over how to legalize online gambling that once generated an estimated $6 billion yearly just from poker: Should each state have its own system, or should there be a nationwide law?

While the opinion sent gambling stocks rising, many players who've been shut out from top online poker sites since April just want games to restart and don't care who profits.

"I don't like this legal limbo. Is it legal, or is it illegal?" said writer Brian Boyko, who plays poker as a hobby.

Boyko of Austin, Texas, has been using a small offshore site since executives and others at PokerStars, Full Tilt Poker and Absolute Poker were accused of illegally getting banks to process gambling funds.

Most of the U.S. games disappeared after the indictments.

Online poker boomed in the U.S. over the last decade, but a 2006 law made it illegal to run most online gambling businesses by forbidding financial institutions from processing transactions related to illegal online gambling.

The law, however, didn't clearly specify what kinds of gambling were illegal.

Some forms of gambling, like fantasy sports and horse racing, got explicit carve-outs, while many poker games kept going online as some operators got differing legal opinions about whether the Wire Act of 1961 applied to them.

Since then, poker proponents have argued that the game is different from other casino games like blackjack or slots because it involves significantly more skill.

Even casino companies - which make far more money from luck-based games than poker - began pushing for poker-only legislation under the assumption that poker regulations would be easier for lawmakers to stomach than other games.

Meanwhile, New York and Illinois officials asked the DOJ in 2010 whether the Wire Act or the 2006 law prevented them from selling lottery tickets online to adults within their states.

Last week, the DOJ answered: The Wire Act only prevents players from wagering on sports outcomes - other bets are OK.

The commercial casino industry's top lobbying group in Washington, D.C., believes the DOJ's interpretation of the Wire Act was correct, but added more confusion than solutions.

"There's probably some staffers at work on (Capitol Hill) now taking a real hard look at this as they figure to bring some sanity," said Frank Fahrenkopf, chief executive of the American Gaming Association.

Fahrenkopf said his group will keep pushing Congress for online poker legislation that establishes baseline rules for Internet poker operators.

Within the gambling world - which includes lotteries, private and publicly-traded companies, American Indian tribes, software manufacturers, offshore sites and others - there are differing visions for ideal online gambling laws.

Mark Hichar, an outside lawyer for the company that runs the Texas lottery, said the memo removes uncertainty and will prompt lotteries to begin running as many different kinds of games as are allowable under state laws.

"This helps lotteries, which are ... determined to remain relevant and to attract a new generation of players," said Hichar, who represents Rhode Island-based GTECH Corp.

Lotteries have generally opposed federal legislation, pushing for states to retain control of gambling laws.

I. Nelson Rose, a gambling law expert, said the opinion's timing and deference to states could mean trouble for commercial casinos that want an inside track on running licensed online gambling.

"They're going to have problems because when the states legalize, their natural inclination is to give it to the locals," said Rose, who regularly writes about online gambling developments at his blog, Gambling and The Law.

And that, he said, is the big question: Who's going to get the license?

"If you're a Nevada casino operator, you don't want to be competing in more than 50 separate jurisdictions against connected, politically powerful operators," Rose said.

Rose said new federal laws are a longshot in 2012, while states could choose to enter into compacts with other states to pool players, making games more lucrative.

U.S. lotteries could emulate counterparts in Canada that run limited online gambling sites in the provinces, he said.

Recreational player Mark Gorman of Austin, Texas, said he's skeptical, because different DOJ officials under a future president could change their opinion, forcing lawmakers to start over again.

"I wasn't terribly excited that this would change the landscape," Gorman said.

In Nevada, where gambling regulators adopted online poker regulations the day before the DOJ opinion, it's not clear whether casinos will try to let gamblers wager on more than just poker online.

Michael Gaughan, owner of the South Point casino in Las Vegas, said his lawyers are looking at how the opinion has changed legal situation as he tries to become the first Nevada casino operator to run legal online poker in the state.

"I don't know what happens," Gaughan said. "This opens up a whole can of worms, now."

He said he'll wait for their analysis before deciding whether to ask Nevada regulators to expand his plans.

Poker may be a baby step, legalized before other games as states argue that gambling creates jobs, said Alexander Ripps, a legal analyst in Washington for independent gambling market analysis firm Gambling Compliance.

"I think you're going to see it coming down to what to they think can get through," Ripps said. "Once you're in with one thing, then, in theory, down the line you can always get something else in."

Meanwhile, Boyko said, he just wants to be able to trust his money online while the game.

"All I want is a safe place to play poker," he said.

WI Governor Scott Walker visits Oneida

Governor Scott Walker poses for a picture with members of the Oneida Business Committee during his visit to the Oneida Health Center

By Travis Cottrell

Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker visited the Oneida Health Center on Tuesday, January 10, 2012 where he met with Wisconsin tribal leaders to discuss issues and concerns. Governor Walker also toured the health center facility.

Oneida Councilwoman Melinda Danforth felt that the meeting with the governor was a successful one.

"I thought the visit went very well and I am actually very appreciative of Governor Walker coming to Oneida because not many elected officials take an opportunity to come and tour an Indian reservation. I thought it was very unique of him to come to Oneida as well as continue to uphold his promise that he would meet with tribal leaders and hear our concerns on issues that are facing Indian Country," said Danforth.

The issues that were covered during the meeting were health care, mining, deer management, and economic development.

Year of practice pays off with trip to Rose Parade

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The trip may have lasted a few days, but the memories of the 123rd Rose Parade in Pasadena continue to give Oneida members of the Pulaski High School Band a warm glow.

Freshman clarinetists William Cornelius, junior alto saxophonist Brickman House, and senior tenor saxophonist Ian Flauger traveled west to perform in the Rose Parade held Monday, January 2 and take part in Band Fest on Saturday, December 31. The three young men along with junior clarinetists Christa Charnon practiced the band's routine for over a year.

"All those reversals and everything was worth it," said Flauger.

House stated that between the Rose Parade, performing at Disney Land, and meeting other band members from Kyoto, Japan and elsewhere, the trip was a blur.

"You have to appreciate it after, I guess, because there was a lot going on," said House.

Cornelius felt the trip was worth the struggles.

"It was my first time flying, so it was kind of nerve wracking, but when we got there, it was pretty fun because we couldn't wait to start the band fest and parade," he said.

Oneida employees beat Humana in Red Cross blood drive

Employees of Oneida turned out in record numbers to give blood at the American Red Cross Blood Drive held at the Oneida Family Fitness Center on Friday, January 6.

Attendance was spurred by a challenge to beat the employees of Humana Insurance who donated 66 units of blood on December 8. Oneida employees donated 76 units, nearly reaching the goal of 80 units and nearly doubling the usual goal of 40.

According to Donor Recruitment Representative Dave Liethen the combined 142 pints of blood could potentially save 426 lives. Liethen thanked Oneida effort.

"This time of year we end up with some snowstorms, some ice storms, some kind of weather issues that prevent blood drives either from starting on time or maybe happening at all, and as a result we have a real pinch," he said.

Wis. Assembly could vote on mining next week

By Scott Bauer
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ The state Assembly is set to vote next week on a bill that pits the promise of hundreds of jobs against worries an iron ore mine would despoil a pristine area in northern Wisconsin near Lake Superior.

Assembly Speaker Jeff Fitzgerald said in a statement Tuesday that he hoped to vote on the bill Jan. 19. A public hearing on the proposal in Hurley, near where Gogebic Taconite hopes to open the mine, was set for Wednesday. It comes following criticism of the previous hearing being held near Milwaukee, about 300 miles away from where the mine would be.

The mine's backers say it would bring more than 700 mining jobs to an economically depressed area and create 2,000 ancillary jobs. But environmentalists and tribal leaders who live in the Penokee Hills area are worried about the long-term effects of mining for iron ore in one of the state's most pristine regions.

"This comes down to a choice between creating thousands of high paying jobs for Wisconsinites and bending to extreme environmental special interests," Fitzgerald said. "I know what side I am on."

But Amber Meyer Smith with the environmental advocacy group Clean Wisconsin said the bill should be scrapped.

Gogebic President Bill Williams said many people mistakenly believe passing the bill would allow the mine to open.

"This bill is not issuing a permit," Williams said. "This bill is issuing a process for the DNR to implement."

While the Assembly might vote on the bill next week, it is unclear when the Senate will take it up. Messages left with a spokesman for Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald, R-Juneau, were not immediately returned.

Passing the iron mining bill is one of the top priorities of Republicans who control the Legislature, as well as Gov. Scott Walker.

The prospect of jobs that the mine could bring would be welcome news and campaign fodder for Walker, who faces a possible recall election this spring or summer, and Republican lawmakers who hope to hang on to their majorities in the Senate and Assembly.

The mine would be located along a 4-1/2 mile stretch of the hills near Mellen, a city of about 900 people just south of the reservation for the Bad River Band of Lake Superior. Company officials say the first phase of the project would last at least 35 years and generate about $1.4 billion in state and local tax revenue, creating 700 jobs for people in the area and 2,000 ancillary jobs for the region's service and transportation industries.

Thornberry offers January golf

Warm weather combined with no snow cover presented many golf enthusiasts a rare opportunity; January golf.

Thornberry Creek at Oneida was open Tuesday, January 10 and Wednesday, January 11 as temperatures rose into the upper 40's with plenty of sunshine.

"Since my tenure here at Thornberry, which began in 2005, the course was open once before in January for a couple days in 2006," said course's Director of Golf, Mark Becker. "Very rare indeed."

The course was busy as 26 golfers took advantage of the spring-like January weather on Tuesday, even if you needed a hammer to get your tee in the ground.

From 1A/Mine vote

But it wouldn't come without costs.

The state Department of Natural Resources on Monday estimated its one-time costs, which would include an environmental impact study, at $400,000 to $3 million, and annual costs over the four years it's expected to take to for the mine to become operational at $150,000 to $800,000.

That would put the cost to taxpayers during the four-year period at $1 million to $6.2 million.

And those projections do not include long-term costs, such as oversight while the mine is in use and monitoring after the mine is closed. Those costs were not accounted for the in the estimate. Most of the expenses detailed by DNR are associated with reviewing mine permits, a process that involves studying the effects a mine could have on air, water and threatened species.

Mike Wiggins, chairman of the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, said the cost estimates are providing a dose of reality to a bill that is "kind of pie in the sky."

"It's another signal to me that this bill was drafted by people with mining interests as their main priority," Wiggins said.``If there was a true effort to reflect balance or the environment or concerns about water, you would see a drastically different bill."

The Bad River band's reservation lies just north of the proposed mine site, and the tribe is worried a mine would ruin the regional water quality and destroy the sloughs the tribe uses for its traditional wild rice harvests.

The 183-page legislation subject to Wednesday's hearing would require the DNR to approve or deny an iron mine application within 360 days, eliminate challenges to DNR permitting decisions along the way and limit who could sue over permit violations. It also would ease standards for water withdrawals and redirect half of a state tax on ore sales that currently is earmarked for municipalities near mines back to the state.

Williams, Gogebic's president, downplayed environmental concerns.

"Is this the only beautiful area up here? I hope not," he said. "If this is the only pristine area, then there are issues the state has that go beyond mining. There are hundreds of areas like this up here and there still would be."

Longtime Navajo Code Talkers group president Keith Little dies

By Felicia Fonseca
Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Arizona (AP) – Keith Little envisioned a place that would house the stories of the Navajo Code Talkers and where people could learn more about the famed World War II group who used their native language as a weapon.

His family now hopes to carry out his dream of a museum near the Arizona-New Mexico border that also will hold wartime memorabilia and serve as haven for veterans. Little, one of the most recognizable of the remaining Code Talkers, died of melanoma Tuesday night at a Fort Defiance hospital, said his wife, Nellie. He was 87.

Little was 17 when he joined the U.S. Marine Corps, becoming one of hundreds of Navajos trained as Code Talkers. They used a code developed by 29 tribal members that was based on the then-unwritten Navajo language. Their code helped confound the Japanese and win the war.

"My motivation was to fight the enemy with a gun or whatever," Little told The Associated Press in a July 2009 interview. "When I went into the Marine Corps ... I knew nothing about the Navajo code. It was really astonishing to me to get to Camp Pendleton and there were a bunch of Navajos there, and they were working with a Navajo code."

Little, the longtime president of the Navajo Code Talkers Association until his death, traveled the country seeking funding for the museum and veterans center that is expected to cost nearly $43 million. He preached about the preservation of Navajo traditions, culture and the language that the federal government tried to eradicate before he and others were called on to use it during the war.

It was a story he never tired of telling, association secretary Yvonne Murphy said.

"That was his life. That was the drive behind him," Murphy said Wednesday. "It didn't matter where he was. If there were people who came and wanted to sit and talk with him, he would share with them."

Nellie Little said her husband hoped the museum would be open by 2014 at its proposed location just outside the Navajo Nation capital of Window Rock. But she said more money is needed.

She is asking people to send museum donations rather than flowers for his memorial.

Keith Little's health had been deteriorating over the past year, as he went in and out of hospitals between speaking engagements and appearances in parades - the last time in New York in November for Veterans Day, the association said. When he wasn't traveling, he was tending to his family's ranch in Crystal, New Mexico.

A video on the association's website features Keith Little speaking about the importance of the unbreakable code. Fellow platoon members referred to the Navajos as "walking secret codes," with each message having to be memorized and destroyed after it was sent or received, Keith Little says.

"That is something that in itself was marvelous," he said in the AP interview. "It was so proficient and safe."

And, Alta Resources says it could add 200 additional workers within the next six months. When Alta Resources built a $20 million office building in downtown Neenah in 2005, it occupied four of the seven floors. Today, it occupies all seven floors and leases space in another building.

Minn. tribe, Wis. group among EPA grant recipients

MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has announced $25,000 grants to each of four recipients in the Great Lakes region, including a Minnesota tribe and a Wisconsin nonprofit organization.

The EPA says the grants will help conduct research and develop solutions for communities dealing with pollution problems.

One grant is for the Red Lake Band of Ojibwe Indians in Beltrami, Minn. The money will help the tribe improve wells and septic systems on their reservation. The EPA says failing septic tanks can lead to contamination of ground and well water.

A second grant is going to the Social Development Commission in Milwaukee. The agency works to reduce incidents of lead exposure by helping low-income families assess their homes and eliminate lead dangers.

Senecas: Casino gambling OK, but not in western NY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) ~ Seneca Nation President Robert Porter says the tribe does not oppose statewide casino gambling - as long as it doesn't spread to western New York.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo said in his State of the State speech Wednesday that New Yorkers could approve a constitutional amendment to have Atlantic-City style casinos off Indian reservations.

The Senecas operate three casinos under a 2002 compact with the state in Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Salamanca. The compact guarantees the Senecas exclusive gambling rights in 14 western New York counties through 2023.

Porter says the Senecas expect that the state law carving out an area of exclusive gambling operations for the tribe in western New York is retained.

Prospect of Beloit casino seems to be improving

BELOIT, Wis. (AP) – After more than a decade of intermittent negotiations, talks have resumed that could lead to a Ho-Chunk Nation casino being built in Beloit.

City and tribe officials have signed a preliminary agreement for a possible casino development, City Manager Larry Arft said this week. While details of the agreement haven't been released, representatives of both sides will present and explain the tentative deal at a town hall meeting Tuesday at the Beloit Public Library.

The Beloit City Council and Rock County Board of Supervisors will be asked to sign the agreement, a document that Arft said will "set the basis for the relationship" among the tribe, city and county.

A casino in the area would create thousands of jobs and could lead to further development, Arft said. New businesses could include hotels, a theater, convention halls and shopping spaces, he said.

"You're talking about a significant boost to the whole Stateline Area," Arft told the Beloit Daily News

The casino idea has been floated for more than a decade. In a 1999 referendum, 61 percent of Beloit voters approved implementation of a casino project. But the project ran into roadblocks in Washington, D.C.

The tentative deal is "a workable product that is now suitable for review" by council members and the community, Arft said. A formal public hearing has been set for Jan. 17.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Mad Hair salon opens doors, invites new clients

Salon aims to have quality work and customer care set them apart from competition

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Have you been thinking about changing that hairstyle in the New Year? Or do you just need that monthly touch up from a trained stylist? Look no further than the newly opened Mad Hair salon.

Mad Hair is owned by Tim Skenandore and is located in the Airport Plaza at 2615 S. Packerland Dr.

"We started planning around June, so we've been planning the salon for about six months now," says Skenandore

Although Skenandore hadn't previously dealt in the salon business he couldn't ignore the potential that exists with owning such a business.

"I wanted to open this salon because of the opportunity to be an entrepreneur and a business owner. I had known the ladies prior to opening the salon and they wanted something that fit their standards as well. Which is being loyal and getting a customer interaction rather than viewing the customer as a commodity or just a number on the wall. We wanted something where we would have more individual contact and relationships," added Skenandore

But Skenandore openly admits that styling hair is not in his area of expertise. That he leaves to the ladies who carry out the day-to-day requirements of the salon.

"I just bring the business experience, I got by Bachelor's degree from Concordia University and my business experience at the Oneida Casino. But the ladies have all the experience with the salon. Between our three stylists we have over 20 years of experience in the field," Skenandore said.

Mad Hair opened its doors featuring three employees, Licensed Manager and Lead Quality Stylist Kelly Maynard, Quality Stylist Navil Perez, and Quality Stylist Bri Parks.

"We're still getting settled in the new place. We're still working on interior decorating and painting," said Parks.

The new location also offers stylists the opportunity to bring in new clients as well as have previous clients follow them to Mad Hair salon.

"We have a good start to our clientele. Starting off its mostly friends and family. But as long as you do a good job your regular clients will follow you anywhere," Maynard said.

The positive rapport between the Mad Hair staff also adds a fun dynamic to the salon.

"We're like a big family here too so its not like some other chain salons where some people might not get along. We talk, we goof around, we work and it's fun," said Perez.

Mad Hair salon hopes to set themselves apart from other salons by going the extra mile for their customers. In fact, the salon's name is a result of their slogan, "Making A Difference."

The salon looks to get a few more business aspects settled before they schedule a grand opening date, which will take place sometime in the next few weeks. If you would like to schedule an appointment with Mad Hair salon you can do so by calling (920) 499-4247, walk-ins are also welcome.

OBC Forum...

Shekólih,

For this article, I want to share information with you on the tribe's Code of Ethics and an effort I currently have underway to make some critical changes.

During my tenure with the Oneida Business Committee, I have received so much feedback from community members on all different issues. One issue that consistently is heard is the need to have accountability start at the top. I whole-heartedly agree and when I asked the community for support going into this term, reform in accountability from the top-down was one of the items I knew I would be tasked with. With that said, I understand that revamping the Code of Ethics will be a difficult task, as we be legislating behavior for ourselves, when we should all have an understanding of what is right versus wrong.

I am taking a similar approach to this item as I have done with many other issues I have brought to the community, I am asking for your input on the front-end as I draft the changes. Many community members have already participated by taking a short survey that was set up at two separate GTC meetings in November. I have also developed a face book group to gather input which many have already joined and there will be upcoming community forums which will be held in late January & early February. The feedback thus far, through the survey, has been "do you want sanctions included in the code of ethics?" and the overwhelming responses so far have been yes. To date the development of the sanctions has not been difficult, through the input you have already provided to my office, it has determined that fines, suspension, termination of appointment and removal are all viable options and supported.

Melinda Danforth
Councilwoman

The difficulty will come in how to implement the sanctions and who will enforce the sanctions. This is where I will need your assistance. Concepts you have recommended include having the Business Committee, Judicial body and General Tribal Council all having the authority to implement sanctions, so as I go out into the community, this will be a primary area of focus for me. I encourage you to begin thinking about how the process to assign a sanction will work. Critical components of the revised law will include: the use of a clear and thorough process, mandatory reporting of outcomes to GTC and timeliness.

I will also state upfront that as the new sanctions and process are developed, I will encourage the focus to be supporting positive behaviors with punitive consequences for negative behavior as the secondary process. This does not mean undesired behavior will be overlooked; however, my intent will be to ensure we are creating an environment that is encouraging, caring, open and keeps in mind we have common goals as a tribe, as families as well as individuals.

Please watch for the community forum dates in the tribal newspaper. As always, please share your thoughts and ideas by emailing me at mdanforj@oneidanation.org or by calling my office at 920-869-4461. You can also contact my assistant Lisa Summers at lsummer2@oneidanation.org or 920-869-4478.

Winning the day: Indian Country's year begins now

Happy New Year. Or, I should say, happy election year. From now on the national election for president (as well as the House and the Senate) shifts from a vague threat to an actual election. But not just any election because the 2012 result represents a significant threat to Indian Country.

No matter who or which party wins there will be ginormous changes in federal programs and dollars that are invested in Native American communities. Remember both Democrats and Republicans are promising significantly less spending as we enter a new era of contraction. The reasons for that policy shift are complicated by the nation's debt levels and the aging demographics of the country.

Still there remain major policy differences between President Barack Obama and the Republican challengers for the office about how to make these cuts and what alternatives might be put in place to cushion the blow. The Obama administration has done a pretty good job of protecting funding for the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indian Health Service recognizing decades of underfunding. That will not happen if any of the Republican candidates are elected (and the more strident G.O.P. candidates are promising to eliminate the BIA and to strip tens of millions of dollars from IHS).

> Can we win the day? Only if Indian Country gets engaged.
> The Native Vote 2012
> (a project of the National Congress of American Indians) identifies 13 states where American Indians and Alaska Natives could be decisive.
> – Mark Trahant
> Member of the Shoshone-Bannock tribe

Elections are about choices. Do we choose to participate? And, if we do, what person or party is the better alternative? And, most important, can we win the day?

I hear from and appreciate the views of those who choose not to participate in American elections. That is a choice -- and one that means that decisions will be made that impact your life without you. The American Civil Liberties Union in a 2009 report said that "South Dakota also used an alleged lack of Indian interest in state elections to justify denying residents of some counties the right to vote or run for county office." In fact, one reason to get excited and engaged in the 2012 election is that many Republican-controlled state legislatures are trying to restrict voting or dilute American Indian votes.

Historically I think you can make the case that there are merits and missteps from both parties when it comes to Indian Country. Many Democrats supported termination and the modern framework of self-determination surfaced during a Republican administration. But in this election cycle that is not the case because the Republican Party has moved so far to the right. There are code words for termination hidden in the details of Republican budgets. There is no room for tribal self-determination or even a way to build a native economic community when the defining philosophy is anti-government. The current Republican premise is incompatible with Indian Country.

Can we win the day? Only if Indian Country gets engaged. The Native Vote 2012 (a project of the National Congress of American Indians) identifies 13 states where American Indians and Alaska Natives could be decisive. Any list would start with Alaska where the native vote was decisive in re-electing Sen. Lisa Murkowski after she had lost her primary in 2010.

The presidential campaign this time around will be different than the last one. In 2008, for example, one of the accomplishments of the Obama campaign was a 50-state strategy. This time around Obama is more likely to focus on what it will take to win 270 electoral votes.

In that scenario: Indian Country's influence will be key in six states, Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. The Center for American Progress in a report, "The Path to 270: Demographics versus Economics in the 2012 Presidential Election," says these states (I added Arizona to center's list of states in play) are all "marked by fast growth and by relatively high and growing percentages of minority voters ..." as well as an advantage for Obama among white college graduates. This could result in an effective election coalition.

In Arizona and Michigan you also have American Indians running for Congress and that could increase both enthusiasm and turnout. The recall election in Wisconsin is also generating a campaign infrastructure that could win there.

Nearly four years ago there was tremendous excitement in Indian Country because of the election of Barack Obama. But along the way we forget that it takes elections -- not an election -- to make hope and change so.

Finding a Life-Saving Match for Lisa

Lisa was born and raised in Milwaukee by her parents Robert and Audrey Skenandore Pero – and went on to serve in the United States Navy. She then became a proud San Diego County Sheriff's Deputy, but remains a die-hard Green Bay football fan. Lisa was diagnosed with Leukemia in June 2011. Her best option for survival will be to have a bone marrow transplant. Family members planned a Be The Match marrow drive in hopes of reaching out to the Native American population in and around the Milwaukee area because the best match for Lisa would be someone from her same ethnic group. Jodi, Lisa's sister, says, "We are doing this out of love and support for my beautiful sister Lisa and the many other families searching for a match."

Tribal member appalled with unprofessionalism of election board, and bias remarks

This letter is regarding the GTC meeting on 1-2-12.

Does the election board get paid for their position? I sat across from their table and observed two women at this table, texting during the entire meeting… sitting at the end two seats nearest the stage. If you are paid, what a waste of our tribal monies… if not, how unprofessional! Don't think people do not see this. At one time five election board members that I was able to see were texting! By the way, do you even know what our GTC meting discussion was about?

Also, from a group of people who've been oppressed, stiffed, abused – I am appalled at the amount of prejudiced, biased, racist (choose any) remarks from a tribe I belong to regarding white people. I am white and I am Oneida. Shame on you for drawing a line in the sand as to who matters and who we are against. A tribal member commented in the meeting that we must show those on the outside that our Oneida Tribe is united… really?! Who are you kidding?

And why? Sharon House, does a candidate running for tribal judge have to have lived on the rez – your comment on January 2. Another biased qualification?

I am sad by all of this and my beautiful, kind grandmother who was 100 percent Oneida would be too. She loved us all, just like our Creator intended – I am Oneida and I am white but most importantly, my name is Sandy Stumpf.

Sandy Stumpf #2672

Meeting set to discuss Feb. 1 closure of US 41/Mason Street interchange

Green Bay, WI – The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region office in Green Bay is holding a final public information meeting to talk about construction staging and scheduling for the second phase of the Mason Street interchange reconstruction project in Brown County. The open house meeting is from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 17 at the US 41 Brown County Project Office, 1940 W. Mason Street, Green Bay. Brief presentations are scheduled for 5:45 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. A business-only outreach session is from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. at the same location, with brief presentations at 7:45 a.m. and 8:30 a.m.

The Mason Street interchange project includes multiple features to enhance safety and traffic flow. Improvements include:

- Reconstruction of the Mason Street overpass and interchange ramps
- Construction of three roundabouts along Mason Street at the ramp terminals and Taylor Street intersection
- Expansion and reconstruction of US 41 from 9th Street to Larsen Road
- Replacement of the bridges over 9th Street

The first phase of the $29 million project started in September 2011 as construction began on the expansion and reconstruction of northbound US 41 traffic lanes between 9th Street and Larsen Road, along with the reconstruction of the northbound bridge over 9th Street. In 2012, the US 41/Mason Street interchange closes to all traffic Feb. 1 through Aug. 1, while the Mason Street bridge over the highway and interchange ramps are rebuilt. During this time, Mason Street closes to all traffic from Hinkle Street to Taylor Street.

At the meeting, WisDOT will provide additional details about the construction, impacts to residents and businesses, and present information about business signing to make sure customers find their way through work zones. The public is encouraged to attend and ask questions. Information will be also be presented on a number of other projects within the US 41/WIS 29 corridor starting in early 2012, including work on the new Shawano Avenue and construction of on- and off-ramps at Packerland Drive (County EB).

If you are unable to attend the meeting and would like more information, contact the US 41 Corridor Construction Project Manager, Craig Treadway at (920) 492-2233 or via email at Craig.Treadway@dot.wi.gov. The public meeting facility is wheelchair accessible. Hearing impaired persons needing assistance may call the Wisconsin Telecommunication Relay System (dial 711). To allow time for arranging assistance, please call no later than three working days prior to the meeting.

SEOTS Holiday Family Party Entertains Many

By Mark W. Powless

It was a chilly, windy afternoon when Oneida Tribal members gathered at the Marian Center on Lake Shore Drive in Saint Francis, Wisconsin. The event was the annual SEOTS Holiday Family Party. More than 100 people arrived for the pot luck event on Saturday, December 17.

As the families arrived, children were ushered over to the cookie decorating table. Spread out across the table was several colors of frosting containers, sprinkles and various colored sugars. Most important, a large bowl had cookies in holiday shapes. The result was a table full of children, carefully crafting their cookie decorations, many of which would not leave the table before being completely devoured.

After the families arrived Scott Obermann, otherwise known as Great Scott, started his renowned magic show. The entertainment was geared towards children, but was enjoyed by anyone young at heart. The 30 minute show included audience participation and at last count, nobody disappeared without returning!

As applause for Great Scott winded down, stomachs started to grumble, so Bob Ulrich provided a prayer in the Oneida language. The tables of food looked delicious and included turkey and ham as well as many other goodies.

Following the meal the children again took center stage as they lined up to take a whack at the piñata. The purple and white baby eagle piñata took a pounding as every child at the event was able to attempt to break open the bird for the goodies and money waiting inside. When the piñata was finally broken, dozens of youth scoured the floor for the loot.

The event concluded with five games of Bingo that offered cash prizes. All ages participated in the traditional Oneida game of Bingo!

A big yaw^ko goes out to all the volunteers. The Holiday Party was truly a community event that was made possible by Tribal members bringing a dish to pass and by volunteers helping with every aspect from set-up to clean-up.

US to limit mining near Grand Canyon

By Matthew Daly
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) – Fending off pressure from the mining industry and congressional Republicans, the Obama administration is moving forward with a plan to ban new uranium mining claims on 1 million acres near the Grand Canyon.

Interior Secretary Ken Salazar is expected to finalize a 20-year ban on new mining claims on public land surrounding the Grand Canyon at an event Monday in Washington.

Salazar, who twice imposed temporary bans on new uranium claims, said last year that uranium remains an important part of a comprehensive energy strategy. But he said the Grand Canyon is a national treasure that must be protected.

The Grand Canyon attracts more than 4 million visitors a year and generates an estimated $3.5 billion in economic activity, Salazar said. Millions of Americans living in cities such as Phoenix and Los Angeles rely on the Colorado River for clean drinking water.

"Like our ancestors, we do not know how future Americans will enjoy, experience and benefit from this place," Salazar said at a speech in June outlining plans to limit new mining claims near the site. "And that's one of the many reasons why wisdom, caution and science should guide our protection of the Grand Canyon."

Salazar said it was appropriate to identify what impact mining would have on the canyon and decide what level of risk is acceptable.

Conservation groups call the 20-year ban a crucial protection for an American icon. The mining industry and some Republican members of Congress say it is detrimental to Arizona's economy and the nation's energy independence.

Interior Department officials declined to comment, but said Salazar is expected to make an announcement regarding conservation of the Grand Canyon at an event at the National Geographic Museum.

Republican members of Arizona's congressional delegation have lambasted temporary bans imposed by Salazar in 2009 and again last year. They say a permanent ban on the filing of new mining claims would eliminate hundreds of jobs and unravel decades of responsible resource development. Rep. Jeff Flake, R-Ariz., and other GOP lawmakers are backing legislation to prevent Salazar from moving forward with the 20-year ban.

Environmental groups call the ban a long-awaited but decisive victory, noting that the Colorado River, which runs through the Grand Canyon, is the source of drinking water for 26 million Americans.

"Secretary Salazar has defended the Southwest's right to plentiful, clean water and America's dedication to one of our most precious landscapes," said Dusty Horwitt, senior counsel for the Environmental Working Group, a Washington-based advocacy group.

"Despite significant pressure from the mining industry, the president and Secretary Salazar did not back down," said Jane Danowitz, U.S. public lands director for the Pew Environment Group.

As outlined in October, the ban would not affect more than 3,000 mining claims already staked in the area near the Grand Canyon.

The Bush administration had opened up the land to new mining claims. Salazar reversed the Bush policy in 2009 and called for a two-year moratorium on new mining claims around the canyon. He followed up with a six-month extension last year.

Supporters of the ban say any increase in mining jobs is not worth risks to the Colorado River, lands considered sacred by American Indian tribes or wildlife habitat. A mining mishap also could be disastrous for tourism in one of the nation's most-visited parks.

Wis. DNR expands counter service

MADISON, Wis. (AP) – The state Department of Natural Resources plans to expand hours at its service centers.

Agency officials say the longer hours will be phased in center by center. Hours will increase 40 percent statewide by the time the phase-in wraps up later this winter.

Former Gov. Jim Doyle's administration reduced the centers' hours to save on costs. Some facilities were open as little as one or two days a week as DNR staffers rotated from center to center.

A spokesman says the DNR was able to increase the hours by filling six vacant positions elsewhere in the agency and moving those employees to the centers. The agency also used money saved by eliminating center-to-center travel to hire 10 more center workers.

Teens invited to fight distracted driving with Drive2Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 5, 2012 – The non-profit National Road Safety Foundation (NRSF) and Scholastic, the global children's publishing, education and media company, are looking for ideas from young people to help convince their peers of the dangers of distracted driving. Entries open Jan. 7 for the 3rd annual Drive2Life PSA Contest. The winner will receive a $1,000 prize and an expenses-paid trip to New York to work with an award-winning TV director to turn his or her idea into a public service message that will be broadcast nationwide next May during Global Youth Traffic Safety Month.

"Traffic crashes are the leading cause of death among U.S. teens, with 5,000 killed annually," said Michelle Anderson of The National Road Safety Foundation, a non-profit group that produces driver safety materials that it distributes free to schools, police and traffic safety advocates. "Distraction is a major factor in many teen crashes, so we are encouraging young people to help us get the word out to their peers via television and the internet."

"The Drive2Life PSA Contest is a great way for students to get creative and let their voices be heard in the dialogue about the dangers of distracted driving," said Francie Alexander, Chief Academic Officer at Scholastic. "We know from our years of working with teachers and listening to kids that they thrive when given projects connected to solving real world problems."

Students in Grades 6 - 12 are invited to submit a PSA concept that addresses, in 30 seconds to as long as two minutes, the dangers of distracted driving. Ideas may be in the form of scripts, storyboards or treatments. No video will be accepted, and group entries are not accepted.

The creator of the winning PSA concept, judged by a panel of education and traffic safety experts and an award-winning film director, will receive a $1,000 prize and an expenses-paid trip to New York City to work with the director to film and edit the idea into a professional PSA. Two runners-up in each grade category (Grades 6-8, 9-12) will each receive $500.

The winning PSA will be broadcast in May on more than 220 TV stations nationwide on the nationally-syndicated Teen Kids News. It will receive widespread airings on newscasts and online. The winning students and nearly 40,000 teachers.

"Distracted driving is a dangerous epidemic on our roadways, and teens are among the most at risk," said U.S. Secretary of Transportation Ray LaHood. "It's critically important for young drivers to get the message that even one text or call could have devastating consequences. This PSA contest is a creative opportunity for young people to promote safe driving in their communities and encourage their peers to put down their cell phones when they're behind the wheel."

A 16-year old Arizona high school student, Bethany Brown, won the first Drive2Life PSA Contest, with a 30-second spot titled, "There are no re-do's in real life." The winner in 2011 was 15-year old Lauren Daniels of Oswego, N.Y., whose spot used humor to get across the message, "Distracted Driving. Not funny."

"We were impressed with the excellent ideas we saw the past two years," said Sec. LaHood. "We look forward to seeing more great ideas from creative young people that will help make the risks of distracted driving resonate with their peers."

Oneida Pharmacy will now require each patient or their designated representative present a legal Identification to PICK UP prescriptions.

Notice of Availablity

Project Description:
The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is proposing to develop a One-Stop Gas Station and Convenience Store on a 2.5 acre site at 501 Packerland Drive. The project is proposed to alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts related to the 2012 closure of the Mason Street Bridge (part of WI DOT's State Highway 41 improvement). The site is a prime retail location based upon traffic flows in west Green Bay.

A draft environmental assessment (EA) has been prepared regarding the proposed action in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The draft EA contains project information, effected environment, project alternatives and consultation letters.

Comments were requested from the US Fish and Wildlife Service regarding possible impacts to threatened and endangered species, and from the Oneida Cultural Heritage Officer. No significant impacts to these resources are anticipated and recommendations from these sources will be followed.

Need for Project:
To help alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts resulting from closure of the Mason Street Bridge related to State Highway 41 improvement. Development will provide jobs, and it will make use of an existing property that is currently vacant.

Project Alternatives:
This site was chosen based on local traffic flows in west Green Bay. This site is currently vacant and is owned by the tribe. The no-action alternative would not address the potential loss of revenue and would not provide jobs in the local community.

Comments & Availability:
Interested parties can obtain copies of the draft EA from Oneida Environmental, Health & Safety Division at N7332 Water Circle Place, P.O. Box 365, Oneida WI. 543155.

ONHS Women's Studies Class to Say Kanehelatuksla

By Thunderhawk Times Staff

"According to our teachings, the Kanehelatuksla, the Thanksgiving Address, is an oration given to open and close civil and traditional events. It is an ancient gift to the Iroquois people that is reinforced in the Great Law of Peace and in the Code of Handsome Lake. It requires human beings to place themselves in a humble position relative to the natural, plant, and animal elements and to consider, in a united, 'one mind,' the contributions of these other parts of creation to our well-being and survival. It asks the human being to consider the purpose of everything in nature as part of the design of the Creator of Life. Among the Hotinoshoni, the People of the Longhouse, the 'wish to be appreciated' is a fundamental principal of existence. As long as everything is appreciated for what it does, and that it continues to sustain the cycles of Creation, the world will be in balance and life will continue."

Those words were presented to the ONHS students and staff on Monday, January 09, in a handout distributed by the Women's Studies class. Students and staff were then instructed by teacher Kalʌ́na Brooks, to take a seat together. Then, ONHS senior Dazha Pidgeon said the Kanehelatuksla.

"I was nervious," said Dazha. "Did you hear me? I wasn't even sure people could hear me." Lots of people complimented Dazha on a great job, however.

Over the next 14 weeks, other members of the class will open and close each week.

"It's not our intent to offend or change the protocol," said the handout from the class. "We as females are the givers of life. One of our responsibilities is to be nurturing educators of our future generations."

Parents and community members have been invited to attend the openings and closings.

"I've always felt it necessary that EVERY Oneida Nation High School graduating student leave here with the bare minimal of having the ability to properly acknowledge all of Creation in our original Oneida language," said Brooks. "This dream is coming true! In the 2010-2011 school year, 12 ONHS young men and women studied and achieved the Kanehelatuksla. Last year, we made history! Now in January of 2012 we're adding an additional twelve ONHS Iroquois women, which makes a total of twenty-four young adults capable of opening and closing civil and traditional events in the Oneida community."

My First Semester at ONHS

By Brandon Doxtator
Thunderhawk Times

We end the semester here at Oneida Nation High School this Friday, January 13.

Students are off on Monday, January 16 for a staff in-service. Then, second semester gets going on Tuesday, January 17.

We have semester exams on Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

This is my first time going to Oneida Nation High School and I have gotten lots of help and was greeted with open arms. It's like a big family here.

Some days are better than others, but over all this is a great school. The staff here has helped me catch up on my school work and given me time to success.

There are great people here at Oneida Nation High School. A lot of open minds. Fun. Smiling faces.

It's a great environment for me. I can concentrate wherever I am.

Gresham Basketball Tournament

The boys also played Gresham on the 29th. The game was back and forth. The last few minutes the boys played amazing defense and took care of the ball. They won, 45-41! On the 30th the boys played Shiocton for the championship. They lost 45-56, but they did take home the 2nd place trophy! Anthony Cornelius was chosen as their all-tourney player.

Carmen Metty Starts New Business

By Matthew Powless & Tyler Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

We recently sat down and chatted with one of the staff at the Oneida Nation High School, Carmen Metty, about the new business she recently started.

The first question we asked her was when she started the new business. She told us she started on December 18, 2011. She also added the reason she started was to help her daughters go to Japan for a foreign exchange student, and to teach her girls how to be self-starters.

She says she is planning on keeping it up and to accumulate a customer base, gain residual income on each service they purchase.

With the business, she noticed very positive reactions. She told us she is looking for more business partners to join her in selling 5linx products.

Carmen Metty

To learn more about her business anyone can go to the site: www.123setsyoufree.com This is the site that explains everything about the business.

Since she is just beginning her new business she said she really appreciates any feedback and sales she can get!

She sells internet, prepaid mobile, cable, direct TV, business services, home security systems with several to choose from, ID protection, cell phone upgrades at a discount above what you would normally pay, and many others.

You can go to: www.5linx.net/carmenspage. Click on the first page, and then go to products to see what you would like to buy from Carmen. She said the reason 5linx is so successful is that they sell products that people use every day for a reduced cost so it isn't like selling a luxury item.

She is very excited about her new business and would like to answer any questions anyone may have.

Carmen said she was pleased and humbled that Mathew and Tyler would like to interview her and she said, "Thank you for showing an interest in my new business venture."

She also said that she "really likes and appreciates all the students she works with every day and hopes that she can always be a good influence on them. "

Gang Fight at the Mall of America

By La Kota Martinez & Denis Gullickson
Thunderhawk Times

You may like to shop. Maybe, shop a lot. And you may see Minneapolis' Mall of America as a great place to shop. But how would you like to be stuck there for a couple of hours, not knowing exactly when you would get out?

Okay, the "shopaholics" are saying, "No problem! Sounds great."

The rest of us, maybe not so much.

This is exactly what happened to ONHS sophomore Josanna Cornelius, staff member Kristy Cornelius, who is Josanna's aunt, and other members of their family on December 26 when what authorities labeled "a series of fights" broke out at the second-largest mall in the US.

According to news reports, about fifty people were involved in the brawl although there were no weapons or serious injuries, Nine people were arrested. At least one news source, The Global Post, reported that the whole thing started over rumors that rappers Lil Wayne and Drake were going to perform at the mall.

At the time, Josanna was in a store on the first floor, the floor where the fight broke out, so she was directly impacted. The rest of the family was on the second floor.

Josanna said she didn't even remember exactly what store she was in, but an announcement came over the public address system telling the employees to lock the doors.

Josanna said that she

and the other customers didn't have to sit down out of sight, like in a school lock-down, they could walk around and look at stuff.

Kristy said, "I was at Finish Line. I was waiting for my sister to check out and I was waiting for her and people started screaming and making lots of noise. People started gathering around the balcony and people started to leave the store. Then you could hear people screaming, like, 'Oh my God.' There were so many people there, you couldn't see. But they had like four officers wrestling this one guy to the ground. People had their phones out and they were taping the thing,"

According to Kristy, the stores on the second floor were told they didn't have to lockdown. "Some jewelry stores, for instance, closed early."

The whole thing lasted about 45 minutes to an hour, said Kristy. Some reports had it going for longer than that and fights breaking out all across the gigantic mall.

It was a big news story in the Twin Cities that night.

"We watched it on the ten o'clock news," said Kristy, "and we were like, 'Oh my God, we were there."

"Some people thought it was a food fight," said Josanna, "But it was a fight by one of the food courts."

They both said it was an experience they wouldn't soon forget. As far as going back to the Mall of America to shop, Josanna said it was no big deal.

Kristy said, "Well, when I have money I'll go back. We just kept shopping. We just thought, 'Excuse me people, we're here to shop, not watch fights. Seriously, you can't go anywhere else.' People were on their phones recording it. Bunch of young fools. In meantime they broke a bunch of stuff. Of all places to be the day after Christmas."

Oneida Adventure Snowshoe Tie Class

The group above was comprised of a combination of tying classes and the diabetic program.

The Oneida Community Health Center's Diabetic team received federal grant money to help individuals manage their diabetes. The epidemic of Type 2 diabetes in Tribal communities is associated with decreasing levels of physical activity and an increasing prevalence of obesity. Promoting physical activity is a crucial component of the management of type 2 diabetes. The Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC) Diabetes Team partnered with Oneida Adventures to offer patients with diabetes an opportunity to make snow shoes. Maggie Peterson from the Diabetic Team worked with her team to evaluate the individuals. Kip Miller and Mark Steinbach from the Oneida Adventure program, along with help from Hugh Danforth provided the instruction on how to tie the snowshoes. The collaboration was an effort to increase physical activity, which is one of the goals of the OCHC Diabetes Team. Any physical activity can have a positive effect on body composition, heart health, flexibility, and strength. More importantly, physical activity can have a direct impact on improving blood sugar control.

The Oneida Adventure program strives to provide programs that help people use adventure based activities as a way to learn about themselves in a fun and challenging way. When participants learn the art of snowshoe tying, they quickly realize the importance of following a well-prescribed plan by correctly tying the patterns. Even though missing a step may have little impact on the structural/safety of the shoe, it does affect the lacing strength and durability. Experientially this can teach participants about the importance of following a well - prescribed plan to manage their diabetes The staff help participants applies concepts such as these to their goals in prevention.

For more information about the diabetic program, contact Maggie Peterson 869-2711 Ex4868 For information about snowshoeing or any other programming provided by Oneida Adventures contact,

Potential visitor center looks to boost tourism

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A new Oneida Indian Reservation Visitor's Center took a step closer to realty with the approval granted for construction of a life-size long house.

During the January 11 Oneida Business Committee meeting plans to build a replica longhouse depicting Oneida life during that time period were approved on the grounds of Cultural Heritage.

The longhouse is part of much bigger plan that will create a centralized visitor area where a tourist could obtain the full Oneida authentic experience.

"It is very hard to keep and have a really good native look when we are a checkerboard community. We have to work really hard to remind people they are in a native community," said Michelle Danforth, Tourism Director. "Brand is really a perception not what we say we are. We want to showcase our story and create an identity marker in the area. We're the Oneida Nation and we're very proud of it."

According to Danforth, $489 million was spent on tourism in Brown County in 2010. She feels a centralized visitor area could increase the tribe's ability to grasp a larger portion of that money.

"We are really lacking diversity, one of the things we have been charged with it how do we create some revenue to help lessen tribal contribution, Danforth said. She feels this project would do that.

The proposed visitor's center would have trails, amphitheater for performances along with possibly utilizing an existing barn at the site.

The Menominee and Potawatomi tribes are only other tribes in the state with visitor's center.

In 2005 $22.5 million was proposed to build a visitor's center, but the new plan will call for a budget of $1.2 million by utilizing a phased approach to construction.

"I have spent between 10 -15 years in another Indian community in the southwest. They put their stuff out there. Those roads were well traveled with tourists," said Chairman Ed Delgado. "A good part of there economy was based on that. It does sell and it does identify us. I think Oneidas would be proud to visit their own center."

Approval was granted for construction of the longhouse but plans for the complete visitor's center were forwarded to the Community Development Planning Committee for further discussion. The passed motion called for the center to be budgeted in the fiscal year 2013 budget.

ORCCC construction continues to make progress

Community members may have noticed a large crane aiding in the construction of the future Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC) during the week. Well the crane is being operated by a company called Span-Crete. Oneida worker Bruce Cornelius, a certified welder, was also part of the crew working on the building.

The crane maneuvered cement blocks, called precast structural concrete, they cover the tornado shelters so that they can withstand the pressure created by a tornado. The panels have steel plates embedded in them and are welded to the support beams. At a later date there will be a cement topping poured to secure the panels to the block walls.

The Wisconsin Secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs, John Scocos, visited Oneida on Thursday, January 12, 2012 in order to witness first hand the services that are available to Oneida Veterans.

"Native American Veterans are among the most decorated veterans in the history of the United States. By visiting Oneida I want to recommit the Department of Veterans Affairs' efforts to Native American Veterans because of what they have done for this country. Our Native Americans have served four to one compared to any other ethnic group in the nation," Scocos said.

Secretary Scocos began his visit with a tour of the Oneida Reservation, led by Kirby Metoxen. The Secretary also made stops at the Oneida Museum, where he viewed the new Civil War exhibit, the Oneida Health Center, the Robert Cornelius Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7784, and the Norbert Hill Center.

"I am really impressed with the facilities and the capabilities that exist in Oneida. The health facility has so much to offer disabled veterans as well as behavior health services because that's a big issue for me. Forty percent of returning veterans suffer from post traumatic stress or behavioral health issues so that is a very important resource to have," said Scocos.

While at the Norbert Hill Center Secretary Scocos met with a handful of Oneida Veterans and members of the Oneida Business Committee to discuss concerns and answer questions as well as express his intentions to improve the grants process.

"I would like to thank the Oneida Nation for standing with the Department of Veterans Affairs and myself, all these years supporting veterans," Scocos said during his meeting at the Norbert Hill Center.

"It has been a critical task, we've worked together as partners and hopefully today we can continue to partner as a state agency to take care of our veterans. That's what we're here for, to make sure they get the benefits and all the things we expect our veterans and their families to receive," said Scocos.

DOJ: No charges in death of Seattle woodcarver

SEATTLE (AP) ~ No criminal charges will be filed against a former Seattle police officer who shot and killed a Native American woodcarver while on duty in 2010, the U.S. Justice Department said Friday.

John T. Williams had just crossed a street while holding a knife and a block of wood when Officer Ian Birk got out of his patrol car, ordered him to drop the knife, and then shot him to death on Aug. 30, 2010.

The killing outraged many who saw it as an unnecessary use of force.

Birk resigned from the Police Department and the city paid $1.5 million to Williams' family.

Prompted by the killing and other incidents, the Justice Department launched a formal civil rights investigation of the department and eventually determined that Seattle police engaged in a pattern of using excessive force, often against minorities.

The DOJ also conducted a criminal civil-rights investigation of Birk's actions and announced Friday that there is not enough evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the officer willfully violated Williams' rights.

"Prosecutors must establish, beyond a reasonable doubt, that a law enforcement officer willfully deprived an individual of a constitutional right, meaning with the deliberate and specific intent to do something the law forbids," the department said in a news release. "Accident, mistake, fear, negligence or bad judgment is not sufficient to establish a federal criminal civil rights violation."

Comeaux, Sheila Smith
September 19, 1962 – January 14, 2012

Sheila S (Smith) Comeaux R.N. was born on September 19, 1962 and departed January 14, 2012. Sheila passed away unexpectedly, surrounded by her family and friends. She was born in Green Bay, WI, a daughter of Carol Smith of Green Bay and Robert Smith of Oneida and Washington DC. Sheila graduated from Seymour High school, went on to UW La Crosse and later graduated from NWTC, earning her Degree in Nursing.

Sheila was blessed with two daughters, Nicole Smith, Orem, UT and Briana (Smith) Beechtree of Green Bay, WI. Sheila's younger daughter, Briana gave her five beautiful grandchildren, Tristin Smith, Keegan Smith and Roberto Smith. It's with great sadness she lost two beautiful granddaughters, Felicia and Morgan.

Sheila was lucky to find and marry her soul mate, Steven Comeaux of Denmark in a beautiful ceremony in Niagara Falls, NY on July 16, 2009. This was the kind of relationship everyone hopes for, they were a perfect match, and lucky to have found each other. Because of their occupation of helping others, they were destined to be together and thus making a perfect match.

Sheila was a world renowned artist, creating traditional Oneida Iroquois beadwork outfits. Her works of art was award winning and purchased by the Smithsonian Institution, and the Department of the Interior. She retired from her beading craft to make use of her nursing degree by caring and helping others with disabilities.

Sheila enjoyed time playing with her "babies", an adorable Chihuahua named Gi Gi LaRoux, and her faithful cat of many years, Mack Daddy. But above all, Sheila always had a special place in her heart for her granddaughter Tristin, spending as much time as she could.

Sheila is survived by her husband Steve Comeaux, mother, Carol Smith of Green Bay, father, Robert Smith of Washington DC, brother, Michael Smith, Green Bay and sister Cheryl (Smith) Free of Marion, WI, daughters Nicole Smith and Briana (Smith) Beechtree. Sheila also has two half-brothers (Tyler and Cyrus) and half-sister, Murhia all of Washington DC. Sheila was preceded in death by all of her grandparents and two infant granddaughters, Felicia, and Morgan.

Family and friends may call from 4:00 to 8:00 PM on Wednesday, January 18, 2012 at RYAN FUNERAL HOME & CREMATORY, 305 N. Tenth St, De Pere. The Comeaux and Smith family would like to thank the wonderful Doctors and Nurses at Aurora Hospital for their very caring attitude and respect of Sheila's family and friends.

In lieu of flowers, a memorial fund has been set up in Sheila's memory.

MISSING YOU DADDY
No words I write can ever say
How much I miss you every day.
I thought of you with love today,
But that is nothing new.
I thought of you yesterday,
All of the days before that too.
How I miss you, nobody knows!
I think of you in silence,
I often speak your name,
But all I have are memories
And photos in a frame.
No one knows my sorrow,
No one sees me weep,
Deep inside my heart,
You are with me still.
Heartaches in this world are many
But mine is worse than any.
My heart still aches as I whisper low,
"I miss you daddy and love you so."
The things we feel so deeply
Are often the hardest to say,
But I just can't keep quiet anymore,
So I'll tell you anyway.
Daddy, I am so proud of you…
You fought such a strong battle.
God has you in his keeping now,
And I'll always have you in my heart.

Oneida Community invited to create novel and movie script

Submitted by Ernest L. Stevens III
Special to the Kalihwisaks

Next Wednesday, January 25th, the Oneida community will have a chance to participate in one of the most extraordinary opportunities we have ever had. An opportunity that could help rewrite our history.

It is the year 2012, which marks the 200 year anniversary of one of this nation's most pivotal wars, the War of 1812. As many community members may know, Oneidas were the only nation to side with the Americans during this war, and were crucial in helping secure this continent from the royally controlled British. If it wasn't for our ancestors they would have never won that war, nor would we be the country we are today. Key phrase: OUR ancestors.

Even though history has not been as kind to us as we very much deserve, a nation of the finest warriors given our history of participation and heavy contribution in every conflict this land has known, we still take pride in that legacy in doing what we must to protect our land. In the latter portion of the War of 1812, it was the Battle of Big Sandy Creek that served to be the pivotal turning of the tides that lead to the British conceding in 1814. In our continued unification with the American colonists, we helped them defeat the British in a series of various wartime initiatives that included straight up battlefield engagement, espionage, and international intrigue much like many of the Hollywood films we see today. The coolest part about all of that, it was OUR direct ancestors that were the players in this theater of warfare.

Hundreds and thousands of living Oneida community members, on reservation and beyond, are the direct descendants of those who fought, lived, and were forced to bring their family legacies to where we call home today; Oneida, WI. "I see fellow community members every day that I know are descendants of these people. I think the coolest part is that they are carrying on that legacy their ancestors fought for 200 years ago," says Loretta Metoxen, Oneida's Tribal Historian. "It is important that we all know that history so we continue to carry it on our backs." According to her records, descendants include each and every member of Oneida families that include but are not limited to the Christjohn, Doxtator, Skenandore, Denny, and Powless families.

If you are from one of these families, or are simply a local tribal member, please come to this important BC meeting on Wednesday, January 25th at the BC Conference Room located on the second floor of the Norbert Hill Center. You will have the opportunity to participate the development of a graphic novel, theatrical feature length script, and other things that will empower us to tell this long overdue story. It is very important that tribal members attend this meeting to participate in the discussion and decision to support this project, but more importantly to learn more about this story and how our ancestors retained our ways in one of the best ways we know how.

Postal Service Asks to Please Clear Snow and Ice

Keep Letter Carriers safe as they deliver mail to your address

ONEIDA, WI — With winter weather officially underway, one seasonal tool is expected to make its return at homes and businesses throughout the Oneida area – the shovel.

To help letter carriers deliver mail in the aftermath of the recent snowstorm, the Postal Service asks customers to clear snow and ice from sidewalks, stairs and mailboxes.

"Snow and ice make delivery dangerous," says Oneida Postmaster Cheryl Koenig. "Maintaining a clear path to the mail box – including steps, porches, walkways and street approach – will help letter carriers maintain consistent delivery service."

Customers receiving door delivery should make sure their sidewalks, steps and porches are clear. Customers receiving curbside delivery should remove snow piles left by snow plows to keep access to their mailboxes clear for letter carriers.

Delivery service may be delayed or curtailed whenever streets or walkways present hazardous conditions for letter carriers or when snow is plowed against mailboxes. "The Postal Service curtails delivery only after careful consideration, and only as a last resort," says Koenig. "Any curtailed mail is attempted the next delivery day." "We want our letter carriers to be safe," says Koenig. "We can only do this with the help of our customers."

The Postal Service receives no tax dollars for operating expenses and relies on the sale of postage, products and services to fund its operations.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Oneida Tribal Treasurer

Sheku, Greetings

Restructuring the Tribal organization is of great concern and great need. In order for us to move forward and continue to take care of our members, we have been given this task which requires hard decisions to be made. Understand these decisions weigh heavily on me and I do not take the challenge lightly. I consider all the options and do my best to make decisions that fall in line with the GTC mandate. It has been a challenge for all of us and it will continue to be until we address the needs of our organization before the wants. In the years before we had gaming, we relied on grant money to provide our membership with services and programs. Gaming has allowed us to move beyond our humble beginnings and provide more services and programs for our people. While the growth was good and we all benefited from it in one way or another, now we must go back and review each department for productivity and profitability. Not each area is designed to make a profit financially but can be profitable by providing members with a service or product they need. Our hope is to identify the areas where our members could benefit more. This is a daunting task but one that must be endured in order to continue positive growth. Even though we are looking forward to a positive future, we need to remember that restructuring of the Tribal organization takes time and will affect the FY2013 budgets. We cannot finalize the FY2013 budgets until we have a clear restructuring vision in place and begin the process. This may delay the finalization of the FY2013 budget but it is necessary in order to avoid future budget modifications at GTC.

A perfect example of our growth as a Tribe is the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community, ORCCC, which is our nursing and care assisted living facility that is currently being constructed. The ORCCC labor force is comprised of approximately 75% Oneida Tribal members and we are very pleased that our construction dollars are going to Oneida families. The concept of the ORCCC is a result of listening to what our elders need and want. While we would like to address every need and want of our elders we just cannot accommodate everything that was suggested. Instead our goal was simple, to provide superior care for our elders. The finished building will include 48 rooms with the ability to expand in the future if need be. These rooms will be a combination of short term stay and long term assisted living. The facility will also have a dining area, physical therapy area and occupational therapy area. It will provide a home like feeling and give our elders a positive healing environment where they can be surrounded by friends and family at all times. This project has taken a long time to realize but despite the negatives along the way, I am glad it will not be long before we can move our elders into a facility they can be proud to call home.

Lastly, the Finance Department and I have worked very hard to revise our Bank of American credit line. During the negotiation process, we asked for lower up-front fees, reduced legal fees, and a lower interest rate. We took the position that we could take our business elsewhere if they were unable to address our concerns. This aggressive approach to debt management allowed us to reduce the amount of fees, eliminate some of the covenants and reduce the interest rate which will result in a savings of $2.7 million for the Tribe (over the next 5 years). We are very pleased with the outcome of the negotiations and the stronger financial picture it paints for the Tribe in regard to future projects. The Finance Department continually exhibits due diligence in their work and repeatedly looks out for the best interest of the Tribe. It is our job to ensure each dollar is accounted for and used in a wise manner. While this can be misinterpreted at times, the work we do is invaluable and is done for the financial well being of the Tribe and its citizens. May the New Year bring you closer to your professional and personal goals. Be safe, warm and continue to participate in the governance of the Tribe.

Tina Danforth

OBC Forum...

David Jordan
Councilman

Shekoli,

GTC Meeting Law

Since late December my office has reassembled the team tasked with updating the GTC Meeting Law and we are looking at making several changes that not only need to be made, but incorporating those desires of the GTC. This group has held several meetings and we have progressed quite nicely. Our hopes are to bring this law back to the GTC sometime later this year for approval and/or additional changes. This team consists of me, Lisa Summers, Carole Liggins, Cheryl Skolaski, Lisa Liggins, Lynn Franzmeier and Leyne Orosco.

Dream Homes

My office is looking into possibly making changes to the Dream Home Loan Program as there seems to be some disparity when individuals seeking a loan through this program are paying higher percentage rates than other programs allow. An example of this is the Section 184 interest rate is approximately 3.99%, whereas the Dream Home loan is at 6%. Our members should not be subjected to this increased rate, but should be allowed to receive home loans at the lowest possible rate. In retrospect, when the Dream Home Program was started, the interest rates were of a higher nature and the rate we were offering was at a much better rate. However, in these current economic times this program is not competitive with the current market and I believe it needs to be changed.

CDPC

The Community Development Planning Committee (CDPC) is back in session and fully operational. The purpose of the CDPC is to act as an oversight committee for community projects. Proposals are presented to the CDPC, questions are asked from both committee and community members and dialogue occurs regarding the business at hand. Following discussion the CDPC will decide whether to move the item forward to the Business Committee. This process has been established to ensure that community development projects have been properly vetted involving community input. We welcome community members to join us at the Norbert Hill Center on the first Thursday of each month at 9:00 a.m. to participate in open discussion on projects affecting development of the community. In a recent meeting Tourism was on the agenda seeking funding to build a traditional longhouse on the Cultural Heritage grounds. The committee heard the request and ultimately funded the project, which was then sent on the full Business Committee for their approval.

Judiciary

This subject was on the agenda for the Annual GTC meeting, which was well attended by the members and got the year off to a good start. Meetings are being held and we are incorporating the suggestions voted upon by GTC to be included in this law. This law will get a thorough review by the Legislative Operating Committee and brought back to the GTC for their approval later this year. We look forward to more community input on this law after it has been finalized through the Public Hearing process. The date will be forthcoming and we will appreciate everyone to check out the changes.

Larsen Road Project

Thanks to the passage of the current fiscal year budget, this project is finally moving forward. Demolition of the existing building is complete and soon we should see the appearance of a new Oneida Retail One Stop. A new sign has been erected on the site. This corner, Larsen Road and Packerland Drive, sees an average daily traffic count of approximately 20,700 vehicles as recorded by Strategic Business Solutions. In the near future the One Stop should be taking advantage of this daily traffic by having individuals stop in on their way home or to work and purchase gas and other products that are for sale.

ORCC Update

Due to the excellent weather we have had in December and early January, the building project is moving forward at an incredible pace. Walls are being erected as well as other areas within this project. Soon we should see this project take on more dimension and look like a building that will house some of our seniors.

Tribal Leaders Meeting

Governor Walker was at the Oneida Community Health Center last week for the Quarterly Tribal Leaders Meeting wherein he held a meet and greet with myself, other Business Committee members present, our Chairman as well as other individuals who were present. He then continued the meeting with items being discussed such as income maintenance and mining issues as well as the Deer Management Study.

Conclusion

I want to thank you, the general membership, for allowing me to be a part of your leadership and hope you find the information presented here and in my other articles a look into some of the day-to-day operations of your Business Committee.

Thank you again,
David Jordan

Motion carried with one abstention.

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham

Abstained: Brandon Stevens

For the record: Tina Danforth stated given that we're going to allow the president to leave and not be here for the financial approval of the bank status, I just want to note that in the financial report, that there is no financial information or detail provided on the small business loan program. There is a narrative that is very general; it says that as of this date, which is in 11 years, there's been $9.3 million in new loans. That's a pretty generic statement, so I would like that they provide detailed financial information on the small business loan program for the Business Committee in executive session. I don't want specific information; I want consolidated information because we do have to also attempt to the proprietariness of the individual loans. I understand the difference between the two and I would assume that you do as well.

Excused: Melinda J. Danforth, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
For the record: Tina Danforth stated that in the discussion there was consideration for additional staff as needed, as we continue increase the service area.
Note from Larry Barton-Just lend some insight, I know that it's requested to move money within the bond proceeds, we cannot as a practical matter, execute that unless it's a very similar project. It's very complicated to move, for example; money from Ridgeview over to this project, so I would only ask, because of the importance of timeliness that we do proceed, but allow for us to build this into 2013's budget, any proceeds after the $1.28 million we would find in 2013. We do need to move forward, get the engineering going; it's presumptuous to note that we'll have an improved budget. Hopefully by August of 2012 for 2013, but we do need to move forward to get these bond funds spent down and as a practical matter, I know there's failing systems over there. So we do need to go forward but I would only abade that we find anything past the $1.28 in 2013's budget.

Abstained: David Jordan
Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated he supports because it's been informed to us that this is the approach that the division director and the area manager would like to take at this time. There is an understanding that there are 30+ people who are in need of services, who are tribal members, that if we went another route it might take upwards of four or five months potentially at a minimum going through the hiring process. So I support the division director and area manager at this point and time to pursue this avenue, but we also understand that moving forward we do have to clean up our human resource policies and that's my understanding that we're going to be doing that-hopefully within the next year. That's why I support the motion.
For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated I don't support the fact that a precedence has been set, where by a procedural exception was given to allow LTE to gain fulltime employment without the position being posted to our tribal membership. However, I do recognize the fact that services to our tribal membership would be interrupted and affected if the exception was not made. So therefor put us in a rock and a hard place and I understand the council's position on it.

Anishinabe identity important to Musician/Actor Ron Winters

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Ron Winters of the Lac Courte Oreilles Anisinabe is a singer/songwriter and actor who recently worked on the upcoming movie "Rez" being produced by Spike Lee. Winters stopped by the Kalihwisaks to share his his experiences and philosphy.

The movie "Rez"

"It's about the problems of our people. A young man trying to stay away from drugs and all the elements."

"I play a hitchhiker and sort of like a spirit. We have a little conversation in the car about why we do things the way we do."

The difference between being Native American and being Anishinabe

"For us our history goes all the way back to day one in which we were created Anishinabe. As time passes, we were given a label name, Indian, then we were given another label, Ojibwa, and then we were given another label, Chippewa. And now they're trying to give us another label, Native American, but anyone born in America is a Native American, and we're like part of the furniture."

Ron Winters

This is our Mother Earth, and these are things that are being forgotten, and because they're being forgotten, our young people are learning other things than what they should be learning, because we're forgetting those things of who we are, where we come from, where we're going, how we're going to get there."

"Our young people don't know who they are … they were one of those labels … and absolutely proud of it not really knowing who they were or where they were from."

"It seemed like it was deliberate that was kept out of our people's lives so they couldn't see the beauty in who they were and how they got here and how they came to be and their responsibilities in this life identifying with who they are."

"You're given a bunch of definitions from the movies or from books, or television shows or whatever about what an Indian is, and if you think about it none of them are any good."

"If everything you look at is untrue, if everything you look at is bad in your picture, you don't have too much to look forward to, and that's because of something someone else put out for us."

Youth

"In our language, your name usually tells you about your life, and how you should be trying to live your life, and gives

Twelve tips to reduce, reuse and recycle in 2012

Wisconsin DNR – With a new year, many people are making resolutions to improve their health, save money and live better. State environmental officials say this is a good time to also resolve to help the environment and go easier on your pocketbook by reducing, reusing and recycling more of your waste.

To kick start the New Year, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources Waste and Materials Management program offers 12 simple tips everyone can take to reduce their waste.

REDUCE

- Purchase only what food and other supplies you need. Purchasing less means you'll have less to dispose of later.
- Opt out of junk-mail by registering with the Direct Marketing Association. www.dmachoice.org
- Avoid creating trash whenever possible. When ordering food, don't take any unnecessary plastic utensils, straws, etc. (ask in advance), don't accept "free" promotional products and buy products with the least amount of packaging.
- Pack a waste-free lunch with no throw-away bags, containers, plastic wrap, etc. Use reusable containers to store food instead.
- Avoid single-use items like juice boxes, soda bottles, paper dinnerware or plastic utensils. Buy cleaning supplies and other non-perishable materials in bulk to cut down on packaging.

REUSE

- Donate usable clothing, appliances, furniture and other items to nonprofits or second-hand stores in your area. Not only will you reduce the amount of waste you produce, you'll also help others in your community.
- Switch from disposable to reusable items like plastic or metal food or beverage containers, refillable razors and pens, washable kitchen towels and napkins, and cloth diapers.
- When remodeling or making improvements to your home, donate usable items like cabinets, lighting, appliances, lumber, flooring and windows to construction resale shops. Habitat Restores (www.habitat.org) are a great option.
- Start a swap with your friends or coworkers to trade items like books, clothing, computer equipment and games. Something you're no longer interested in could be a great find for a friend.
- Bring your own shopping bags to the grocery store, mall and other stores.

RECYCLE

- Recycle in your home and workplace. Many communities have expanded the range of materials they collect – you may be surprised at what new materials are being collected. To see what recyclables are accepted by your community, visit Recycle More Wisconsin www.recyclemorewisconsin.org
- Clear out the electronics that have been collecting dust in your closet. E-Cycle Wisconsin offers a list of recyclers for televisions, computers, computer accessories and more. Most items can be collected for a small fee or for free.

Loretta Says... Living in Oneida Central

Loretta Metoxen • Oneida Tribal Historian

Ongoing Kalihwisaks Column
Providing a connection to the past

This is my first column for the New Year. A suggestion was made to me to write about how the Oneida Community was when I was a child - meaning how were we connected to each other and how did we regard one another. I was also asked what would I wish for our Tribe this year of 2012. I agreed that this would be a very good way to begin.

When a child, growing up on a dairy farm on the Second Ridge, now Seminary Road, we had many visitors. Friends and relatives liked to stop and chat. Often times they were customers for fresh eggs. Then again, they may want to buy a chicken, maybe a duck or a goose. Dad did a lot of trading and advising on what was the best seed to plant or rotate. Families who were farming might have wanted to borrow the team of horses for a day or a piece of machinery. We had a small blacksmith shop that could be used to shoe the horses or sharpen cultivator or the teeth on the springtooth. There were no charges. My mother, Grace Margaret Skenandore Kurowski was a very good cook and she always had plenty of food on the table for our large family and any persons who may have dropped in. I recall Antoine King and his wife, Rose, walking to Oneida from the area of the CCC Camp, now Site 2 or Falling Leaf Housing Site. They would catch the Seymour Bus at Morgan's Store in Oneida for Green Bay every day. Antoine did yard work and landscaping. Rose worked as a domestic cleaning houses. Our house was half way from their home and Oneida, so they would stop and rest, maybe get a cup of coffee. Others did the same thing. They always knew they were welcome. Old Joe Skenandore (his real name was Darius I found out years later) would drive his Model A to our farm every Sunday and eat Sunday dinner with us. He did not have good control of his car. One day when he couldn't stop, he took down all the clothes lines. No harm done. Zach and Lillie and their family had Sunday Dinner with us, too. There were six children in our family. Two of our cousins lived with us. Grandmother Essie and Aunt Gertrude also lived with us. Cousins from Stevens Point spent a good part of the summer on our farm.

Where did we get all the food? Well, we raised and butchered our own meat—beef, pork, poultry, and rabbits. We did hunt for squirrels and rabbits. I learned to set snares for rabbits from my Uncle Martin. Dad planted a garden, never less than one acre in size. We had enough potatoes, carrots, beets, rutabagas and cabbage to store in the root cellar for all winter. We picked bushels of tomatoes and cucumbers and crates of strawberries and raspberries in the summer. My mother canned hundreds of quarts of garden produce. Being very observant, I took notice that many of our acquaintances and relatives spoke Oneida. They were always very glad to see one another, even if they had met the day before. They would shake hands enthusiastically, joke and laugh with each other as if they hadn't seen each other for a year. Most families had little means, but they shared what they had with each other and were happy to do so. Those ladies who could sew would make clothes for children of another family from new or used materials. It was a good time. It was a happy time. It would be a very happy 2012 if we could emulate those whose laughter I can still hear.

Opportunity for teens to address distracted driving with Drive2Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 5, 2012 – The non-profit National Road Safety Foundation (NRSF) and Scholastic, the global children's publishing, education and media company, are looking for ideas from young people to help convince their peers of the dangers of distracted driving. Entries open Jan. 7 for the 3rd annual Drive2Life PSA Contest. The winner will receive a $1,000 prize and an expenses-paid trip to New York to work with an award-winning TV director to turn his or her idea into a public service message that will be broadcast nationwide next May during Global Youth Traffic Safety Month.

"Traffic crashes are the leading cause of death among U.S. teens, with 5,000 killed annually," said Michelle Anderson of The National Road Safety Foundation, a non-profit group that produces driver safety materials that it distributes free to schools, police and traffic safety advocates. "Distraction is a major factor in many teen crashes, so we are encouraging young people to help us get the word out to their peers via television and the internet."

"The Drive2Life PSA Contest is a great way for students to get creative and let their voices be heard in the dialogue about the dangers of distracted driving," said Francie Alexander, Chief Academic Officer at Scholastic. "We know from our years of working with teachers and listening to kids that they thrive when given projects connected to solving real world problems."

Students in Grades 6 - 12 are invited to submit a PSA concept that addresses, in 30 seconds to as long as two minutes, the dangers of distracted driving. Ideas may be in the form of scripts, storyboards or treatments. No video will be accepted, and group entries are not accepted.

The creator of the winning PSA concept, judged by a panel of education and traffic safety experts and an award-winning film director, will receive a $1,000 prize and an expenses-paid trip to New York City to work with the director to film and edit the idea into a professional PSA. Two runners-up in each grade category (Grades 6-8, 9-12) will each receive $500.

The winning PSA will be broadcast in May on more than 220 TV stations nationwide on the nationally-syndicated Teen Kids News. It will receive widespread airings on newscasts and online. The winner will also be profiled in Scholastic classroom magazines, which are used in classrooms by more than three million students and nearly 40,000 teachers.

"Distracted driving is a dangerous epidemic on our roadways, and teens are among the most at risk," said U.S. Secretary of Transportation Ray LaHood. "It's critically important for young drivers to get the message that even one text or call could have devastating consequences. This PSA contest is a creative opportunity for young people to promote safe driving in their communities and encourage their peers to put down their cell phones when they're behind the wheel."

A 16-year old Arizona high school student, Bethany Brown, won the first Drive2Life PSA Contest, with a 30-second spot titled, "There are no re-do's in real life." The winner in 2011 was 15-year old Lauren Daniels of Oswego, N.Y., whose spot used humor to get across the message, "Distracted Driving. Not funny."

"We were impressed with the excellent ideas we saw the past two years," said Sec. LaHood. "We look forward to seeing more great ideas from creative young people that will help make the risks of distracted driving resonate with their peers."

Visit www.drive2life.org or www.scholastic.com/Drive2Life for more information about the competition and for the entry form and complete rules. Deadline for entries is Feb. 29, 2012.

you some direction."

"This is what we have to bring out to our young people, you're going to find out who you are and that there's beauty in your being, so we don't have to act like other people and get into trouble."

"Find out who you really are, why you're really here, to pull our people away from that dominant life."

Alcohol

"I've read about it in the Bible, even Jesus taking water and making wine for ceremony … But when someone abuses one of our sacraments, we really get angry, and yet we drink - misusing someone else's medicine."

"I realized that when I first went in to try and be an actor, many of our people would be kind of drinking already in the morning, and come in for rehearsals. It was kind of rough back then."

"I never quit alcohol, I just don't use it, so that way there's nobody looking down on me making sure that I'm doing this, I'm not doing that … it's my own choice to do it or not. I keep my own control."

Being an actor and singer/songwriter

"It's something I wanted to do a long time ago but couldn't, but now all my kids are all grown up, so I'm kind of having fun playing the guitar and trying to pass the message on tell people were all good people."

"I know if you want to do something I know it's possible."

"We need to be ourselves and teach our young people who we are and I think we'll have a better nation. That's why I like to use music. I write, and there's a lot of things that happen that you can say in music, you can say in the heart. Our people are natural artists and we enjoy each other's art."

Being Anishinabe

"I talked to some of my elders, and they said, well, you might be the only Anishinabe they'll ever meet, so how you handle yourself is going to reflect on where I'm from and who I am."

"We got to wake up about who we are and pass this on before we're gone, and if we don't do it, it won't get done. All we pass on is technology and maybe a will, we don't pass on anything about who we are."

Coleen Bins

Coleen Bins , Owner of Chief Oshkosh Native American Arts in Egg Harbor, has her artwork titled "Commuter, Communication, Connect, Creation" included in the Museum Contemporary Native Art located in the heart of Santa Fe, NM. The piece consists of a traditional man and woman's Iroquois outfit with a contemporary twist. It is a mix of the past and the present. It includes beadwork, reflectors, sterling silver brooches, and deer toes mixed with micro machines Bins collected in the 90's. The beadwork is mixed with traditional skydomes which represent our mother the earth, telephone pole & high power tower images. The piece evolved over time about how many native people may know they are Native only American Holocaust left not so many to tell the cultural stories.

Bins journey began at the Institute of American Indian Arts it was there she met other Natives from her own reservation Oneida Nation Of Wisc. and others of other Nations. These people did know language, songs, ceremonies, symbols their Native Cultures.

After Santa Fe Bins continued her education at the Rochester Institute of Technology in upstate NY. She chose this place as it is the original homelands of the five then six Iroquois Nations. The piece is about all the traveling that is done to learn and share their Native Traditions despite adversity. Bins began her art teaching career in an after school title IV program with Barbara Bethmann-Mahooty of the Mohawk Nation from there she also taught at the Iroquios Museum (Cobbleskill NY), Rochester Museum, Ganondagan a Seneca State historic site, Rochester School of Music, and was a resident artist for the Rochester City School District.

Bins learned more of her traditions from those she taught and gave back through teaching Art to non-natives and many urban and reservation Natives throughout upstate New York. After obtaining her Masters in Art Education she returned home to teach art at the Turtle School Oneida, Wisc. when it opened in 1994.

Report for the Oneida Office of the Ombudsman

January marks the beginning of a new calendar year and the beginning of another quarter in the fiscal year. Last October I provided an initial report to the Oneida Community in which I indicated that the Office of the Ombudsman (OoO) would be issuing regular reports and information to the community. I now bring to you a report covering items and actions of the Office of the Ombudsman during the first quarter of fiscal year 2012 which covers the time period of October 2011 – December 2011.

In the broad sense of the Office of the Ombudsman, I have completed my training in Ombudsman 101 and Ombudsman 101 plus through the International Ombudsman Association (IOA) and am now in the process of preparing for certification as a Certified Organizational Ombudsman Professional (CO-OP). Through continued membership and collaboration with this association a great deal of resource materials, experienced practitioners, and professionals from around the world are available to the Oneida Office of the Ombudsman for guidance and support. This has been a great tool as it seems as though Oneida of Wisconsin may be one of the few; if not only; "American Native Nations" with such a function. On the other hand, many 'Aboriginal Nations' within other countries have been working with Organizational Ombudsman of those countries for some time now. This has been a great help in the ongoing foundational development of the Oneida Office of the Ombudsman.

From a more local perspective, the Office of the Ombudsman has participated in ongoing skill development and enhancement activities such as Facilitation Training, Coaching Skills Training, Use of Mediation, and internal process awareness for the Oneida Tribe as an organization. The Ombudsman has worked on the team connected to the most recent Oneida Community Health Assessment being conducted by the Oneida Community Health Department with the assistance of the St. Norbert College Survey Center and offered continued input and resource information to aid in the ongoing work of the Quality of Life Standing Committee of the OBC as it works on its foundation for operation.

As for case specific activity, the following is a breakdown of the "numbers" as they related to 'case work' from the Office of the Ombudsman during this past quarter:

35 Total 'cases' addressed by the Office of the Ombudsman (10/11 – 12/11)

Related to areas of the Oneida Health Center: 19 cases ~ 12 closed, 7 open

Related to Oneida Employee Health Nursing: 0 cases

Related to Oneida Behavioral Health: 6 cases ~ 3 closed, 3 open

Related to Anna John Nursing Home: 0 cases

Related to Other areas within the Tribe: 10 cases ~ 8 closed, 2 open

A commonly found theme throughout these cases has been communication. Communication related to expectations for programs/services, a difference in the understanding of the communication between parties, and a lack of clear, open, transparent communication between parties which leads to problems and or concerns.

I have even found this to be the case when it comes to the Office of the Ombudsman. There seems to be confusion, misunderstanding, or a general lack of understanding regarding the current Oneida Office of the Ombudsman. For this reason the Office of the Ombudsman will be submitting a series of articles to the Kalihwisaks with the intent to improve the understanding and communication between the office and the community. These submissions will be in addition to the general quarterly reports regarding actions and activities of the office and will lead to the identification of the current goals and objectives of the office.

All customers who use

Oneida Health Center Pharmacy for Prescriptions:

The Oneida Pharmacy will now require a legal I.D. at the time of registration in the pharmacy and when the patient or representative picks up a prescription.

This process was initiated on January 1, 2011 requiring the patient or their representative show a legal form of identification (Tribal I.D. or Drivers License) at the time of registration in the pharmacy, to pick up prescriptions.

Oneida Pharmacy will now require each patient or their designated representative present a legal Identification to PICK UP prescriptions.

Please plan ahead to avoid delays when picking up prescriptions at Oneida Pharmacy.

Note: The busiest time for pick-up for prescriptions is Friday afternoons. Please avoid these times, if possible to avoid a delay in service and to avoid long lines. This will help you and everyone to keep the prescription pick up smooth and efficient.

Book Review: The Rez Road Follies

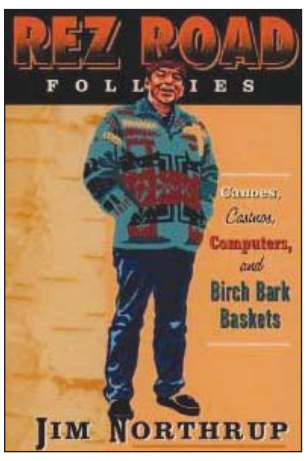
Jim Northrup is an author, syndicated newspaper columnist (Fond du Lac Follies,) freelance writer, Ojibwe, dad, Grampa, wild rice harvester, maple syrup maker, and has many other job titles. It is fun and enjoyable getting to know him through his words and stories in his book, The Rez Road Follies.



There are eight chapters to his book, Families, Seasons, Racism, Politics, Warriors, Veterans, Gambling and Other Follies, and "We're Still Here." Each chapter is a facet to his thinking and the book is a gem. I enjoyed his perspective on Families, and his family was a part of every chapter, not just the first one. He talks about growing up on his reservation in Sawyer, Minnesota, on the Fond du Lac Reservation, but also spent time in boarding schools and in a tuberculosis sanitarium on a different reservation.

He also talks about aging. He was born during World War II. He talks about becoming a Grampa, but thinking he is too young to be sleeping with a Gramma. He talks about running, "When I was in my physical prime, I'd start running and be at top speed in a step or two. Over the years, I've noticed it takes longer and longer to get there. Right now, it takes an hour and a half. By that time, I have forgotten why I wanted to run in the first place." I feel like that many days, only my full speed of years ago never comes.

I read sections of this book to my kids and they laughed at the parts that reminded them of their dad and how he thinks. This is a good book for all ages, and any kind of person can relate to stories in the book. There is also sadness in the book. He talks about some of the sad things that have happened to his family, to his community, and to society in general. He is very astute and aware and gains insight by talking with many others and he shares their thoughts with the reader, too.

Politics is a chapter that can make you frustrated. There's a bit of family politics, tribal politics, state and Federal. The fish spearing parts brought back memories of incidents in Wisconsin, and reminded me of some of the netting incidents and near-incidents in Pamperin Park and some of the issues Oneidas have had there.

In the chapters about Warriors and Veterans, there was humor, but it was more like a primary source history lesson for me—yes, I suppose that sounds very "librarian," but that's my way of saying it was very informative and engaging. I really appreciated that Mr. Northrup could share that information with his readers.

The whole book is great. I could just keep going, talking about it. It's a good sized book, too, but you could really look at it as being eight short stories and reading each one separately. Check it out at the library—we just got a donated copy. (Yawʌ́ko, Eliza!)

Tshateko?shélha (Midwinter)

Tshateko?shélha is celebrated five days after our New Year moon (January). This is a time of renewing our responsibilities for the coming year.

Each day starts out with the Kanehelatúksla, our thanksgiving address.

On the first day, Ohstowa?kó·, the Great Feather Dances is done three times. The first one is to honor of all of the title holders: Kutiyanéshu (the Clanmothers), Lotiyanéshu (the Chiefs), and Kayé Niyolí·wake Lonatlihu·tú (the Faithkeepers). The second is to honor all of Ukwehu·wé (the people). The last one is to honor, Shukwaya?tísu, our Creator.

The second day is "Stirring the Ashes". The ashes from the wood stoves are used to symbolize Yukhinulhá Ohwʌ́tsya, our Mother Earth. Wooden paddles are used to turn the ashes over and replenish our Yukhinulhá Ohwʌ́tsya so that she can renew herself. A man from each side of the longhouse is chosen to stir the ashes. Each side alternates as people are given a chance to stir the ashes. The people are asked not to refuse the paddles. When all have stirred the ashes, the speaker, singer, and all the title holders will stir the ashes again to close the stirring the ashes ceremony.

The third day starts out with the Kayu?kwʌ́tho?, Tobacco Burning Ceremony. Oyukwa?u·wé, the real tobacco, is collected from all of the ukwehu·wé. Through the burning of the oyukwa?u·wé a thanksgiving and an encouragement are conveyed to all of creation for the renewal and continuation of their responsibilities.

After the Kayu?kwʌ́tho?, Hatu·wáh, men's chant, is sung. This a time when our real names are uplifted (put through to the Creator for recognition). Faithkeepers can also be "put up" during this time, and the Friendship Medicine Society can also be renewed. Oneho·lú, Drum Dance, is then done and it signifies the drum is that it is round, representing everything in creation and the connection between everything on earth, including the human family. The beating of the drum and the people dancing in a circle, constantly moving in a circle, symbolizes the ongoing cycle of life. The wild blackberry is mixed with water and made into a drink which is used as a medicine at this time.

The fourth day is Kayʌtowa·nʌ́, the Peach Stone Game. Kayʌtowa·nʌ́ is a game from Shukwaya?tísu. It is played for his entertainment. The Bear Clan and Turtle Clan play against the Wolf Clan. Things that are highly looked upon to bet are wampum, traditional clothing, lacrosse sticks, or turtle rattles. Things not to bet are anything that is solid red in color, which represents anger, anything black, which represents death, or anything is shiny, which represents greed.

After the Kayʌtowa·nʌ́ is done, Ohstowa?kó· is done as a thanksgiving. Following this dance, Kunukwehnéha olʌnaka·yú·se?, the Old Woman's Dance, and Osahé·ta? aotilʌ·ná·, the Bean Dance, are performed.

Lastly, the Hatúwi and Katsíhsa Medicine Societies comes in to remind the people of their day of renewing themselves.

The fifth day is set aside as a renewal for these and other medicine societies.

Why it is important to learn the language

By UNESCO standards the language of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is critically endangered, which means there is a real and present danger that the language will be irretrievably lost in the foreseeable future. At this point there remains only one native speaker of the Wisconsin in dialect of Oneida.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization

A language cannot be saved by having one word printed on a postage stamp. It cannot be saved by getting official status for it or having it taught in schools. It is saved by its use no matter how imperfect by its introduction and use in everyday life and at every conceivable opportunity until it becomes a natural thing, no longer labored or false. It means in short: a period of struggle. There is no easy route to restoration of language.

Emergency response on reservation under review

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A review of the tribe's current emergency response contract may lead to better service to the reservation.

The current contract servicing the reservation is with County Rescue and utilizes locations in Bellevue, Howard, Suamico and Seymour.

According to Marty Antone, Director of the tribe's Emergency Management Homeland Security Agency, average response time to the central part of the reservation is 23 minutes. He feels that the current contract does not have the current standards for the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin.

"If you are bleeding or having a hard time breathing 23 minutes is a long haul. I am hopeful that something can be done," Antone said. "Maybe a contract with provisions outlining the community needs with response times (can be done). If people are looking at providing that service then they can look at how they can provide those provisions of the contract."

Services were once inside of the Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC).

"The contract was initiated in the early 80's to assure the Oneida Community was getting the best possible emergency service. This was determined after the ambulance service and First Responder program ended with the Oneida Community Health Center due to budget cuts," said OCHC Director Debbie Danforth. "Prior to that, County Rescue was contracted and stationed directly at the health center and their staff were housed within the health center (at all times)."

Services housed inside the OCHC were first responder and emergency technician, which resulted in having to transfer patients while they were enroute to the emergency room at times.

Antone understands why the services were moved outside of the reservation boundaries but believes the time is right to reconsider moving them back.

"It would be more conducive to have the services somewhere within the boundaries

We've tried in the past but I don't think the time was right then. It is 2012 and expectations of service are a lot higher. We have to look at are we getting the best service for our money," he said.

The current contract is under review and discussions have been taking place to address concerns regarding emergency rescue services.

Oneida head start gets helping hand in local elder

By Travis Cottrell

Through the Great Lakes Intertribal program and Elder Services, elder Judith Spang gets to spend a portion of her week lending a helping hand at the Three Sisters Head Start facility. Spang spends her Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday mornings riding the bus with the children, helping teachers prepare, and interacting with the students.

"I enjoy it. I really enjoy it; I think it's a good program. My children were enrolled in a head start program many years ago in Milwaukee. I think it's a really good program and so I found out about it and looked into getting involved," said Spang

The elder, who is a member of the Brotherton tribe, has plenty of experience in the teaching field. Spang has earned a degree in education and throughout her career has worked with children of all ages, but primarily with adults.

When it comes to volunteering her time to the head start program Spang finds it to be as helpful to her personally as she is to the program.

"It is a good experience for growth, both for the children and the adults. It's enjoyable work. It

Wis. Democrats criticize mining bill ahead of vote

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Democrats on the Assembly's jobs committee picked apart on Tuesday a Republican bill that would streamline Wisconsin's iron mining permit process, saying the measure robs local governments of tax dollars, could leave the state on the hook for an expensive application and doesn't show enough respect for American Indians.

Republicans have been working for nearly a year on a bill to help Florida-based Gogebic Taconite open an iron mine in the Penokee Hills just south of Lake Superior. The company claims the project would create hundreds of jobs throughout northwestern Wisconsin, but environmentalists fear the mine would pollute one of the most pristine regions in the state.

Gogebic Taconite officials have put their plans on hold. They want state lawmakers to guarantee a clear end point in Wisconsin's complex mine permitting process. Under the bill, the state Department of Natural Resources would have to approve an iron mining application within a year, contested hearings on permitting decisions would be eliminated and no one who isn't directly injured by a mining operation would be allowed to bring a lawsuit alleging violations of mining laws.

The jobs committee was poised to vote on the bill Tuesday, a move that would clear the way for a vote in front of the full Assembly. Republicans control the committee, making approval all but inevitable; the full Assembly has already scheduled a vote for Thursday. Republicans control the body, making passage a near certainty.

Democrats on the committee still put up a fight, though, spending two hours complaining about revisions Republicans unveiled over the last few days. Gogebic Taconite President Bill Williams sat in the audience, taking notes.

The Democrats' biggest problem was a provision that would hand local governments 60 percent and the state 40 percent of proceeds from a state tax on ore sales. Currently all the money from the tax goes to local governments where the ore is mined.

The bill originally divided the proceeds 50-50 between the locals and the state. The com-

Wigg-Ninham gets appointed to state board

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Appeals Commissioner Leland Wigg-Ninham has been appointed to the Wisconsin State Bar Board of Governors. The board manages the affairs of the State Bar which provides services for lawyers licensed to practice in Wisconsin. The board is made up of 48 members, three of which are non-lawyers appointed by the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Wigg-Ninham received a phone call from Wisconsin Chief Justice Shirley S. Abrahamson who ask if he would serve on the board.

"I said I would be honored to," said Wigg-Ninham. "I think it's quite an honor … not only for the Oneida Appeals Commission, but for tribal courts in general," he said.

Wigg-Ninham brings a unique perspective to the board given his experience as an Oneida Appeals Commissioner and as president of the Wisconsin Tribal Judges Association (WTJA) from 2003 to 2011. Wigg-Ninham stated his experience as WTJA president helped him learn about Wisconsin's 11 tribal court systems.

"That's where I started meeting a lot of state judges and tribal judges that want to work together," he said.

Wigg-Ninham is a certified mediator, and sees mediation and peacemaking as an alternative to current court practices.

"I know that most of the tribal courts want to go into peace establishing parameters and standards for the contract related to response times but this has not been finalized at this point," said Danforth.

"We are also looking at surrounding municipalities and the potential to bid this contract out with these parameters as well. This will need to be a process that is well thought out to avoid impacting services to the community within the reservation boundaries as well as how this relates to the service agreements already in place for the Tribe," she added.

The cost to develop the tribe's ability to take on and offer this service may be too financially cumbersome so Danforth would like to see revisions to current agreements.

"I believe the best case scenario would be first address the situation to determine if there are measures which can be put into place to improve the response time through the contractual agreement. Perhaps this could be done through another entity, but it would need to be the same level of services and care that is currently provided or better than what is currently provided," she said.

As long as there is an improvement, Antone believes the review process would have been a success.

"I would like to see the current contract include faster response times. If that's all we do we would have earned our salaries," he said.

gets you out of the home and if you're older you tend to sit around and spend time with people your own age, but I think it's important to have a variety. On Fridays I sew with people my own age and during the week I work with the kids so it gives me a different perspective. It makes me appreciate life," Spang said.

The Three Sisters staff also enjoys having extra helping hands around the classroom.

Education Manager Tina Torrez says of Spang, "Its always great to have elders to work with the children. Buts she's always helpful with the kids and really helpful with the teachers. She rides the bus to the head start building in the mornings, which allows the children to get to know her and be comfortable around her. We wish we had someone like her for every classroom."

Spang also encourages Elders to get involved with the youth of the area.

"I recommend people try it. I think elder volunteers can provide invaluable experience and knowledge and we have a different point of view that is good for both parties," said Spang.

Sharing ones knowledge and experience with younger generations can instill qualities that may be slowly disappearing.

As Program Manager Vicki Deer has noticed, "Judith teaches the kids a lot about the way things were done before and about respect. Respect for adults and that's important because we lose that sometimes."

If Elders are interested in volunteering time to the head start program please let it be known. Contact Oneida Elder Services at 920-869-2448 or contact the Head Start Program at 920-496-5200 if you are interested.

From 1A/Mine Bill

mittee's chairwoman, Rep. Mary Williams, R-Medford, said she felt that wasn't fair to the locals. But Democrats insisted the locals deserve all of the tax proceeds to offset damage the mine and its equipment could cause to roads and infrastructure.

"Why are we skimming off (40 percent)?" asked Rep. Louis Molepske, D-Stevens Point.

Rep. Jeff Stone, R-Greendale, said local officials obviously want every dollar they can get, but the state could incur expenses related to the mine as well, such as repairing damage from heavy traffic on state highways.

"It's a reasonable split," Stone said.

The Democrats complained, too, about changes that would raise the cap on application fees from $1.1 million to $2 million. Molepske warned that the Gogebic Taconite mine would be gigantic and could incur application review costs beyond $2 million that the state would have to absorb. Stone countered that many other state permits have set application fees.

Molepske also took issue with a revision that would require an applicant to share the application with American Indian tribes with land within 20 miles of a mine site. The Republicans said they wanted to make sure the tribes were aware of application developments, but Molepske said the provision doesn't go far enough to show the tribes the respect they deserve.

"Simple notice to these tribes isn't going to cut it," Molepske said. "They want to be at the table."

Stone said the notification requirement represents a reasonable effort to keep everyone informed and tribes can pursue challenges as they see fit.

"I don't think our job is to provide a seat at the table for the tribes, who want to be treated as a sovereign nation," he said.

Wis. committee approves mining bill

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) – The Assembly jobs committee has approved a Republican bill that would streamline Wisconsin's iron mining permit process.

The bill is designed to help Florida-based Gogebic Taconite open an iron mine just south of Lake Superior. The company insists the mine would create hundreds of jobs. Environmentalists fear the mine would pollute one the most pristine regions.

The committee made a number of changes to the bill during a hearing Tuesday, including raising a cap on application fees to $2 million, upping the amount of ore taxes local governments can retain, entitling American Indian tribes with land near mining sites to a copy of permit applications and ensuring the Great Lakes Compact trumps permitting statutes.

The committee approved the bill 9-5.

making and mediation, and that's actually the perspective from Native Americans. This adversarial court systems that we're adopting … they're really not working with the people," he said. "Most of the state courts are going to that right now, they're having special courts for like drug courts … different courts like that keep the offenders out of the prisons and jails, and that's what the Native American perspective brings from all over the United States, not only from Oneida. The peacemaking concept is how we should be handling all of our disputes."

Cornelius, Barbara
March 9, 1949 – November 30, 2011

As the sun rose in the eastern sky on wonderful Wednesday morning, November 30, 2011 it also rose on the life of Barbara Cornelius, age 62. Barb was born March 9, 1949 in Clintonville to her parents, Jerome and Gladys (Doehling) Henn, who preceded her in death.

Barb is survived by her loving husband and best friend Eugene "Gene" Cornelius; two sons: Brian Peebles and Ronnie Peebles; four step-children: April (Rick) Backos, Blackie (Shannon) Cornelius, Whitey and Willy Cornelius. Also survived by three sisters: Beverlee (Ronald) Clauson, Linda (Jim) Portnoy, and Leisa (Andy) Wells; and 11 grandchildren.

To know Barb and share time with her was truly to know life. The true definition of unique or one of a kind was Barb. She was loving, kind, giving, and true to her values and beliefs. She did not always go with the status quo; rather she spoke up, acted and supported the people and causes she deemed worthy of commitment. If she called someone "her friend" she meant it and that person was granted her loyalty, respect, and honesty.

She was realistic about death and was true to herself to the final end; she did it her way.

In celebration of Barb's 62 years of life, please wear red to the visitation and funeral. At the cemetery as you look around and up, you feel the inner peace as the 62 red balloons rise above the cemetery. Remember all the good times you have shared.

Visitation continued at St. Joseph Catholic Church, Oneida, on Friday, December 2, 2011 from 9:30 AM until services at 11 AM with Fr. Timothy Shillcox and Deacon Bobby Doxtator officiating. Burial took place in the parish cemetery.

Online condolences may be expressed at www.muehlboettcher.com

In memory of Barb she has requested the purchase of the book "Heaven Is For Real" by Todd Burpo, and please share it with others.

Thanks go out to Unity Hospice staff and especially to Theresa L. for all the extra special care, time, and comfort she gave back.

I thought I would write a piece for all the Oneida Teenagers and especially for my own grandchildren. This is a story about how it was when I was a teenager, living on a dairy farm on the Second Ridge (now Seminary Road). Our style of farming was primitive as I think back on it now. We milked cows by hand using a milk stool (We had three of them) and a milk pail. I started milking cows twice a day when I was nine years old. That required all of the family to rise at 5:30 in the morning so that the milk would be ready for pick-up by the time the cheese factory truck arrived. This was part of my contribution for the next nine years until I signed up for the United States Air Force immediately after graduation from Seymour High School in 1950.

When a junior at Seymour High School, Dad fell down the stairs and broke his ribs. This was a new school for me since I had transferred from Nicolet High School in West DePere. The field corn had to be harvested and the silo filled with the chopped corn. Those two events necessitated my absence from school for all of September and part of October to fill the silo with our neighbors, the Van Schyndels. That year, the corn was extra tall and extra heavy. It was very difficult to cut with the corn binder, which kept breaking down and had to be repaired. Not many bundles could be lifted onto the wagon where the ends extended over the sides of the hay rack.

I managed to get reasonably good grades in all my classes, including Gregg Shorthand, typing, accounting and Office Practice despite the severe handicap of my situation. The Baumgartner family on the end of the road owned a threshing machine. They threshed all the grain of all the farmers up to our farm, which was the last in the line to be threshed. Each farmer contributed a worker to the crew and their team of horses.

When I was fifteen and sixteen, I worked in the field, pitching grain bundles up to the wagons. Although small, I also worked on the bagger of the threshing machine, keeping track of grain going into the burlap sacks, tying them up when full with a miller's knot of binder twine. To this day, I can still manage to tie a miller's knot. Then someone would help lift the filled bag on my back to carry to the granary. Or I would do the same for them. This job lasted all day or several days until completed. Since our farm was last, all the farmers had me drive their teams of horses home when finished so that they could linger awhile, visit and have some lunch. I have a photograph of this crew and machinery taken in 1945.

These days the school buses drop students off at or very near their homes. After chores, cleaning up and making our lunches (no hot lunches at school), we walked (or ran) two miles to grade school or to the bus pick-ups, either in Oneida or on the First Ridge (now Freedom Road). If a storm delayed the bus, Dad would pick us up with the team and bob sled whereupon he piled straw and some blankets. Although hard to do, we did what we had to and learned all of life's lessons in so doing and with a great many happy memories to go along with some of the tough times.

Dedicated group of Oneidas may lead to new church option

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A loyal group of Oneida tribal members making a weekly trip to Milwaukee may lead to a new church offering in Green Bay.

Christian Faith Fellowship Church in Milwaukee will be holding monthly bible study meetings at the Radisson Hotel to gauge the interest of expansion to the Green Bay area.

"The reason we are coming in the first place is because a consistent small contingency of people from Green Bay, Oneida specifically, for years (have been coming to Christian Faith Fellowship Church)," said the church's Associate Pastor Jason Turner.

The once a month meeting timeline was specifically chosen with options to increase frequency if warranted.

"We want to make sure our response isn't overreaching, but at the same time, not under reaching," said Turner. "We don't want to use the resources necessary to launch a church if the desire is not there."

The church is specifically going to target the Oneida tribal community but will be sensitive to the community composition.

"We have been diligent to be respectful of the culture, the practices to present god but not in a way that would be disrespectful to the culture that's there," Turner added.

Satellite churches are nothing new to Christian Faith Fellowship Church. They have branched out successfully before with churches in Illinois and Wisconsin.

Meetings are scheduled for one hour running from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. The first meeting will be Wednesday, January 25.

Though plans are in place for the go-ahead with a new church, it will not be pushed on the community.

"We aren't going to force a church on the people, we are going to see if people want a church," Turner said.

Thanksgiving Day feast wrap up

The 2011 Annual Thanksgiving Day feast was held at the Parish Hall again this year. While the Feast was held on a Packer game day, it did not deter annual diners from stopping in and enjoying a bite to eat with fellow community members. We even managed to serve some hunters as well. This year's feast had a variety of helpers from the Torres Family littlest gals, to our loyal volunteer, Ben Vieau who's been with us since the start of our annual feast!

This year we served our standard group of visitors ranging from 150-200 including volunteers. The meal consisted of turkey complete with all the trimmings. All food items were homemade by all our volunteers.

Our thanks go out the many volunteers who helped to make our event a success. We couldn't do it without your turkey cooking, pie baking and specialty dishes as well as the table setting, dish washing, busing tables, serving customers and serving our patrons. It is always enjoyable to see all the youth helping out, expecting nothing in return except a good delicious meal.

On behalf of Brian Doxtator, our chief cook and bottle washer, Carole Liggins and myself, I want to thank all those individuals who volunteered, cooked and cleaned and donated money to our feast. Blessings to you all!! Thanks to Melanie Burkhart who took pictures for our event!

Legal Documents & Forms

Have you ever received a document or form through the mail that requires you to fill it out for one reason or another? Sometimes these forms are user-friendly and easy to follow and you can do them without question. Other times, they can be complicated, and there can be language in these forms that you just don't get, no matter how many times you read it over and over. All that legal mumbo-jumbo. If you have any questions about a legal document or form, at the Legal Resource Center, we will try to help you understand what the language in those forms mean, so you can feel comfortable filling them out or responding to them.

Or did you ever need a document, and weren't sure how or where to get it? We can help you with that, too. Nowadays, there seems to be a form for almost anything you may need, for example, Power of Attorney; Wills; Divorces; Probate; Guardianship; Small Claims . . . the list goes on and on. You can find many forms on the internet. For instance, if you want to file for divorce, pro se ("pro se" means you're doing it on your own, not represented by an attorney), you can go to the Wisconsin Courts site at, www.wicourts.gov and locate the appropriate forms there. The site also has a pro se guide to help you with the process. In fact, you can find many types of forms on the Wisconsin Courts site. If you need a Living Will, Power of Attorney, or an Authorization for Final Disposition (burial or funeral arrangements, etc.), you can find these forms on the Wisconsin Department of Health Services website at www.dhs.wisconsin.gov. The forms provided at these sites are only good for use in Wisconsin, so if you live or have a case in another state, you'll have to use that state's forms. We can also draft certain documents for you for a fee.

If you have any questions about a legal document you received, need help filling it out, or if you need a document or form, give the Oneida Legal Resource Center a call at (920) 496-5310, and we will do our best to assist you.

Chairman's Corner...

Chairman

She ku (greetings),

As the days grow longer and we anticipate the awakening of a new year, I'd like to take this opportunity to acknowledge and give thanks for this past year, and although Oneida has lost some that we really cared about, we as a people give thanks to have known them and loved them. Last year also brought new life. Life is truly a blessing and we humbly ask the creator of us all, to continue to watch over the people for the coming year.

2012 brings challenges for the Oneida Tribe and to the Oneida people. Non-Oneida developers continue to build homes primarily for non-Oneida people and the Oneida people continue to become more and more of a minority on the Oneida Indian Reservation. Local municipal leaders anticipate that the area's population will grow by 40,000 within the next 20 years. At a recent meeting of local municipal leaders, there appeared to be consensus agreement that the building of multi-family dwellings should be limited because such housing "attracts minorities." I know they didn't mean Oneidas – but again maybe they did. I should have asked, but I just could not immediately comprehend that in this day and age, municipal leaders would plan a community based on discriminating against minorities. (Note: Hobart's representative did not initiate or support the anti-minority rhetoric).

So what do we do? What do we do to ensure that there's a place here within our own Reservation where our Oneida people can live and raise our families and be respected. How do we again, become a majority here in our own country, our Oneida Indian Reservation. We begin this year. We begin to create a place for our children and their descendants. Tribal Secretary says, "forever and ever." To create that place is the responsibility and the charge of this generation of leaders and citizens. If we turn our back on this responsibility, we turn our backs on our own people.

For years, the Tribe has purchased land. That endeavor has been pretty successful and today the Oneida Tribe and Oneida Tribal members own about one-third of the land within boundaries of the Reservation. Those purchases have also created an increasing tax burden that the Tribe may not be able to afford in the near future. In addition, we have failed miserably to grow our Oneida population as compared to the growth of the non-Oneida population within the Reservation. One result is the discriminatory anti-minority language described above. Another result is the increasing challenges against our Tribal sovereignty to the point that in Federal court today is a challenge to our very existence as a federally recognized Indian Tribe. I believe that if we would have maintained an equitable Oneida population within our Reservation boundaries, the current challenges threatening our sovereignty would not have been initiated. I also believe that if we do not grow an equitable Oneida population within our boundaries, the challenges will continue as will the anti-minority anti-Indian rhetoric and we will become more and more of an insignificant minority here within our lands – and if that happens, our Oneida nation will die.

But as Oneida people, we have a history of survival. After serving in George Washington's Revolutionary Army at the birth of the United States of America, our New York Reservation was illegally taken and George Washington's promise to protect our lands was sadly broken leaving our ancestors landless and poor. But they survived and created a new land here where we are today, our newly created Reservation established in 1838. Fifty years later anti-Indian sentiment again raised its ugly presence as the Federal government and local non-Oneida municipal leaders tried to relocate our ancestors to Kansas Territory and Indian Territory (Oklahoma). But, Cornelius Hill and other Oneida leaders of that day fought and won our right to remain here on our Reservation. Again, we survived. And I believe that we will survive our current challenges. We have more than 16,000 Oneida people. To have 16,000 beautiful Oneidas living here at this place we call home, the Oneida Indian Reservation would surely ensure a strong and prosperous future for the people of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. Thanks for reading.

OBC Forum...

Shekoli:

As a new year begins, we return to our work with renewed energy, bringing with us new ideals and refreshed concepts of old projects. There is one project in particular that I am eager to focus on - the proposed Tribal Judiciary law, and the Judicial Canons that will accompany that law.

Since November of 2010, the Legislative Operating Committee has been providing the GTC with information regarding this proposal to overhaul the current system; to build upon the foundation we created with the Oneida Appeals Commission 20 years ago.

In return, the GTC has provided us with guidance and input, which we have utilized as we developed the Judiciary proposal. The GTC has also addressed a petition recommending specific education and experience qualifications for judges, and last year, assigned a work group to address those qualifications and to develop a disciplinary panel. Most recently, the GTC deferred the Judiciary proposal back to the LOC to ".clarify, clean up and streamline the language to include law school training for all judges", and to "Have the Legislative Operating Committee bring a completed draft of the judges canons of ethics back to the GTC at the same time as the Judiciary law is brought back for final approval."

I am sponsoring the development of the Judicial Canons, and I will be preparing a presentation for the GTC at the July 2012 Semi-Annual meeting.

Judicial Canons, also known as the Canons of Ethics, are professional rules of conduct which govern judges. Basically, because of their role in the legal system, judges are held to a much higher standard of personal conduct than the rest of society. Judges are responsible for making decisions that will greatly impact the lives of many people, and so it is critical that judges be absolutely honest, unbiased, fair, and full of integrity. The Canons are intended to provide both specific rules and general guidance to ensure that judges live up to those standards.

Paul Ninham
Councilman

The Canons don't just apply to a judge while he or she is seated on the bench – rather, they apply at all times; in both the judge's public life and private life; on the bench and in chambers; and at home and in public; and sometimes, they even apply when the judge is doing work completely unrelated to being a judge. Some of the rules apply to the manner in which a judge conducts hearings, while others apply to how a judge campaigns during the election process. Some apply to the judge's personal and social activities, while others apply to financial disclosure and accepting gifts.

Even though the Canons address a wide range of activities and relationships, they are all geared toward two things:

1. Ensuring that a judge will be absolutely honest, unbiased, fair, and professional while performing judicial duties; and
2. Ensuring that the community can trust that a judge will be absolutely honest, unbiased, fair and professional while performing judicial duties.

As we reviewed other tribal codes governing judicial conduct, we found that many adopted the American Bar Association's Model Code of Judicial Conduct, or the State rules governing judicial conduct. Although I can certainly see how those rules might be useful, they were created by another entity that did not consider the specific needs of a sovereign tribal nation. In drafting Judicial Canons for the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin, I am trying to incorporate provisions from both the ABA Model Code and State rules, but I am also trying to incorporate provisions that specifically address our people, our traditions, our culture, and the issues that are uniquely Oneida. We are also attempting to incorporate provisions from other tribes' Judicial Canons to address issues that might not be unique to Oneida, but that are unique to Indian Country.

My goal with this task is to reinforce the community's faith in our judicial system by establishing high expectations, clearly defining appropriate and inappropriate conduct, and by creating a more open, accessible and understandable system for addressing violations. It is my hope that as the Oneida Tribe and the Oneida Judicial System grow we will strengthen as a collective unit, relying less on the outside world and exercising more of our sovereign abilities to provide for our own people – not just economically, but legally, as well.

As always, I would very much like to hear from the membership on this matter. What issues do you think should be addressed in the Canons? How can we incorporate our cultural values into the Canons? I hope to hear from you. Please contact me via e-mail at pninham@oneidanation.org or write to me care of PO Box 365, Oneida, WI 54155, or call me (920) 869-4450.

Status of WI budget depends on method of measure

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Wisconsin's state budget is balanced - depending on the measure used to analyze it.

Gov. Scott Walker has said for months that he and the state's Republican government balanced the state budget through the normal measure of cash accounting.

But the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported Monday that Walker's administration also told the federal government last month the budget is not balanced when using a different accounting method that considers pending expenses.

Under that method, known as "generally accepted accounting principles," the state has a deficit. That has been the case for years, including the previous Democratic administrations under Gov. Jim Doyle. Nevertheless, Democrats accuse Walker of using budget double speak.

If Wisconsin can show it has a deficit, federal law will allow the state to drop tens of thousands of adults from Medicaid programs to save money on health care costs. Walker has said he wants to cut health care spending in other ways, but if the federal government doesn't approve those, he said he has not ruled out dropping coverage for 53,000 adults.

To keep that option alive, state Administration Secretary Mike Huebsch wrote in a December letter to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services that the state would have an undisclosed deficit from Jan. 1 of this year through June 30, 2013.

"It's nothing more than what we've been saying all along," Walker spokesman Cullen Werwie said. The administration already had acknowledged that it had a GAAP deficit in state financial documents, estimated at $3 billion for this fiscal year and next fiscal year, Werwie said.

But when Walker campaigned for office in 2010, he called for the use of generally accepted accounting principles to balance every state budget.

Rep. Robin Vos, Republican co-chairman of the Legislature's budget committee, said work continues to eliminate the so-called GAAP deficit that has existed for more than a decade.

Plans call for $245M casino in downtown Lansing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) ~ A $245 million American Indian casino in downtown Lansing could create about 2,200 jobs and help fund scholarships for area students, backers of the plan announced Monday.

The Kewadin Lansing Casino would be built near the Lansing Center and owned by the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians, the city and the tribe said.

Mayor Virg Bernero said it would improve the viability of the convention center and fund four-year college scholarships for Lansing School District students under what's being called the "Lansing Promise."

"This exciting project is a game-changer for downtown Lansing and will provide another major boost to our efforts to revitalize Michigan's capital city," Bernero said in a statement.

The scholarship idea is modeled in part after The Kalamazoo Promise, an anonymously funded free tuition program for high school graduates of the Kalamazoo Public Schools that started with the class of 2006.

Under the casino plan, Lansing would get about $6 million a year in revenue from the estimated $250 million a year the casino could bring in, officials said. The project calls for 1,500 permanent jobs and 700 construction jobs.

"It will ... attract tens of thousands of tourists to the region and generate enough revenue to allow our city to send all of our school district graduates to college," Bernero said.

The 125,000-square-foot casino would offer up to 3,000 slot machines and 48 gambling tables. Bernero said he hopes construction could start in 12-24 months, and estimates it would take 14-18 months.

"We have a true partnership in Lansing," tribe Chairman Joe Eitrem said in a statement. "They sincerely want jobs and opportunities for their citizens and students just as we seek to provide jobs, services and a better future to our tribal members through gaming."

The casino would mark a return to off-reservation gambling for the tribe, which formerly was the majority owner of Detroit's Greektown Casino. The tribe operates several Michigan casinos under the Kewadin name.

David Hollister, a former Lansing mayor, will chair a steering committee of community leaders to recommend how to set up the scholarship program.

"I can't think of a better way to put casino revenues to good use than to offer our graduates from the Lansing School District scholarships to attend college," Hollister said.

The casino would be built on land that is currently owned by the city. That land would need to be sold to the tribe for the casino to operate. Under the plans, a smaller, temporary casino would open first.

The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe, which operates the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort about 60 miles north in Mount Pleasant, plans to attempt to block the Lansing casino. It also would compete with FireKeepers Casino near Battle Creek, about 45 miles southwest of Lansing. That casino is owned by the Nottawaseppi Huron Band of Potawatomi Indians.

Wisconsin to return $11 million federal grant

MADISON, Wis. (AP) – Wisconsin is returning a nearly $11 million federal grant that could have helped make cost-saving improvements to existing health programs for the poor.

The money was part of a larger package given the state to implement President Barack Obama's federal health care law. After taking flak from conservatives who said he was backing "ObamaCare," Gov. Scott Walker said this past week that the state would return the money and stop the implementation.

But the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reports (http://bit.ly/wlBxmwhttp://bit.ly/wlBxmw) that Walker's announcement didn't highlight the $11 million grant, which would have gone toward improving enrollment systems for existing state Medicaid health programs for the poor - improvements the Walker administration had wanted to pursue anyway.

Critics say the Walker administration let ideology and distaste for the federal law trump common sense.

Indian casinos struggle to get out from under debt

By Stephen Singer
AP Business Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) – The warning from the ratings agency could not have been more direct: The parent company of the Mohegan Sun faces a "wall of debt" due early this year as the casino, struggling with rising competition and a weak economy that's hammered consumer spending, tries to refinance hundreds of millions of dollars in loans.

The Mohegan Tribal Gaming Authority has $505 million in loans outstanding and another $250 million due April 1, Keith Foley, an analyst at Moody's Investors Service, recently told investors. The gaming authority, parent company of casinos in Uncasville, Conn., and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., also has about $21 million in interest payments due Feb. 15, he said.

Mohegan Sun announced this month that fourth-quarter net income rose significantly, to $46.7 million, compared with a net loss of $26.3 million in the same period in 2010. But it also said it failed to reach an agreement to refinance debt, though lenders waived a possible default.

> Mecalero Apache deal, called the "best model out there," in part because it preserved the casino's financial distributions to tribal members and tribal government while bond holders kept their stakes.
> – Valerie Red-Horse
> Investment Banker and Financial Adviser

"They get to live another day," Foley said in an interview.

Executives at Mohegan Sun did not respond to a request for an interview.

Mohegan Sun is not alone as several Indian-run casinos _ some with plans for expansion that have been put on hold - struggle to refinance debt after being caught short when the economy went into recession in December 2007.

Foxwoods Resort Casino in eastern Connecticut seeks to restructure debt, and the Mescalero Apache tribe restructured $200 million in bonds last year for casino resort property in New Mexico. A spokeswoman said Foxwoods is in debt talks, but would not provide details.

An advantage that Indian-run casinos have over their commercial counterparts is that they cannot file for bankruptcy and creditors can't foreclose on their properties because tribal governments are sovereign, said Clyde Barrow, director of the Center for Policy Analysis at the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth.

Valerie Red-Horse, an investment banker and financial adviser who worked on the Mecalero Apache deal, called it the "best model out there," in part because it preserved the casino's financial distributions to tribal members and tribal government while bond holders kept their stakes, she said.

Some tribes have been forced to agree to cut their distributions until debt is paid down, Red-Horse said. Making sure distributions continue is a "very delicate subject. It causes a lot of angst among tribes," she said.

Potawatomi to build hotel next to casino

MILWAUKEE (AP) – The Forest County Potawatomi say its casino in Milwaukee is the largest in the nation that lacks a hotel. The tribe is about to change that.

The Potawatomi say they'll begin construction this spring on a $97 million hotel next to the casino in the Menomonee Valley if financing and zoning approval are secured. The 20-story hotel would add another 230 jobs to Potawatomi's workforce, now numbering 2,500. In addition, about 1,000 construction jobs could be generated by the 382-room hotel.

Casino general manager Mike Goodrich says the Potawatomi Bingo Casino draws 6 million annual visits. The Journal Sentinel says the tribe opened a bingo hall at the casino site in 1991 with 100 employees.

GBSO Drives Away Winter Blues with 'Romance of Spring'

Concert Features Favorites from Strauss, Tchaikovsky

GREEN BAY, WI – The Green Bay Symphony Orchestra will chase away the winter doldrums with "The Romance of Spring," a concert of seasonal favorites from Johann Strauss, Wagner and Tchaikovsky on Saturday, Feb. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Weidner Center for the Performing Arts. New GBSO Music Director Donato Cabrera will take the podium for the third time this season.

Strauss's "Voices of Spring" (c.1882) is one of his most popular waltzes and its familiar, sweeping melody has been used countless times in everything from Looney Tunes and Disney cartoons to an episode of the Three Stooges. Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll" (c. 1869) is a delicate symphonic poem, composed for his wife's birthday following the birth of their son Siegfried. Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 (c. 1878) is an emotional powerhouse; the opening fanfare of horns was said to represent "fate" by the composer.

"This time of year, it's great to listen to music that lifts your spirits and compels your emotions," said Cabrera. "It's time to wake up from our winter sleep and look forward to the return of spring."

More about Donato Cabrera: The 2011-2012 season marks Donato Cabrera's first year as Music Director of the Green Bay Symphony Orchestra - the 10th Music Director in the GBSO's 98-year history. Cabrera joined the San Francisco Symphony (SFS) conducting staff in September 2009. As the Resident Conductor he works closely with SFS Music Director Michael Tilson Thomas and as Wattis Foundation Music Director leads the San Francisco Symphony Youth Orchestra. During the 2011-2012 concert season, he will conduct the San Francisco Symphony in the Día de los Muertos Family Concert as well as the Concerts for Kids, Adventures in Music and Music for Families concerts, which annually draw more than 60,000 young people and their families from throughout the Bay Area to Davies Symphony Hall.

Post-Concert Reception

Mingle with musicians, the conductor, and other concert-goers at Koko Sushi Bar & Lounge, 301 N. Adams St. Complimentary appetizers and a full bar are available.

Opportunity for teens to address distracted driving with Drive2Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 5, 2012 – The non-profit National Road Safety Foundation (NRSF) and Scholastic, the global children's publishing, education and media company, are looking for ideas from young people to help convince their peers of the dangers of distracted driving. Entries open Jan. 7 for the 3rd annual Drive2Life PSA Contest. The winner will receive a $1,000 prize and an expenses-paid trip to New York to work with an award-winning TV director to turn his or her idea into a public service message that will be broadcast nationwide next May during Global Youth Traffic Safety Month.

"Traffic crashes are the leading cause of death among U.S. teens, with 5,000 killed annually," said Michelle Anderson of The National Road Safety Foundation, a non-profit group that produces driver safety materials that it distributes free to schools, police and traffic safety advocates. "Distraction is a major factor in many teen crashes, so we are encouraging young people to help us get the word out to their peers via television and the internet."

"The Drive2Life PSA Contest is a great way for students to get creative and let their voices be heard in the dialogue about the dangers of distracted driving," said Francie Alexander, Chief Academic Officer at Scholastic. "We know from our years of working with teachers and listening to kids that they thrive when given projects connected to solving real world problems."

Students in Grades 6 - 12 are invited to submit a PSA concept that addresses, in 30 seconds to as long as two minutes, the dangers of distracted driving. Ideas may be in the form of scripts, storyboards or treatments. No video will be accepted, and group entries are not accepted.

The creator of the winning PSA concept, judged by a panel of education and traffic safety experts and an award-winning film director, will receive a $1,000 prize and an expenses-paid trip to New York City to work with the director to film and edit the idea into a professional PSA. Two runners-up in each grade category (Grades 6-8, 9-12) will each receive $500.

The winning PSA will be broadcast in May on more than 220 TV stations nationwide on the nationally-syndicated Teen Kids News. It will receive widespread airings on newscasts and online. The winner will also be profiled in Scholastic classroom magazines, which are used in classrooms by more than three million students and nearly 40,000 teachers.

"Distracted driving is a dangerous epidemic on our roadways, and teens are among the most at risk," said U.S. Secretary of Transportation Ray LaHood. "It's critically important for young drivers to get the message that even one text or call could have devastating consequences. This PSA contest is a creative opportunity for young people to promote safe driving in their communities and encourage their peers to put down their cell phones when they're behind the wheel."

A 16-year old Arizona high school student, Bethany Brown, won the first Drive2Life PSA Contest, with a 30-second spot titled, "There are no re-do's in real life." The winner in 2011 was 15-year old Lauren Daniels of Oswego, N.Y., whose spot used humor to get across the message, "Distracted Driving. Not funny."

Visit www.drive2life.org or www.scholastic.com/Drive2Life for more information about the competition and for the entry form and complete rules. Deadline for entries is Feb. 29, 2012.

Keys to Detecting Elder Scams

By Joyce A. Johnson
Oneida Elder Abuse Prevention Coordinator

As people become elders they are more likely to become targets of con artist who will attempt to target their "nest eggs" and assets.

Following are some of the telemarketing scams that may not be legitimate and target our elder population:

- Free prizes
- Low cost vitamins
- Free health care products
- or low cost vacations

If a telemarketer tells you that you must:

- "Act now or this offer will not be good."
- "You have won a prize but you must pay shipping or handling fees."
- "You must send money, give a credit card number, bank account number, or have money picked up by a courier."
- "You don't need to check out our company we are completely legitimate and have been doing business for 20 years."
- 'You don't want to risk losing out on this no risk and high profit offer."

Most legitimate businesses do not mind giving you references and time to verify the accuracy of the information that they give you. And they will be willing to mail you information about the charity, investment or purchase.

Beware of any telemarketer who offers to send a courier to pick up money. Once your money has been given you probably have no business address should you need to recover it.

If you become the victim of fraud immediately contact your local, State or Federal Law Enforcement Agency to report it. A complaint is much more difficult to investigate if not reported immediately because details of important information may be forgotten.

Please contact Oneida Elder Services, Elder Abuse Prevention Coordinator, and Joyce Johnson at 869-2448 x 6833 if you have any questions or concerns.

"Common Symptoms of Frontotemporal Disorders"

Frontotemporal disorder symptoms aren't consistent person to person. Much like other neurological diseases, presentation is unique. The symptom presentation is directly correlated to what part of the brain is affected. Entire pieces of tissue from the frontal and or temporal region of the brain may be absent in relation to the disease process. Generally, with the brain damage noted in the frontal region of the brain we will see behavioral symptoms. Changes in the temporal lobe present as language or emotional disorders. There is no way to quantify behaviors related to this disorder. That is, they can vary significantly and range from mild to quite bizarre, and unsafe. Some behaviors that may be noted are neglecting personal care, inability to prioritize, compulsive behaviors including shoplifting, displaying socially inappropriate behaviors such as laughing at a funeral, language disorders may include being able to speak normally but the person cannot use or understand the words to say, very often the person affected with disease lacks awareness of the disease, depression, falls, tremors, shuffling gait and abnormal posture. Again there is no way to quantify the scope of behaviors that may be seen as each person's brain is unique.

To learn more about Alzheimer's disease come to the next Alzheimer's Caregiver Support Group.

RECIPE of the Month:

This was my father's recipe for leftover oatmeal from breakfast; he never threw any food away and just loved leftovers!

Fried Oatmeal

- Take some cold leftover cooked oatmeal (not the instant stuff),
- drop a tablespoon sized dollop it into a pan with some bacon drippings,
- flatten with back of spoon or spatula to form a patty
- fry on low to medium/low heat until golden brown on the edges.

Topped with parmesan cheese, butter, honey or plain, it goes great with a jar of pickled herring.

Heading off diabetes with guidance from the Diabetes Prevention Program

The Oneida Health Promotion Disease Prevention staff is pleased to share our newest program with the Oneida Community, the Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP). A clinical research study proved that modest weight loss through healthy eating and physical activity can prevent or delay the onset of diabetes. This program is for Native Americans whose blood glucose or blood sugar levels are higher than normal but not high enough to be diagnosed with diabetes.

Group sessions meet weekly to cover a variety of topics of healthy eating and physical activity. Bi-weekly or monthly one-on-one wellness coaching sessions help to work on personal goals and success in the program. There are two general goals of the program: to lose 7% body weight through healthy eating and physical activity and to accumulate 150 minutes of physical activity each week. Our weekly classes are designed to help reach those goals gradually and realistically. The 16 class topics are:

Session 1: Welcome to the Lifestyle Balance Program
Session 2: Be a Fat Detective
Session 3: Three Ways to Eat Less Fat
Session 4: Healthy Eating
Session 5: Move Those Muscles
Session 6: Being Active: A Way of Life
Session 7: Tip the Calorie Balance
Session 8: Take Charge of What's Around You
Session 9: Problem Solving
Session 10: Four Keys to Healthy Eating Out
Session 11: Talk Back to Negative Thoughts
Session 12: The Slippery Slope of Lifestyle Change
Session 13: Jump Start Your Activity Plan
Session 14: Make Social Cues Work for You
Session 15: You Can Manage Stress
Session 16: Ways to Stay Motivated

Less intensive activities are offered monthly through our Just Move It Oneida events. Just Move It is a national campaign to promote physical activity for American Indians and Alaska Natives. Approximately 100 Oneida community members participate in our monthly JMIO events. All ages are invited to come out for a non-competitive walk; try new activities (ie: snowshoeing) and just have fun while being active. Besides physical activity, our Community Health Nurses provide free health screening at these events. The health screening increases awareness to diabetes risks, informs "at risk" community members about the program, and has provided medical referrals to community members found to be in the diabetes range.

After the 16 week course, Health Promotion will be offering physical activity and cooking classes for DPP graduates on a monthly basis. Creative and fun ways to incorporate healthy eating and daily physical activity will be key in reinforcing lessons learned in order to prevent diabetes.

To date, Health Promotion instructed four small classes since September with some very successful participants. The first two classes are nearing the end of their 16 week core classes. The first group has lost a combined weight of 51.5 lbs, which is an average of 10 lbs per person. One of the participants in our second group has lost a total of 32 lbs and is in week 11 of the program.

DPP Coordinator, Stefanie Reinke, recently asked some participants for feedback and would like to share what the actual participants have to say about the program:

What is your biggest success or accomplishment since starting DPP?

I learned how to eat good tasting, lower calorie foods. I exercise more and I dropped 2 clothing sizes so far. –DS

Learning how to eat responsibly and learning more about what and when I eat. –BW

It made me realize what I am eating and my actual physical activity. –TS

Staying with the program was very helpful learning how to eat healthier and to stay fit; feeling good about what I've accomplished so far. –RZ

Exercising more, eating healthier. My blood sugar has lowered. –TT

Eating smaller portions and less junk food. –LS

Awareness. –PN

What do you like best about DPP:

Suggestions of healthier foods, motivation from the instructors and classmates. –LS

The support from staff and encouragement. –PN

Sharing concerns, solutions and goals with a team of individuals who have same problems, solutions and success. I wish this program could have been available 20 years ago. –BW

All of the support and positive encouragement. –DS

Group support, learning healthier eating habits and portions. –TT

Very good learning tools. Very well trained staff, they praise you for doing good or if you have a little slip, they make you feel good about yourself. –RZ

Resources and talking with others in the same situation. –TS

The DPP staff recently attended training in Albuquerque, New Mexico allowing the ability to network with other DPP sites from reservations all over the US that have similar programs. They gave us some great insights and ideas to try since we are a brand new program. We were also fortunate enough to meet Dr. Roubideaux, Director of Indian Health Services, while in Albuquerque. She met with us briefly and wanted to hear all about what we are doing here in Oneida for diabetes prevention. She was excited to take the information she learned from talking with all of us back to Washington to share at that level.

Oneida Health Promotion is excited to share this new program with the community and help as many eligible participants prevent diabetes. If this program sounds like it is for you, please discuss your interest with your provider at the Oneida Community Health Center.

Wisconsin Election Laws: Photo ID and Other Recent Changes

Beginning in 2012, you cannot receive a ballot until you have met ID requirements. (See the "Photo ID Exemptions and Exception" section.) Wisconsin does not issue a separate "Voter ID" card. Instead you must use one of the photo IDs listed below.

Your photo ID does not need to show a current address.

Acceptable forms of Photo ID

- Wisconsin driver license*
- Wisconsin DOT-issued photo ID card*
- U.S. passport*
- Military ID card*

*The above documents may not have expired earlier than the date of the last November election.

- Certificate of naturalization issued within last two years
- Unexpired Wisconsin driver license or state ID receipt
- ID card issued by a federally recognized Indian tribe in Wisconsin.
- Unexpired ID issued by a Wisconsin accredited university or college that contains an issuance date, student signature, and expiration date within two years of issuance, along with a separate document showing proof of current enrollment.

If you are eligible to vote but do not have an acceptable ID, you may obtain a free ID for purposes of voting. Please visit http://gab.wi.gov and click "Voter Photo ID" for more information.

Photo ID is not required for these absentee voters:

- Military electors
- Voters who are permanently abroad
- Confidential electors

Photo ID is not required, but is replaced with alternative requirements for these absentee voters:

- Indefinitely confined voters
- Nursing home and other care facility residents who have ballots delivered by a Special Voting Deputy
- Residents of care facilities who are not visited by a Special Voting Deputy

For further information contact your municipal clerk.

Provisional Ballots: Voters who do not provide Photo ID

Voters, including absentees, who are required but unable to provide photo ID may vote by provisional ballot. Provisional ballots are not counted unless the voter provides an acceptable photo ID to the municipal clerk by 4 p.m. the Friday after the election.

Changes to Absentee Voting

Absentee in the Clerk's Office

Absentee voting in the clerk's office is now restricted to the two weeks before an election. Absentee voting now ends at the close of business the Friday before the election.

The new law prohibits absentee voting and voter registration the Saturday, Sunday or Monday before an election.

Beginning in 2012, absentee voters in the clerk's office must present the same type of photo ID required at the polls (see list on the left).

Absentee Requests by Mail

Beginning in 2012, absentee requests for ballots sent by mail must be accompanied by a photocopy of an acceptable form of voter ID (see list on the left).

Once you have sent the clerk's office a photocopy of your ID, you will not need to send photocopies with future absentee ballot requests by mail, fax or email unless you change your name or address.

Absentee Requests by Email/Fax

If submitting an absentee request via fax or email, you must either include a photocopy of acceptable ID with your request or in your absentee ballot envelope.

Signing the Poll Book

Voters must sign the poll book to obtain a ballot. The poll book now contains a signature block for each voter. Only one poll book needs to be signed.

Voters unable to sign the poll book because of a physical disability are exempt from this requirement. If this applies to you, tell the election officials that you are unable to sign because of a disability. Election officials will write "exempt" in your signature block.

Hospitalized Voters

Hospitalized voters may appoint an agent to pick up their ballot from the clerk's office. The agent must present the hospitalized voter's photo ID to the clerk's office.

Voter Registration Changes

You can register to vote up until the Friday before the election or on Election Day. You must reside at your address for 28 consecutive days to be eligible to vote, and you may no longer use a corroborating witness as proof of residence. Proof of residence is required when registering less than 20 days before an election, on Election Day, and for first time Wisconsin voters registering by mail. For more information on acceptable proof of residence documents contact your local municipal clerk.

Code of ethics on horizon for Oneida Tribe

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Councilwoman Melinda Danforth knows she has steep hill to climb as she works to develop a code of ethics for the tribe.

Danforth held a series of community information sessions on Tuesday, January 31 to sit down with community members to get their position on what Oneida's code of ethics should look like.

Danforth says there has been ethical issues that needed review but there was nowhere for it to be heard.

"Over the last six years we have seen conflicts but there was no where to go. We know people wanted it reported but how do we get it reported," she said.

Danforth said a wide net is being cast to gather ideas and said the process is in the drafting process.

"We looked at other tribes and their codes of ethics but it's what the community means as ethical not what the organization says. We could utilize some of the processes in our organization's code of ethics but it really is going to be community response."

Danforth admitted getting a consistent definition of ethics will be difficult.

"Some say each member of our community has a different philosophy," she said. "There's a lot of ideas out there but the hard part is finding one that will fit in Oneida."

A jury duty style system has gained momentum and has been well received. It would utilize a pool of volunteers that would try to eliminate conflicts of interest. The larger pool would be narrowed.

According to Danforth, the code of ethics will soon be heard by the GTC.

"We are going to petition the GTC," she said. "We already know the nine of (the OBC) aren't going to agree on the process."

Danforth realizes the development of any code of ethics is daunting but the time is now to complete them.

"It has been a consistent message for a long time," Danforth said. "How do we hold our elected officials to a standard? How do we know they are being honest and how do we build trust?"

Nothing is set in stone and many ideas have been presented and discussed to create a unique code of ethics for a unique community.

To include your ideas and thoughts contact Councilwoman Danforth's office at (920) 869-4478.

Green Bay Elite continues winning tradition

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

The Green Bay Elite All-Stars Cheering team is no stranger to success, having won numerous awards and championships during the team's existence. That winning tradition continued at the 2012 Jamfest Cheer Super Nationals held in Indianapolis; the Green Bay Elite juniors squad won the grand national championship.

The juniors cheer division consists of athletes ages 14 and under. Ages on the Green Bay Elite junior team range from 9 to 14.

The elite cheering team is owned and coached by Charlene and Cherokee Greendeer and is housed on the Oneida Reservation.

Program Director and Head Coach Jordan Marie Morkin commented on the size of the national competition, "The teams that competed were from all over the United States. So we had teams from Maryland, Alabama, which we competed against. There were about 20 to 25 other teams and we won the grand champion award, which means they received the highest score out of all the junior teams that were there."

Competition scoring is based on a standard score sheet and each judge scores the performance individually. Judging panels consist of ten judges per panel and

DPP makes impact on family

Pete Sandoval, right, participated in the Oneida Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP). Through the program, he was able to change his lifestyle, help his wife Julie, left, with her weight loss goals, and be a positive influence on their children's healthy habits.

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Like many people in the Oneida community, Pete Sandoval had the specter of diabetes looming in his future.

"It runs in our family," he said. "Usually, before when I went to my physicals, everything was fine … and (the doctor) would say 'maybe you should think about dieting' and stuff like that, and I was like no, I don't want to." Pete feared dieting would mean giving up the foods he loved. However, it took a diagnosis of pre-diabetes to get his attention.

"I am glad that (the diagnosis) did happen, because I wouldn't have gone to this eating style. This isn't really a diet, it's a lifestyle change," said Pete.

Pete's wife Julie Sandoval agreed a change was needed.

"I would have been throwing up if I ate what he ate," she said. "He'd think nothing of sitting down and eating a whole bag of that salt water taffy."

"You know those chocolate covered cherries? Three boxes easy, sweets was really my downfall." said Pete.

After being diagnosed as potentially developing diabetes, Pete was recommended to attend the Oneida Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP) on November 1, 2011 to learn healthier eating habits and exercise. Since that time, he went from 343 pounds to 311pounds.

"I'm not really depriving myself of anything, I'm just making healthier – we're making healthier choices," said Pete.

Like a stone thrown into a still pond, the changes Pete made to his lifestyle rippled through his entire family.

"We got married a year ago, I weighed 270 the day of the wedding, and I was so sick, and I went into the doctor a few weeks later and they said I had diabetes," said Julie. She wanted Pete to go on a diet with her, but he refused until he was diagnosed as pre-diabetic. Pete started attending DPP and Julie joined Weight Watchers.

"He was really motivated because he did not want to get diabetes. With the food and everything, he couldn't believe that he could actually eat like this. Like, wow, there's a whole different way of eating, so that got me motivated, so I started dieting, too, and then we just starting losing weight together, we started working out together," said Julie. "I've lost 40 pounds since the day I got married." Julie was also able to reduce the medications she took to control her diabetes.

The couple has noticed a change in their four children as well. They bring the children to the Oneida Fitness Center when they work out.

"(Daniel) likes to walk on the track," said Julie of their son.

"The kids are like 'hey, are we going to work out today?' and that helps. It definitely helps when you have someone dieting with you," said Pete.

"It's been a big change for all of us, and it's been for the better. We're looking forward to this spring and summer so we can go camping," said Pete.

"So we can look buff when we go swimming," said Julie.

"Well, I don't know about buff," said Pete.

"We used to drive to the pool," said Julie. "I would put the kids in the car and drive. There was no way I was walking … now we will be able to walk every place instead of taking the car everywhere."

That statement is a far cry from when the couple began exercising.

"When I first started out on a treadmill, I was terrible," said Pete.

"The first time came here, they made me walk around that track … I couldn't even walk around twice, I was out of breath, I couldn't do it," said Julie. Later, she participated in the Just Move It Oneida Jingle Bell Walk in December.

"I went around 20 times, and then I worked out after that, and I was like 'wow,'" she said.

Pete has more goals he's working towards. He's dropped from a 46 pants size to a 44.

"I'm trying to get to 42," he said. "Then I can start wearing some of my pants that I haven't worn in years."

Pete's been motivated by the information and the people in the DPP.

"When we're in class, it's nice because everyone brings something to the table. You can try this, you can try that," he said. "The teachers, too, they bring other stuff in. This is a better alternative than having this."

Pete learned to journal his dietary habits and watch his fat intake.

"I used to go out there and say 'I get 55 grams of fat, I'm getting my 55 grams of fat, I don't care. Oh, I've got two grams left, what can I get for two grams?" he said. "But now I'm lucky if I even get to 55. I think my highest is the 40's."

Friends and family have noticed the change Pete's undergone. He was able to give some advice to a cousin who's now lost 10 pounds.

"He tried some other kind of things, and he was like 'what are you doing?' I said 'oh, I'm just watching my fat and calories. I'm allowed 55, and I can't go over 2000 calories,'" said Pete.

"This program helps, definitely, it definitely works … I'm glad that the tribe actually provided something like this for me," said Pete.

From 1A/Green Bay Elite

there are two panels that sit on a competition floor.

"The goal is to max out the score sheet. So in the category of stunting for example,the high score is a 10 and we received a 9.8. So they scored very well on their score sheets," Morkin said.

As teams move up their respective categories and continue to win they are awarded with a variety items.

"For winning their division they got a red national champion jacket. For the winning their level championship, which is a junior level five, they received a plaque. For winning grand champion they got a leather jacket. So they walked away with three awards," said Morkin.

Jamfest is one of a few major cheering competitions the team participates in during their season, which runs from September to April.

The cheer team will soon be headed to Dallas, Texas for another national competition. The Jamfest competition is the biggest competition the team attends, however the event at Dallas carries more prestige.

The team continues to work hard and perfect their routine for future competitions, but they still enjoy the times they are able to obtain a championship.

"You never know how well you're going to do at a competition because there are so many variables so its always nice to come away with what we did at Jamfest. So we were very excited for them," Morkin said.

Wisconsin man to do jail time for stealing from coffin

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) – A former groundskeeper at a Green Bay-area cemetery will spend one year in jail for stealing a $2,000 guitar from a dead man's casket.

Judge Marc Hammer placed 40-year-old Steven Conard of Bellevue on probation for four years. As a condition of probation, Conard must serve one year in the county jail and perform 80 hours of community service a year for three years.

Conard pleaded no contest to a felony charge of stealing a Fender Telecaster from a musician's casket in September. Cemetery staff members alerted police to the theft.

The Green Bay Press Gazette reports the defense attorney said Conard took the guitar because he was afraid it would be ruined.

Conard apologized to the dead man's relatives, saying he "feels horrible every day for this."

OBC meeting recap, January 25

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Graphic novels and the naming of the new residential facility being built were a few of the highlights of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) meeting held Wednesday, January 25.

Present: Chairman Ed Delgado, Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council members Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Excused: Treasurer Tina Danforth, Council member Melinda J. Danforth

Oaths of Office

The OBC administered the oath of office for the following boards:

Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee - John Hill, Nathan Smith Environmental Resource Board - Nicole Steeber

Pow Wow Committee - Tonya Webster and Floyd Silas Sr.

Anna John Nursing Home Board - Pearl McLester

South Eastern Oneida Tribal Services - Valerie Webster, Carol Wenzel

Oneida Library Board - Carol Elm

Oneida Arts Board - Dawn Walschinski

Oneida Gaming Commission - Barbara Erickson

Oneida Election Board - Karen Coffey, Jay Rassmussen

A proposed graphic novel and movie based on the historic Battle of Big Sandy was moved to the top of the agenda. Presented by producers Joe Callahan and John Scheide, and Loretta Metoxen as technical advisor, the trio was seeking a $125,000 sponsorship for a graphic novel that would depict the role Oneidas played in the War of 1812 and the Battle of Big Sandy in which the British surrendered to the Americans. The graphic novel would be presented at Comic-Con which would potentially lead to production of a movie.

"We've got this serious subject which is going to absolutely work for the movie going public. We've got reality. We've got Native Americans who yet again come to the aid a fledging United States and once again pull the United States out of the fire," said Callahan.

Metoxen compared the request to the amount that's been spent on the Oneida Land Claims for which the OBC is currently pursuing in the US Congress.

"$125,000 is a drop in the bucket compared to the usefulness of this, because this could be … sent to every single Congressman and Senator in terms of the Land Claims push. We've already spent $20 million dollars on the land claims, we has spent that amount, this this is just a smattering of that total amount," she said.

The OBC referred the project to the Finance Committee with a report due back in 30 days.

Resolutions

The OBC ok'd changing the maximum income limits for the Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) from national limits to the Outagamie County limits which are higher and will allow more people to qualify for housing. OHA Executive Director Dale Wheelock explained that the change was needed due to the $.75 cent per hour raise given to tribal employees as mandated by the General Tribal Council (GTC) at the July 4, 2011 Semi-Annual meeting.

"What we saw was there were some people that were sitting right on the edge, and that extra income just pushed them over," said Wheelock.

A Grant application to Administrative for Native Americans Social and Economic Development (ANA SED) Strategies to fund development of Oneida workforce development was approved.

Directors and Managers quarterly reports

Wheelock was granted OBC approval to post a OHA Housing Operations Manager position.

A mandatory meeting for Oneida Business Committee members and Tribally Designated Housing Entity to consider a HUD Section 184 Loan Program was approved for a February date.

A clarification of OBC action taken on Dec. 14, 2011 regarding Pilot Tax agreements for Oneida Housing Authority was accepted as information.

An Increase Housing Executive Director sign off authority to $200,000 was deleted from agenda because it's still under consideration by Finance Committee.

Board, Committee and Commissions

The appointment of Paul Linzmeyer to Oneida Seven Generations Corporation board of directors was deferred for two weeks.

The OBC approved Christine Klimmek to the Finance Committee with one objection.

Melinda K. Danforth was approved for the Anna John Nursing Home Commission, and the OBC approved Kenneth House to 1-year term and John Hill to 2-year term on the Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee.

The OBC deferred reports from South Eastern Oneida Tribal Services, Oneida Arts Board, Oneida Powwow

From 4A/Oneida Business Committee January 25, 2012 meeting recap

Committee and the Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee.

It accepted reports from the Oneida Personnel Commission and Environmental Resource Board.

Standing Committees

The OBC approved the January 20, 2012 Finance Committee e-poll and minutes.

General Tribal Council

The OBC approved a petition from Yvonne Metivier to be part of GTC special meeting to be scheduled in April. The petition is titled "To determine if an Appeals Commissioner violated the Judicial code and dismiss court costs of $2,300."

The source of the petition goes back to the tri-annual elections for OBC held last year. The OHA Executive Director Wheelock sent a memo to OHA tenants to remove campaign material from Tribal property. Metivier filed suit with the Oneida Appeals Commission to keep her campaign signs up. Wheelock soon recinded the memo to OHA residents, however the case went forward in the Appeals Commission. Metivier failed to attend the proceedings and was assessed court costs of $2300. In an appeal filed September 26, Metivier alleges that Appeals Commissioner Stevens should have been recused due to a previous conflict between the two.

Discussion at the OBC meeting revolved around whether the GTC could overturn a decision made by the Appeals Commission under the 1991 GTC resolution that created the Appeals Commission. Chief Council Jo Ann House explained the legal opinion.

"The action requested in the petition is outside the scope of authority of the General Tribal Council because it was fully delegated (to the Appeals Commission). The legal opinion doesn't identify that the petition can't go before the General Tribal Council, simply that the action requested can't be taken,"

OBC Chairman Ed Delgado turned the meeting over to Vice Chairman Greg Matson as the petition is related to a campaign sign placed to support Delgado's run for Chairman last year.

"The General Tribal Council can right a wrong," said Delgado.

New Business/Requests

The OBC approved the activation of $1,671,000 of bond funding for project approval for a Community Events Area and directed Government Services to propose a recreation and sports programming plan to submit to Quality of Life standing committee in 30 days. The project will create two baseball fields and one multi-purpose field for lacrosse, soccer and football.

"I would like to see an emphasis on lacrosse somehow … lacrosse is our game," said Delgado.

Family of the late Anna John spoke out in favor of maintaining her name on the new Oneida Residential Centered Care Center (ORCCC) which is currently under construction and will replace the Anna John Nursing Home.

"She worked very hard to get this nursing home going. She worked nine years without pay, and for an omission like this that I come across of her name not being on this (new) nursing home was really one big oversight," said John's daughter Brenda Cornelius.

Comprehensive Health Division Director Debra Danforth explained that the Anna John Nursing Home Commission had suggested naming the five wings of the ORCC after individuals.

The OBC agreed to submit name through process as Anna John Residence Care Center.

The OBC deferred a proposed name change for Norbert Hill Center to Norbert Hill Tribal Administration Building.

The Committee directed Legislative Affairs to host the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council meeting July 12, 2012 in Oneida.

Travel

The OBC approved travel for Councilwoman Melinda Danforth to attend the Department of Health and Human Services Tribal Consultation Session in Petosky, MI, February 16-17 and to the Office of Head Start Tribal Consultation in Petosky, MK, February 15.

The Committee also ok'd a procedural exception to allow six staff to attend Family and Child Education (FACE) National 2012 conference, Portland, OR, March 5-8, with funding provided by a Title II grant.

Gaming General Manager Louise Cornelius was approved to attend the National Indian Gaming Association (NIGA) Tradeshow and Conference, San Diego, CA, April 1-4.

Additions

The OBC voted to allow the use of the Oneida seal for a plaque to be installed in a new UW-Madison residence hall.

The OBC named Internal Services Division Director Joanie Buckley as manager of Skenandoah building, and approved of an Emergency Closure of Tribal buildings, workplace, compensation Standard Operating Proceedure (SOP).

The Business Committee approved travel for Chairman Delgado and Councilman Vince Delarosa to attend the Wisconsin State of the State Address in Madison on January 25.

Action in open session on items from Executive Session Discussion meeting of Jan. 24, 2012

The OBC approved reports from General Gaming Manager Louise Cornelius, Nathan King of Legislative Affairs, and a New York land claim settlement update from Ed Delgado and Diane House. The OBC directed Chairman's Office to organize a retreat of BC and appropriate staff to determine next steps for a land claim settlement, complete in 30 days. The Committee denied a request to for the Oneida Land Commission to lease New York state lands owned by the Tribe until further direction by the OBC.

The OBC deferred the Chief Counsel report and a Draft Re-Organization Report Recommendations.

Unfinished Business

The OBC deffered redesignating a Hobart strategy team.

New Business/Requests

A report on an Oneida and Green Bay Packers partnership was accepted as information, as was a review of alleged dredging/filling wetland notice.

The OBC approved a OHA FY 2008 acquisition proposal.

Additions

OHA was directed to work with the Treasurer and Chief Financial Officer Larry Barton to develop an SOP for purchasing and bidding by OHA that is aligned with Tribe's overall purchasing processes, due in 30 days.

A letter from Chairman Delgado to the Village Hobart President regarding well permit fee under protest was approved.

The meeting adjourned at 11:39 a.m.

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

Greg Matson
Vice-Chairman

Shekólih,

I would like to begin this article with the definition of Rumor...A report of uncertain origin and accuracy; hearsay.

I guess it depends on the content of a rumor, for example "I heard that young couple is expecting a baby"...that's a good rumor. Now something like "I heard they are having secret meetings," tends to make a person's mind go to a negative thought. These types of actions have been going on within our structure for many years and I feel it is time to put it on paper. These actions of negative rumors can build unnecessary walls between our children, our elders, our divisions and so on. These actions then begin to cause mistrust and you see it show up as we try to create avenues of success within our community. I know many rumors have started regarding the relationship building attempts the Oneida Tribe and surrounding municipals have tried to build and have sometimes resulted in negative outcomes...this is wrong. We as the Oneida Tribe will always welcome the opportunity to build positive relationships with our neighbors. As we continue to do this we also need to recognize the destructive behavior that continues to take place within our own community. Rumors can cause our children to behave in negative ways. Some people call it Bullying. Some rumors cause our adults to live in an atmosphere of confusion or conspiracy ... this is wrong. We need to begin to have those open conversations that lead to complete understanding for all parties involved. Then and only then will we see progress that has a positive outcome for all.

OBC Forum...

Shekólih,

Many times I focus my articles on specific topics about issues or legislation I am working on. The feedback I have received on this approach has been positive; however, I have also received feedback which indicates it sometimes appears as though I am working only on the one-topic items I report about. The reality is quite contrary and for this article, I wanted to share some of the many items I and my Legislative Assistant are working on.

At the federal level, agencies are required by executive (presidential) order to hold consultation sessions with tribal leaders. During the consultation session, tribal leaders have the opportunity to offer solutions, ask questions, express concerns and provided recommendations to federal rules which impact dollars and the services provided to tribal members. I am preparing for and will be attending two Tribal Consultation sessions this month. The first is with the Office of Head Start and the second is with the Department of Health and Human Services relating to healthcare. Both of these consultation sessions are being held in Petoskey, MI.

Melinda Danforth
Councilwoman

I am also working with the tribe's Environmental Department this month to prepare for our meeting with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which is being held in Chicago, IL. Some of the issues we will be covering are federal grants, climate change and other tribal initiatives from across EPA's Region 5 such as mining.

At the state level am continuing to work with the State/Tribal Relations committee on a variety of items concerning tribes as well as with the Religious Practices Advisory Council, who provides recommendations to the state on religious practices issues for incarcerated persons. Just this past week, I had the opportunity to visit Stanley Correctional facility to hear first-hand about the concerns Native inmates have relating to religious practices rights. This visit was a venue for me to gain insight on the facility and available programs.

Here at home, my office is also engaged in many tribal legislative initiatives including work on: finalizing the Judiciary, engaging a work team to revamp the tribe's personnel policies, overseeing the constitutional amendment processing, developing a revised Code of Ethics, working with staff to prepare the 3 GTC referendum questions for GTC consideration, begin review of the proposed Tribal Environmental Resource Protection law and as Chair of the Legislative Operating Committee, continue to provide guidance and facilitate progress as a whole.

In addition to the daily legislative work, I continue to be active in my other liaison assignments as well which includes ONCOA, Trust/Enrollment, Personnel Commission, and Office of Justice Assistance. Internally, I am also a member of the newly formed Business Committee Quality of Life Sub-Committee, and I am active in oversight of the tribe's corporations like 7Gens, Airport Hotel, Oneida Tribal Integrated Enterprise and the Golf Enterprise.

These areas I am involved with are often very technical in nature. I and the tribe as a whole are successful in our legislative endeavors because of the technical expertise Oneida has in its staff and with that, I would like to say thank you to all the areas I work with including the Environmental Department, the Trust and Enrollment Staff, the Comprehensive Health staff, the Legislative Reference Office, the Legislative Affairs Staff, the other Business Committee offices and to all of Oneida's employees, it is you who keep our nation moving forward.

As always, please feel free to share your thoughts and ideas by emailing me at mdanforj@oneidanation.org or by calling my office at 920-869-4461. You can also contact my assistant Lisa Summers at lsummer2@oneidanation.org or 920-869-4478.

Letters & Opinions...

Gov. Walker on the cover?

I am writing in regards to your January 2012 edition. Forgive me if this sounds bitter, but why would you put an article with Scott Walker on the front page? The tribe's boy's basketball team is more deserving of front page news than a visit from Walker. I am sure the only reason he came was to try to get more support knowing many of us want him recalled. It was not because he has concern for the Oneida Nation, but because he is desperate and needs us to believe him and re vote for him (not happening). I am not only Native American, but also a public service worker and Scott Walker has not been a friend to either public workers or Native Americans for that matter. Not only is the budget repair bill bad in itself, but the sneaky way he passed it through throws up red flags. Most everyone knows about the impact that it had, but is everyone aware of the mining permit bill he is trying to pass, to allow corporations to mine on land while toxins fall on the Bad River reservation devastating the environment? Not only is this a bad bill for Natives Americans who live on the Bad River reservation, but again he procedurally was sneaky and tried to pass it .This radical governor has no understanding on what it means to represent the people. He is all about corporate greed. He gives republicans everywhere s bad name. He does not stand for anything moral or ethical, but is all about the 1% wealthy getting wealthier while the constituents of Wisconsin pay the price. I personally want to thank all my fellow Oneida brothers & sisters who signed the recall (I collected a lot more signatures in Oneida than other places I collected signatures). I am most grateful for the support to protect and keep our great State just that. I also encourage everyone to take advantage of Wisconsin's open book laws, and look into what union public service workers make so you would know that we already where paying over 13% for insurance, and we don't have all kinds of fringe benefits that he tried to get the public to perceive. Also you can see right where our hard earned tax dollars went, not to the people of Wisconsin but to out of state corporations and that he is truly nothing but a liar. Native Americans know what true sacrifice is, we also know what it means to help one another and look out for each other, We need to hold our elected officials accountable to do what they were elected to do, represent the people not their own special interests. Hopefully next time you put Scott Walkers hollow eyes and ugly mug in the paper, it will be to celebrate the peoples' victory on getting him out of office.

Sincerely,
Cora L. Bell

Wis. public schools' open enrollment to begin

MADISON, Wis. (AP) – Parents who want to send their children to a public school outside of their home district can submit applications beginning Feb. 6.

Current law gives parents just three weeks to apply for the open enrollment program. But a bill already passed by the Legislature and awaiting Gov. Scott Walker's signature will extend that period to three months.

Department of Public Instruction spokesman Patrick Gasper says DPI is confident the new law will be signed soon, making the application deadline April 30.

Parents can submit applications to send their children to up to three non-resident school districts. They're encouraged to apply online.

Wisconsin Assembly passes contentious mining bill

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) – Assembly Republicans scored a major victory Thursday in their push to help a Florida company dig a huge open-pit mine in Wisconsin's beloved north woods, passing a bill to ease the state's intricate permitting requirements despite conservationists' fears the project will devastate one of the state's most pristine regions.

The legislation has triggered one of the most intense environmental debates Wisconsin has seen in years. The bill's opponents worry the mining operation will unearth dangerous chemicals that will pollute the surrounding watershed and find their way into crystal-clear Lake Superior. But Republicans, looking for ways to deliver on campaign promises to create jobs, say the mine will generate hundreds of new positions and re-energize northwestern Wisconsin's flagging economy.

"This bill has a laser-like focus on job creation and prosperity for generations," Rep. Dan Knodl, R-Germantown, said. "The economic churn will begin almost immediately."

Democrats decried the measure as a corporate giveaway.

"If this is really about jobs, why didn't you write a good bill?" said Rep. Janet Bewley, an Ashland Democrat whose district includes the mine site. "And you're laughing. You're laughing at the people of the north."

The debate dragged on for nearly four-and-a-half hours before the measure passed 59-36 on a party-line vote. It goes next to the state Senate, but exactly what will emerge from that chamber is unclear.

Republicans hold only a one-vote majority in that house, and four GOP senators face potential recall elections this summer. Wary of stirring up any more anti-GOP anger that could ultimately cost them control, Senate Republicans have been treading cautiously on mining. A Senate committee formed in September to study mining issues has met only once, and the committee's chairman, Sen. Neal Kedzie, R-Elkhorn, said Thursday he has questions about whether the Assembly bill goes too far.

"I'm not here to criticize the Assembly bill. They're putting out a product they feel their members are able to support, but that doesn't mean we can't add additional ideas and make the legislation better," Kedzie said.

Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald, R-Juneau, among those targeted for recall, said something will emerge before the legislative session ends in mid-March.

"I don't see us leaving town without a mining bill passed out of the state Senate," Fitzgerald said. "We've got to hustle."

Florida-based Gogebic Taconite wants to dig a miles-long open-pit iron mine in the Penokee Hills just south of Lake Superior and the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa's reservation. The company has promised the mine would create hundreds of new jobs across the economically depressed area and across the state in the Milwaukee area, home to a number of mining equipment manufacturers.

But company officials have put their plans on hold. They want legislators to guarantee a stopping point in the state's complex, open-ended permit application process.

Republicans have spent most of the last year working on legislation for the company. In December they unveiled a sweeping bill that would require the state Department of Natural Resources to approve an application within a year, eliminate contested case hearings - quasi-judicial proceedings that allow people and groups to challenge the DNR's permitting decisions - and bar anyone who isn't directly injured by a mining operation from bringing lawsuits alleging mining law or permit violations.

Conservationists insist the bill would ruin a huge swath of Wisconsin's cherished northwoods. They fear miners would unearth chemicals like mercury and lead that would seep into area trout streams and wetlands and eventually find their way into Lake Superior. The Bad River tribe in particular has raised concerns that mine pollution would wreck their traditional rice beds.

"What will we be leaving to that seventh generation?" tribal elder Joseph Rose said during a news conference Thursday. "Will there be clean water? Will there be fresh air? Will there be birds and animals?"

Gogebic Taconite President Bill Williams has dismissed opponents' criticism as fear-mongering. He said no one has conducted any chemical tests on the mine site's composition. He also said the company needs the Senate to move quickly.

"The rest of us in the real world have deadlines and goals to get the job done," he said. "If it ends in mid-March, we've lost another year. There's going to be a point in time when you've succeeded in chasing out a mining company by using delay tactics."

Debate in the Assembly was tense and messy.

Democrats and their allies are still fuming over Republican Gov. Scott Walker's collective bargaining law, which strips most public workers of almost all their union rights. The plan sparked massive protests at the state Capitol last year, and last week Democrats turned in nearly 2 million signatures to state election officials in hopes of forcing Walker, Lt. Gov. Rebecca Kleefisch, Fitzgerald and the three other senators into recall elections.

Bands of hard-core demonstrators still gather in the Capitol daily to protest a variety of GOP proposals. On Thursday, they turned their wrath on the mining bill. They pounded a drum outside the Assembly chamber. They also gathered in the Assembly's overhead galleries and hurled obscenities under the cover of group coughs and throat-clearing.

Later they draped a banner over a gallery railing that read "Bury the Bill." Someone yelled out "Fascists!"

The display came hours after a handful of demonstrators heckled Walker during his State of the State speech in the same chamber Wednesday evening. Still stinging from the night before, Assembly President Pro Tem Bill Kramer, R-Waukesha, ordered police to remove all the spectators from the galleries.

"Great people," Speaker Jeff Fitzgerald, R-Horicon, Scott Fitzgerald's brother, yelled at a group of protesters. "A lot of class. A lot of class."

Undeterred, the protesters stood outside the chamber and screamed, "Shame! Shame! Shame!"

OCIFS working to make cafeteria food more healthy

By Bill Vervoort
OCIFS Coordinator

How much is our health worth? How much is our children's future worth? These are the questions we must ask ourselves when we allow unhealthy industrialized foods in our schools and other areas where our youth congregate.

These days it is easy for us to be more concerned about our vehicles than we are about our own bodies. We get the oil changed regularly and use high test gasoline in our vehicles, but we still fill our body's fuel tank with junk food and soda's filled with sugar. The worst part is that this behavior is being picked up by our youth, and it shows. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that 33% of all American children, and 50% of minority children, born in the year 2000 will develop diabetes as a result of poor diet and lack of exercise.

That is why the Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems (OCIFS) and the Oneida Nation Schools are partnering up to bring healthy nutritionally dense foods back into our school systems. The schools Food Service Director and the Oneida Nation Farm and Tsyunhehkwa Directors are meeting on a regular basis to discuss getting more fresh locally produced foods into the school system. They are also working on getting more nutrition/food/agriculture education into the schools.

Now, the schools are already doing a fine job in both of these areas. OCIFS just wants to assist on expanding them. They are looking at increasing the amounts and diversification of fresh products that OCIFS already provides the schools. In addition to the present nutrition and agricultural education, the OCIFS members have offered the school access to their Food Series video library.

We are under no illusion. We realize that this is going to take a lot of extra effort for all involved. This is especially true for the kitchen staff that will need to put an increased amount of labor and time in preparing these fresh local foods. However, all parties involved believe that by working together we can create a healthier environment for our youth now and hopefully long into their future.

Officials look for payoff in Native Mob sweep

By Amy Forliti
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS ~ Members of the Native Mob gang have shot rivals in Minneapolis, sold drugs in Duluth, and thrown boiling water in a person's face in Crow Wing County. Authorities say they've also assaulted an informant on the White Earth Indian Reservation and shot up houses from Cass Lake to Mille Lacs.

This week's federal indictment of 24 suspected Native Mob members will disrupt the activity of one of Minnesota's most violent gangs and could bring some communities a reprieve from violence, authorities said. But it likely won't dismantle the organization - which is highly structured, active in prison, and wields power from the Twin Cities to reservations throughout Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

"I consider Native Mob to be one of the most significant and problematic Native American-based gangs in the country, because of their organization ... their influence in so many communities and because of their clear propensity to engage in criminal behavior," said Christopher Grant, a national Native American gang specialist in Rapid City, S.D.

The gang, made up of mostly American Indian men and boys, started in Minneapolis in the 1990s. Some of its original members were connected to another street gang, but broke off and formed their own group, Grant said.

The gang has about 200 members, according to the indictment, and is actively recruiting new ones, including kids.

Inspector Mike Martin, a gang expert with the Minneapolis Police Department, called the Native Mob one of the most violent gangs in Minnesota and said it is feared by other community members. He said the gang has been especially problematic on Indian reservations, which typically have fewer resources to deal with crime.

He said this week's indictment - one of the largest gang-related indictments in Minnesota - will have an impact because of its scope. It contains 47 counts going back several years, and charges all 24 defendants with conspiracy to participate in racketeering, alleging they used violence and intimidation to keep the gang in power.

The indictment paints a picture of a structured, violent gang that held monthly meetings where members encouraged the assault or murder of their enemies, including rival gang members, government witnesses, informants or anyone who showed disrespect.

While there are hundreds of American Indian gangs in the country, Grant said, most are loosely organized and might have as few as five members.

According to the indictment, the Native Mob is different. It's led by a chief and a co-chief, who delegate and encourage criminal acts, maintain discipline, and facilitate meetings. Other leaders are responsible for duties such as responding to external threats or punishing those who disobey the gang's rules and bylaws. And leaders from other regions represent their area at meetings.

New members need a current member to vouch for them, and members identify themselves through gang tattoos, clothing or jewelry. They also refer to each other by gang names or use the term "fam" - short for family, the indictment said.

The indictment shows a clear connection between gang members on the street and its members in prison. About half of the people indicted already were in custody, authorities said, and the indictment prompted a statewide prison lockdown to keep word about arrests from getting out.

US Marshals seek 3 at-large Native Mob members

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) ~ The U.S. Marshals Service in Minnesota sought the public's help Tuesday to track down three fugitive Native Mob gang members but cautioned they may be armed and dangerous.

The three men are among 24 suspected Native Mob members charged last week in a sweeping racketeering indictment. The indictment, one of the largest gang-related indictments in Minnesota, contains 47 counts and alleges the defendants used violence and intimidation to keep the gang in power.

Officials issued wanted posters Tuesday for Wakinyan Wakan McArthur, 33, of Bemidji, Christopher Lee Wuori, 24, of Cass Lake and Eric Lee Bower, 23, of White Earth.

All three are accused of racketeering, weapons violations and drug trafficking.

McArthur, a native of South Dakota, is described as 5 foot, 10 inches tall, 150 pounds, with brown eyes and black hair. On the wanted poster he is pictured wearing glasses and a tattoo is visible on the left side of his neck. He is considered to be a longtime Native Mob leader.

Bower is described as five foot, 10 inches, 200 pounds, with brown eyes and brown hair. Wuori is described as five foot seven, 162 pounds, with green eyes and brown hair. McArthur and Bower are described as American Indian and Wuori is described as white or white Hispanic.

Anyone with any information on the men's whereabouts should call the U.S. Marshals Service tip line at (651) 848-1444.

Bay Port enjoys Native American Cultural Demonstration

Students at Bay Port High School in Howard enjoyed a demonstration of powwow dance styles on Friday, January 27. The event helped the young adults learn more about Native American culture and powwow etiquette.

Oneida Pet Safety Program Brings in a New Partner

The Environmental, Health & Safety Division began providing a new service called the Oneida Pet Safety Program. The goal of this program is to prevent animal bites and the spread of Rabies in humans. The Pet Safety Program is designed to help tribal members vaccinate their pets and to motivate pet owners to spay and neuter their pets. Spaying and neutering are both important bite prevention strategies.

Vaccinations, Spaying, and Neutering Services

The program provides Oneida Retail Cards in exchange for veterinarian services. Pet owners are responsible for taking their pet(s) to a licensed veterinarian in Brown or Outagamie County, Green Bay Animal Hospital (GBAH) and Packerland Veterinary Center (PVC) offer Oneida tribal members and/or employees special discounts. Oneida tribal members and/or employees can bring their pets to the Green Bay Animal Hospital, located at 1518 W. Mason St., on the first Wednesday of every month from 1:00-5:00pm. There is no need to make an appointment for vaccines. You must however make an appointment for spay or neuter services. NOTE: Tribal employees are NOT eligible for the Oneida Retail Card portion of the program, unless they are also tribal members.

You can bring your paperwork to either N7332 Water Circle Place, Little Bear Development Center, or to the Conservation Office, located at N8047 County Rd. U, in Oneida. Pet licenses will be available for purchase at both sites. Licenses for intact pets are $10.00 each. Licenses for spayed or neutered pets are $5.00, and you must provide documentation from a veterinarian that your pet is spayed or neutered.

Green Bay Animal Hospital and Packerland Veterinary Center Offer Special Rates and Appointments for Tribal Members and Tribal Employees

Although you can choose any licensed vet in Brown or Outagamie County, Green Bay Animal Hospital (GBAH) and Packerland Veterinary Center (PVC) offer Oneida tribal members and/or employees special discounts. Oneida tribal members and/or employees can bring their pets to the Green Bay Animal Hospital, located at 1518 W. Mason St., on the first Wednesday of every month from 1:00-5:00pm. There is no need to make an appointment for vaccines. You must however make an appointment for spay or neuter services. NOTE: Tribal employees are NOT eligible for the Oneida Retail Card portion of the program, unless they are also tribal members.

Low Cost Pet Care Equipment Kits – Get Ready for Winter

In order for your pet to maintain its body heat in the winter, it must be able to stay dry and out of the wind. Your pet also needs to have access to drinking water. If your pet spends anytime outdoors, he needs to have a safe and dry shelter. The Pet Safety Program offers medium and large maintenance free doghouses Each doghouse comes with plywood and insulation which is pre-cut to fit each doghouse. This provides additional protection in winter months. EHSD also provides straw bales. Straw provides essential warmth in the winter. Often, outdoor water pails tip over leaving a pet without drinking water. EHSD is offerings pet owners spill proof water bucket systems. Each kit costs $12.00 and are available to tribal members only. You will need to provide your Tribal Identification Card to participate. All proceeds go back into the Pet Safety Program. If you would like to purchase a Low Cost Pet Care Equipment Kit, contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571.

Canine Obedience Class

Another important component to animal bite prevention has to do with pet and pet owner behavior. In May, EHSD hosted its first Canine Obedience Class. The class met twice a week for six weeks. The cost of the class was $25.00 per dog. Owners and pets who showed up for every class, were given a $25.00 Oneida Retail Card for finishing the course successfully.

Some of the comments from the class participants included;

"My dog listens better and gets along with other dogs better."

"Both our dogs are doing better. But I think it's because I learned what to do."

"I know how to handle certain situations better now. I know what to do if we get a different dog too."

"I have learned a more effective way to train my dog and to continue training him."

The next course will begin in March 2012.

Please call EHSD at 920-869-4571 to register for the class. You may be placed on a waiting list.

Welder-Fabricator Apprenticeship Program Introduced at NWTC

Green Bay, WI – The Department of Workforce Development's (DWD) Bureau of Apprenticeship Standards (BAS) and Northeast Wisconsin Technical College (NWTC) introduced the new Welder-Fabricator apprenticeship program today, January 25, in Green Bay. The program is the second apprenticeship developed in partnership with NWTC and the fourth under the federal Sectors Alliance for the Green Economy (SAGE) grant.

"This program showcases the responsiveness and flexibility of apprenticeship in meeting workforce training needs in the green economy," said Lisa Boyd, Administrator for the DWD's Division of Employment and Training. "Welding and fabricating are integral to producing components of renewable energy systems and energy efficient products. The Bureau of Apprenticeship Standards, in partnership with Northeast Wisconsin Technical College, worked jointly to develop this comprehensive apprenticeship program."

The Welder-Fabricator apprenticeship was developed in response to the needs of Wisconsin's heavy manufacturing sector. It offers hands-on learning for two high-demand occupations in heavy manufacturing (welding and fabrication) in a single program. It follows a hybrid model in which apprentices are assessed on-the-job using a combination of time and competencies. The program is structured for four years, or 8,000 hours, including 7,560 hours on-the-job learning and 440 hours of related instruction.

"Northeast Wisconsin Technical College is very excited about our ability to offer the Welder-Fabrication apprenticeship," said Todd A. Kiel, Apprenticeship Manager for NWTC. "We feel it gives us a full range of offerings that provide access to credentials for our constituents. With the increased demand for heavy manufacturing in Northeast Wisconsin, this cannot come at a better time."

The Welder-Fabricator program is the fourth of six new apprenticeship programs to be developed through the $6 million SAGE project grant from the U.S. Department of Labor. SAGE's purpose is to employ short and long-term strategies critical to the greening of Wisconsin's workforce by forming partnerships with businesses, educators and other stakeholders to identify and address labor force needs specific to "green" or clean energy jobs in construction, manufacturing and utility industries.

2012 Journalism Fellowship and Scholarship Opportunities Announced

Seattle, WA – Marguerite Casey Foundation is pleased to announce its Fellowship Program on Poverty. The program, which aims to increase the public's and policymakers' understanding of poverty through journalism, consists of two components: fellowships (2) for professional journalists and scholarships (2) for students of journalism.

Fellows and scholars selected will write at least one in-depth story or a short series from the point of view of families living in poverty and illustrating how language, culture and race influence public attitudes and policy about poor people.

"One in three families in America are working poor; one in six live below the poverty level," said Luz Vega-Marquis, CEO and president of Marguerite Casey Foundation. "Families have the firsthand experience and insight into how public policy, attitudes and systems affect their lives – yet, they are rarely consulted before a policy decision is made.

"Journalists can have a significant impact on changing the public narrative about poor people. It is our hope that these fellowships and scholarships will help put the issues of families and poverty front and center in the public debate and elevate the voices of families in policymaking," said Vega-Marquis.

The 2012 Journalism Fellowship is open to print, electronic and new media journalists with a minimum of three years of professional experience. Each fellow will receive a stipend of $4,000 and up to $1,000 for travel expenses.

The 2012 Journalism Scholarship is open to print, electronic and new media collegiate journalists. Students will not be required to leave their academic studies. Each recipient will receive a stipend of $1,000 and up to $800 for travel expenses.

Applications for the 2012 fellowships and scholarships are due to Marguerite Casey Foundation by February 29, 2012. # Menominee Tribal Leaders encourage student participation

Menominee area students watched the "State of Indian Nations" with members of the Menominee Tribal Legislature on January 26.

Keshena, WI – The Menominee Tribal Legislature recently hosted the "Tribal Leaders of Today & Tomorrow" event as a way to encourage youth and adult student participation in Tribal Government. Tribal Vice-Chairwoman, Myrna Warrington, Legislator Craig Corn, and students from surrounding secondary and post-secondary schools participated in the Tribe's watch party by viewing the "State of Indian Nations" address live at the Tribal Office Boardroom, Keshena, WI.

The "State of Indian Nations" address was given by National Congress of American Indians President (NCAI), Jefferson Keel, in Washington, D.C on January 26, 2012. Three students from Keshena Primary school, Menominee Indian Middle School, Menominee Indian High School, Menominee Tribal School, and College Menominee Nation participated in the event with Menominee Tribal Legislative members. The attendees experience afforded them the opportunity to hear about important issues that affect Indian Country such as, Federal Trust Responsibility, Economic Development, Native Vote and NCAI initiatives to address Violence Against Native Women, Native Class Act and protecting the Indian budget to name a few. President Keel's address was both motivating and inspiring, as he laid the foundation for continued Tribal involvement in matters that affect Indian Country. The Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin also received recognition during the live broadcast from the NCAI Executive Director Jacqueline Johnson –Pata.

The event concluded with discussion between Tribal Legislators and the student body regarding issues of local importance. The attendee's asked questions regarding Tribal Government procedure for new initiatives, the creation of economic development and housing opportunity, as well as the Legislator's favorite sports teams. The conversations continued over lunch, and wrapped up with a group photo. This was a great opportunity for the students to get acquainted with current events of Tribal importance, as well as their Tribal Leaders and Legislative facilities. The Legislators shared pieces of Menominee history, personal stories, and stressed the importance of kindness, education and participation in Tribal Government. This event was a great success, and a good time for both today's leaders and the accomplished students full of potential; our leaders of tomorrow.

NCAI Response to State of the Union – "Free Our Economies"

2012 State of Indian Nations to focus on Election Year and Tribal Economies

Washington, DC – The leading organization representing tribal governments and Native Americans has released an initial response to the State of the Union and will outline the State of Indian Nations in a speech this Thursday. In a nationally webcast and radio address, the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) will respond to President Obama's State of the Union and chart a path for tribes to play a vital role in building America's 21st century economy. The speech will be delivered by the President of NCAI Jefferson Keel, Lt. Governor of the Chickasaw Nation. Republican Congressman Tom Cole (OK) an enrolled member the Chickasaw Nation, will deliver the Congressional response to the State of Indian Nations.

"President Obama outlined a clear path for the economic future of America in the State of the Union – we support these efforts as Indian Country is integral to revitalizing the American economy. We call on the Administration and Congress to free our economies and create a more flexible government that honors the ability of Tribal Nations to determine our own future," said Jefferson Keel, President of NCAI. "Members of both parties in the House and Senate have shown that issues affecting tribes are nonpartisan. The President has shown outstanding support of tribes. The time to act is now. In our national address we will outline legislation and action the federal government can take right now, to make Indian Country even stronger."

According to the 2010 Census, American Indians and Alaska Natives represent 5.2 Million people in the United States, 1.7% of the U.S. population. There are currently 566 federally recognized tribal nations in the United States and an estimated 10% of the natural resources located within the United States are on tribal lands.

President Obama referenced Native Americans in the State of the Union by highlighting the military service of Natives. Currently over 24,000 active duty American Indians and Alaska Natives serve in the Armed Forces – representing the highest service per capita of any other group. At the State of Indian Nations, President Keel will be introduced by a tribal citizen and an active duty member of the U.S. Marine Corps.

School Salad Bar offer great tastes and healthy options

Oneida High School students and faculty have healthy lunch options in the cafeteria's salad bar.

Submitted by Susan Higgs, RD, CD,
WIC/Nutrition Manager, Oneida Community Health Center

The Oneida Nation schools are fortunate to have salad bars, not all schools do! Students and staff are able to make selections each day or receive fruits and vegetables as part of the regular menu.

School Salad Bars Are:

- An easy and delicious way to eat healthfully.
- Offer a variety of good-for- you and great tasting fruits and vegetables.
- A great way to help make "half" of what you eat each day, fruits and veggies.
- An easy way to try a new or different form of fruits or vegetables, whether they are fresh, frozen, canned or dried.
- Helpful in meeting your daily requirements of fruits and vegetables.
- An easy way to start or keep a healthy habit.

Why are fruits and vegetables so important?

- They are high in vitamins, minerals, antioxidants, and fiber.
- Give you energy with less calories; compared to chips and soda.
- Help you achieve a healthy weight.
- Fruits and vegetables are low in fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, and sodium; and help to prevent heart disease and high blood pressure.
- The fiber helps:
- You feel full longer.
- Aids in digestion.
- Prevents spikes in blood sugar.
- Decreases cholesterol by binding to the "bad" cholesterol and removing it from the body.

The 2010 Dietary Guidelines for Americans new My Plate initiative encourages all of us to make half your plate fruits and vegetables. So parents and caregivers can also be role-models to kids at home, by offering fruits and vegetables at meals and eating them as a family.

Om—buds —What?

The name, or term, "Ombudsman" (om-budz-man) comes from the Swedish language and basically means "representative" or "agent". In the early 1800's the Swedish began to use the term to define or describe an identified individual who had the responsibility and authority to work to safeguard the rights of the citizens through an established supervisory agency that functioned independently of the executive (government officials and/or management powers).

The Ombudsman was an individual with a significant amount of independence which meant that they did not function under the control of the government. The Ombudsman was there to represent the interests of the 'public' by investigating, addressing, and working to resolve complaints reported by individuals or groups. The resolve of complaints often came in the form of recommendations, mediation between parties, and open communication with the public. This would often include the identification of systemic issues that were leading to poor service or a breach of people's rights with suggestions/recommendations of ways in which these systemic issues could be corrected or improved upon.

The Ombudsman typically did not have the power to sanction or reprimand. The purpose of the Ombudsman was to provide a "check" on activity and provide an outside, impartial, and neutral assessment of the matter. The Ombudsman had the responsibility to investigate/assess matters brought to them, identify any sort of violation, identify potential ways in which to resolve or further address the matter, offer recommendations for 'peaceful' or informal resolution, and produce or publish a report of the recommendations for change. Any further action for more formal resolution would be dependent upon the laws and existing policies related to the matter and the responsibility of the party with the complaint.

The roles and functions of an Ombudsman have evolved and grown since that time. The use of Ombudsmen has spread into many countries and evolved to function in a variety of disciplines. This evolution has brought the use of Ombudsmen into the areas of government and municipalities, education, corporations, large and small business, and service industries. This expansion of the use of Ombudsmen has also created some very distinct 'types' of Ombudsmen with specific roles and sometimes areas of specialization. The different types of Ombudsmen are identified as the Classical Ombudsman (including Legislative and Executive), the Organizational Ombudsman, and the Advocacy Ombudsman.

This article is the first in a series intended to provide information and assist in the understanding of the Oneida Ombudsman. The next article from the Oneida Ombudsman will provide information about the different types of Ombudsmen and identify the type of Ombudsman Oneida currently has.

Keep your family safe with smoke alarms

Submitted by Jennifer Jordan
M.Ed., CHES, HHS
Injury Prevention Coordinator, Environmental Health and Safety Division

Every year, more than 3,000 people die in home fires in the United States; most of whom are in homes without a working smoke alarm. To prevent these deaths, the U.S. Fire Administration (USFA), a division of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is sponsoring a nationwide Install. Inspect. Protect. Campaign designed to raise awareness about how working, properly installed smoke alarms can lower a person's chances of dying in a fire.

The USFA's Install. Inspect. Protect. Campaign is aimed at encouraging Americans to practice fire safety by

1) installing and maintaining smoke alarms and residential fire sprinklers, which can help save the lives of residents and fire fighters
2) practicing fire escape plans, and
3) performing a home safety walk-through to remove fire hazards from the home. Install. Inspect. Protect. also recognizes firefighters and stresses the fact that the children of firefighters want their fathers and mothers to come home safely.

When both smoke alarms and fire sprinklers are present in a home, the risk of dying in a fire is reduced by 82 percent, when compared to a residence without either. According to the National Fire Protection Association, between 2003-2006, almost two-thirds of home fire deaths resulted from fires in homes with no smoke alarms or no working smoke alarms.

The USFA offers a few helpful tips on smoke alarms and sprinklers:

- Place properly installed and maintained smoke alarms both inside and outside of sleeping areas and on every level of your home.
- Get smoke alarms that can sound fast. The U.S. Fire Administration recommends that every residence and place where people sleep be equipped with both ionization (heat-detecting) and photoelectric (light detecting) smoke alarms or dual sensor smoke alarms, which contain both ionization and photoelectric smoke sensors.
- Test smoke alarms monthly and change alkaline batteries at least once every year, or as instructed. You can use a date you already know, like your birthday or when you change your clocks as a reminder.
- If possible, install residential fire sprinklers in your home.
- Avoid painting or covering the fire sprinkler, because that will affect the sensitivity to heat.

For more information on the Install. Inspect. Protect. Campaign and other fire prevention information, please visit www.usfa.dhs.gov/smokealarms. Remember to Install. Inspect. Protect…Smoke Alarms Save Lives. Individuals could also call Jennifer Jordan with any questions at 920-869-4520 or can email jjordan4@oneidanation.org

Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD)

December 21st is known as "The Winter Solstice" or the official first day of winter. It is marked also as the shortest day of the year – that is – where sun light has reached its lowest point on the solar calendar. Many cultures around the world recognize and celebrate the completion of this major sun cycle, but here in Oneida, the long winter months with less and less day light can lead to a syndrome known as Seasonal Affective Disorder or SAD.

Symptoms of SAD are often referred to as the "Winter Blues", but can vary from mild to severe where sufferers experience depression, fatigue, weight gain, anxiety, to worst case scenarios of suicidal thoughts. Women will often suffer from symptoms of SAD, more so than their male counterparts. There are some things that you can do to treat symptoms of SAD if/when you recognize them. Note: check with your physician to determine your health care needs.

- To lift the spirits and increase energy, herbal teas may provide effective results. To encourage a feeling of well-being, try the TsyunhehkwΛ proprietary blend of herbs in the SPIRIT LIFTER tea (Ingredients: Lemon Balm, Lavender Flower, Rose Petals, Spearmint, St. John's Wort, Marjoram)
- As an alternative to consuming herbal teas, you can also reap their benefits through aromatherapy with a variety of essential oils. In aromatherapy, essential oils are absorbed into the body through the skin or by smell. This sends a message to the brain to release the feel-good hormones. The primary aromatherapy methods include inhalation, vaporization, bathing, massage, and misters. Aromatherapy can be as simple as adding a few drops of your chosen essential oil to a hot bath.

Essential oils that may help brighten your mood by providing a general uplifting and "sunny effect" are: Bergamot, Orange, Grapefruit, & Geranium Rose.

- Light therapy has also explored with good results for people experiencing this condition.
- Bach Flower Essence Mustard, helps with sudden depression, like a dark cloud over casting everything & destroying normal cheerfulness and unable to shake it off. The positive potential of Mustard is the return of joy, supported by inner peace & stability.
- Get outside. Exercise is important in releasing the feel good hormones and being outdoors on a sunny day provides much needed light. Can't get outside- turn on some music and dance by a sunny window.
- Eat right and take your vitamins, especially D3 & Omega 3. It is common to crave starchy-high sugar foods during this time, however , your mood will be more stable if you incorporate things like nuts, avocados, whole-grains, salmon, & eggs.

Twenty Years of Oneida Representation in Milwaukee

By Mark W. Powless

In January of 1992 a group of volunteer Oneida Tribal members, residing in southeast Wisconsin, officially organized as the Oneida Indian Council of Southeastern Wisconsin. The original Board members, elected by the general membership, were Chairperson Alberta Metoxen, Vice-Chair Madelyn Genskow, Secretary Fred Muscavitch, and Treasurer Roy Huff. Additional members included Kim Reyes, Jim Cooper, James Zakhar, and Ester Olszewski. The budget for their first year of operation was $21,000.

The Oneida Indian Council focused on improving conditions for elderly and youth as well as act as a referral source for Oneida services. They also coordinated events such as Bingo trips for the elderly, graduation banquets, and a learning center. Ultimately, the volunteer work of the council placed a full-time staff person in a suite rented on Milwaukee's Mitchell Street and established official Oneida Tribal representation in Milwaukee.

The actions of the Oneida Indian Council sprouted and grew into Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS). Today, SEOTS focuses on improving the well-being of our elderly and youth, connects Tribal members to Oneida and Milwaukee-area services, offers cultural education, and coordinates community gatherings. SEOTS currently leases a 7,000 square foot facility to provide Tribal community offerings. Two full-time staff and two part-time staff coordinate all activities with the assistance of many volunteers.

Helping to guide SEOTS into the future is the SEOTS Board. Current members are Chairperson Jackie Zalim, Vice-Chair Andraea Gaffney, Secretary Pamela Ninham, Ed Pero, Valerie Webster, Carol Wenzel, and Chris Luttrell. Their activities in the community, working with the Tribe, and professional experience allow them to provide advice and direction for all aspects of the SEOTS operation. As the eyes and ears of the community, they have been instrumental in securing a new 14 passenger shuttle, assisting in the search process for a new and permanent home for SEOTS, fund raising for the new SEOTS GED Program, plus donating time and skills for SEOTS events.

Overall, the SEOTS mission is strengthening our cultural connection and providing services and programs to enhance the wellbeing of On^yote?aka in southeastern Wisconsin. During the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 6:00pm the SEOTS Board meets to ensure that we are achieving our mission. All Tribal members are encouraged to attend Board meetings and offer feedback on any aspects of the SEOTS operation.

Yawʌko to Madelyn Genskow for creating a binder of documents and photos that track the development and early efforts of the Oneida Indian Council. Tribal members are encouraged to visit SEOTS to look at the documents and photos.

Transit donates vehicle to Elderly Services

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A new vehicle will be making work around the Elderly Services Complex a little easier. The truck, setup with a snow plow, will be used to assist with chores.

"The vehicle will be used to serve elders in the area for snow plowing, yard maintenance and grass cutting," said Florence Petri, Program Director at Oneida Tribe Elder Services.

The vehicle was donated to Elderly Services by the Oneida Public Transit (OPT) through a memorandum of agreement between the two departments in which OPT will transport Elder Services clients to their activities, meals, and appointments.

The vehicle was purchased using funds from the Wisconsin Department of Transportation utilizing American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds.

According to Brandon Cooper, Interim Public Transit Manager (Director), the elder population makes up approximately 30 percent of OPT's ridership.

According to Treasurer Patty Hoeft the expected cost to hold the meeting at the new location will range from $7,000 to $10,000. The location will address the need for more meeting space as it will be able to house 4,000 people while the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center held about 2,500. Parking would be free but the committee did not have an answer when they were questioned about the $100 meeting stipend being subject to Wisconsin sales tax because it will be earned off the reservation.

Ellis got start with Indian Preference

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Mirac Ellis has worked 11 years in the construction trade with Northeast Asphalt, Inc.

Mirac Ellis found his niche when he applied to lay asphalt through the Indian Preference Program eleven years ago, though he didn't know it at the time.

"For maybe a week straight we graded (asphalt), and it was a lot of shoveling, sweeping, sticking by the grader … running to get small things. It was 15 hours days, I was like 'this is crazy,'" he said.

Ellis had been laid off at Carver Yachts when a friend suggested he go see Marj Stevens at Indian Preference in Oneida.

"I owe everything to her. She opened the door, and I walked through," he said.

He started in late August in 2000 with Northeast Asphalt, Inc.

"It was about 10 minutes into it when I first saw the asphalt being laid, and was like 'what did I get myself into here?' It was hot, the guys were screaming, yelling, working … I just wanted to set the shovel down and say I think I had enough," he said. "It was two days out in the sun, that's like 30 hours of sunlight, and I come back and I'm a lobster. Unreal, but it was cool because all the heavy equipment, all the machines were buzzing by, things were getting done. … I feel like I'm a part of something."

Dealing with the heat and the long hours were the biggest obstacles at first.

"There really isn't much to think about when you've got 10 hours in the sun. You're thinking about shade and water and swimming," said Ellis. "I just stuck with it."

He found he needed to work harder if he wanted to stay on the crew. A foreman gave him some advice.

"'Some of the guys like what they see in you, and there's a few guys who don't want you around.' I was like 'what do I do?' He said 'you got a good pace, step it up like two notches, ask more questions, be more alert, take charge of things a little more. You're the bottom man right now, but we need you. We need a guy like you, you're young, you're healthy, you've got a good back.' So I felt like I got yelled at, so I took it to heart," he said.

Ellis stepped up his pace and was hired full time.

"After I got that first check, I couldn't believe what I accomplished," he said.

Since then, Ellis has undergone extensive training ranging from hazardous materials (Hazmat) certification to getting a Commercial Driver's License (CDL) and is an operating engineer.

"Some days are just horrible, and other days are like wow, I can't believe I'm making money, this is easy," he said.

Ellis, now married with an infant son, finds the long summer days to be a strain on his family life.

"You're always away from your family though for that summer. When rain comes, you really appreciate it," he said.

His wife Margaret stated they make the best of their time together.

"The summers can get hard when you have to pick up on everything because he's always gone, but you don't have to worry about anything because he makes good money, and he makes good money on unemployment in the winter, and we get to have a lot of time together in the winter with his family, so it goes from one extreme to the next," she said. "He can step up when something big happens on site or anywhere else without hesitation. He's kind of like my modern day hero, my Superman."

While Ellis recommends going to college before going into construction, he enjoys being able to provide for his family.

"It makes a man out of you, it teaches you discipline, and you see a lot and know a lot, you can learn a lot and meet a lot of good people, there's a lot of good guys out there. They're all family men, they all want to go home on Saturdays, too, but this type of work, if you're in the family life and you got sports, this ain't the job for you. If you ice fish, then yeah, this is the job for you because you ain't got nothing to do in the winter time," said Ellis.

Currently, Indian Preference is looking for qualified carpenters, painters, drywall, framing, concrete, operators, and journeymen in the building trades. If interested, contact Marj Stevens at 920-496-5316 to make an appointment.

Wis. tribes complain to feds about mining bill

HURLEY, Wis. (AP) ~ A federal agency says it's looking into whether Wisconsin violated treaty rights by not consulting with tribal governments that might be affected by a state mining bill.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs says it's conducting an inquiry after at least one tribal government asked it to get involved.

The contentious mining bill would streamline the state's complex mine-permitting process. Republicans hope the bill will kick-start plans for an iron mine just south of Lake Superior.

A Wisconsin Public Radio report says officials from the Lac du Flambeau, Red Cliff, Bad River and Menominee tribes claim the lawmaking process ignored treaty rights.

Bureau spokeswoman Nedra Darling says the agency is acting on a 2009 executive order that federal officials consult with tribal governments on matters that involve the tribes.

Some SD foster care kids aged out of system

By Kayla Gahagan
The Rapid City Journal

Armando Hernandez was just a child when he and his siblings searched their home for alcohol their mother stashed. And when they found it, they poured it down the drain and threw the bottles out.

It was the beginning of a childhood marred by his mother's alcoholism, a father in and out of the picture, years of bouncing from one foster family to another and the weighty responsibility of caring for his younger siblings _ who experienced the same disappointments he did each day.

"Mom gave us empty promises, and it was one let down after another," he said.

Hernandez, now 20, is one of hundreds of young adults in South Dakota, and thousands across America, who have spent their teenage years in foster care, not been adopted, and have aged out of the system. Despite private local efforts as well as state and federal resources aimed at helping them transition into adulthood, without the traditional support of a family, statistics show that the odds are stacked against them.

According to the Wendy's Wonderful Kids Program, foster children who are not adopted have poorer educational outcomes, only 61 percent are employed, 33 percent will end up homeless, and they are reported to have more mental health issues.

Children who have been in the foster care system and were adopted are more likely to complete high school and attend college, more likely to be employed and earn an adequate income, and less likely to become teen parents.

According to the state Department of Social Services, each month there are about 1,000 children and teenagers in foster care in South Dakota, which includes public, private and tribal agencies. As of May, 763 were in family foster care. During the past year, 46 aged out of the system.

Nationwide, an estimated 30,000 teenagers age out of the foster care system each year. According to the Child Welfare League of America, 25 percent become homeless, 56 percent are unemployed, and 27 percent of male children end up in jail.

Hernandez is betting he can beat the odds.

"Sometimes I wish I had gotten adopted," he said. "Sometimes I think that it would have made it easier. I wouldn't have had to grow up so fast."

Now that he's out on his own, his thoughts have changed.

"Now, I'm glad I'm here."

Hernandez has been in so many foster care homes, they have started to blur together.

"I've moved to so many places, it doesn't even matter where I go," he said.

His father was arrested for selling drugs and deported to Mexico when Hernandez was little and his mother suffered from a debilitating disease, alcoholism and depression.

He is the third oldest of four children, and one bright spot of his childhood was the birth of his sister Angel. Her childhood though, wasn't fair either, he said.

"She had to grow up so fast," he said. "She wasn't able to have a proper childhood."

Their mother didn't have a job and collected money from the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe.

"Sometimes, she would wake up and leave all day," he said.

She was arrested often, and Hernandez remembers hiding in the house so social services representatives wouldn't take them from the home while she was gone.

"They would send us to a shelter when she got arrested," he said.

Their house was a mess - cockroaches, no clean clothes and little food.

But his experiences in foster care were sometimes just as confusing, he said. One of the families treated them well, took them boating and cooked them healthy meals. But it wasn't permanent, and that was always in the back of his mind.

"We didn't know what to think," he said. "We would sit down for meals, and I didn't understand. We tried not to get comfortable. We wouldn't let ourselves get attached."

The next 10 years of his life were spent mostly in foster care with multiple families. His mother's health deteriorated and she eventually died when he was 16.

"Her dying was pretty bad for us," he said. "We felt alone."

One of the foster families kept Hernandez and his sister for six years.

"We let our guard down and opened up to them," he said. "It was a shock when we had to leave."

Some of the families, he said, probably didn't adopt them because they continued to foster other children, had their own children, or had marital problems.

"Who's going to take a 17-year-old boy?" he said.

It's no secret that teenagers come with a lot of challenges, said Daniele Dosche, who fostered three children with her husband, Curt, before adopting them.

Curt agreed and said he can understand the hesitation of foster families to foster, or adopt teens.

It is common for foster families to want to foster children younger than their own because of a concern about safety issues. During a training course required for foster parents, the couple remembers the vivid warnings about teens.

"They could steal cars, start fires, commit violence against your pets," Daniele said. "They want you to go in with your eyes wide open."

Seventeen-year-old Marissa Salmon and her twin sister, Alyssa, were taken out of their home last year and put in foster care before living with a relative for almost a year. Their two young siblings were also taken out of the home.

The experience was painful, enough that they will avoid the foster system at all costs. The family they stayed with initially had alarms on the doors, Marissa said. The first night, their younger brother had a nightmare and woke up screaming.

In some cases, foster kids have reportedly been taken from alcoholic homes, only to be placed in alcoholic or abusive foster homes.

He eventually got connected with Stepping Stones in Rapid City, a program, sponsored by Lutheran Social Services that helps the students get on their feet when they find themselves without a home or a foster home.

Students can be in the program from ages 16 to 20, said Sheila Johnson, Stepping Stones coordinator.

"We help them find employment and help them prepare for post-secondary education or the military," she said.

They also help the teens apply for grants for school and sign up for the state's Supplemental Nutritional Assistance Program. The students are responsible for $187 a month in rent. The program provides youth who are in need of independent living skills a safe environment to learn those skills, Johnson said.

It's also about helping them achieve goals, she added.

"They make a plan, and they come up with their dream," she said.

The Air Force and Me

I graduated from Seymour High School when I was seventeen years old. I had written two papers for my class advisor on what I planned to pursue after graduation. One paper was on farming and the other was on the U. S. Air Force. I desperately wanted to take agricultural classes (instead of Office Practice), so I invited the Ag teacher and Mr. Patchett, the principal out to our farm to explain to them that I knew enough about the operation to pursue agriculture. The end result was that they would not allow me to attend Agriculture classes because only farm boys were in those classes and they discussed animal husbandry, even though I may have known as much or more than any of them. That door was closed. Dad and Mom would not sign for me to enlist in the Air Force. The day after my eighteenth birthday, I signed up. The recruiters would have sent me to an Army base in North Carolina immediately, but I opted to wait for the quota for the Air Force in January.

I raised my hand to defend my country on January 2, 1951 in Milwaukee. In no time, I found myself on a troop train headed for San Antonio, Texas. The troops and I embarked from the train in St. Louis, Missouri to get a meal. I guess I was one of the troops. That was my very first experience with White and Colored drinking fountains and bathroom facilities. Since never having left the farm or Wisconsin, this revelation was a little shocking to me. I kept my eyes wide open for all the new things I would encounter.

We were unloaded into an Army truck in San Antonio, Texas and whisked away to the Base. I was given my military number to remember. That number is never forgotten. Then the orders started coming. Attention, parade rest, dress right dress, about face and all the rest of them—fast and furious. Sergeant Diacidus still sticks with me. She could out shout any lumberman. After arriving at Kelly Air Force Base (attached to Lackland Air Force Base), the marching began. Marching, marching, marching--to the Mess Hall, to the Gym, to a dance and just marching.

We experienced a freak winter storm there in the far south, complete with snow and a lot of sleet. The Korean War was accelerating, so there were thousands of men in tents at the time—not enough barracks to house them. Some were dying from pneumonia and a few committed suicide by jumping from the water towers. A Congressional investigation of this emergency situation was called for.

I was fortunate because I lived in a two story wooden barracks. However, there were just two by fours in the interior with no insulation and no heat. I piled my heavy winter coat and other heavy clothing on my bunk to ward off the cold. One morning, about 4:30 A.M., a huge herd of horses came galloping through our area. That was a surprise.

We all went through an assembly line to get shots. I think everybody got five shots and a vaccination. Men and women were lined up together for this procedure. I saw strong young men keel over before the shots were administered. That night, ambulances were running back and forth to our area because some of the women had severe reactions.

My barracks was the first in a line of barracks directly across from the landing strip at Lackland. We could watch the carriers—plane after plane—bringing in the wounded. One time, a plane could not release one of the landing gear, so it had to circle the strip until it used up most of the fuel. The crews spread foam to soften the landing and prevent a fire. I witnessed the whole scene. The plane landed successfully.

Basic training only lasted seven weeks for me. I was one of the first ones to be shipped out to a school.

I got a pass to go to San Antonio for one day after Basic. I went to see the Alamo. I went to an opera, of all things. The opera was Aida. And I went to a Smorgasbord—never heard of that before. It was like a huge buffet, with all kinds of food I had never eaten before. It was very good. While I was walking around the city, a lot of little boys wanted to keep polishing my shoes, whether I wanted them to or not.

Census Race – Many resist census race labels

By Hope Yen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON – When the 2010 census asked people to classify themselves by race, more than 21.7 million - at least 1 in 14 - went beyond the standard labels and wrote in such terms as "Arab," "Haitian," "Mexican" and "multiracial."

The unpublished data, the broadest tally to date of such write-in responses, are a sign of a diversifying America that's wrestling with changing notions of race.

The figures show most of the write-in respondents are multiracial Americans or Hispanics, many of whom don't believe they fit within the four government-defined categories of race: white, black, Asian/Pacific Islander or American Indian/Alaska Native. Because Hispanic is defined as an ethnicity and not a race, some 18 million Latinos used the "some other race" category to establish a Hispanic racial identity.

"I have my Mexican experience, my white experience but I also have a third identity if you will that transcends the two, a mixed experience," said Thomas Lopez, 39, a write-in respondent from Los Angeles. "For some multiracial Americans, it is not simply being two things, but an understanding and appreciation of what it means to be mixed."

Lopez, 39, the son of a Mexican-American father and a German-Polish mother, has been checking multiple race boxes since the Census Bureau first offered the option in 2000. Marking off the categories of Hispanic-Mexican ethnicity, "other" Hispanic ethnicity and a non-Hispanic white race, Lopez opted in 2010 to go even further. He checked "some other race" and scribbled in a response: "multiracial."

More than three million write-ins came from white and black Americans who appear to have found the standard race categories insufficient. They include Arabs, Iranians and Middle Easterners, who don't fully view themselves as "white" and have lobbied in the past to be a separate race category. They are also Italians, Germans, Haitians and Jamaicans who consider ancestry a core part of who they are.

Online Dating Services May Promise "Love in the Air," but be Aware

Madison, WI – Valentine's Day is around the corner and love is in the air, but if you are searching online for a potential mate, know that scammers may be on the same sites searching for you…and your money.

"The popularity of online dating sites has led to a rise in so-called 'sweetheart scams' where crooks seek out victims when they are at their most vulnerable," said Sandy Chalmers, Division Administrator for Trade and Consumer Protection. "For singles on the search for love, emotions are high and can cloud better judgment. Scammers know this scenario creates an excellent opportunity to manipulate victims into handing over money and personal information."

Sweetheart scams take on a number of forms, but most involve scammers starting relationships online under fake profiles, building the trust of the victims and then using a "sob story" to convince the victims to send them money or personal information. The money is often requested as a wire transfer to another country.

Be on the lookout for a scam if your online love interest:

- asks you to leave the dating site and communicate by personal email or instant messages
- professes love for you in a heartbeat
- requests that you send personal information including social security, bank account or credit card numbers
- claims to be from the U.S., but is "traveling" or "working overseas" right now
- makes plans to visit, but cancels the trip because of a last-minute medical, financial or family emergency
- asks you to send money by wire transfer to pay for airfare, visas, government documents or to help a family member in distress. Never wire money to someone you do not know or have not met in person. Wiring money is like sending cash – once it is gone, you cannot get it back.

"Regardless of the length of your relationship or the story the other party is giving you, if your online partner starts requesting money, it should send up a red flag that you are being drawn into a scam," added Chalmers.

OBC Forum...

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

I hope this New Year has started off on a good foot for you and your family. My office has been steadily working towards the pursuit of strengthening policies and putting in many hours on projects that can benefit the membership.

As I took my seat as a Councilman, I laid out a landscape of projected policy work to pursue a policy agenda poised around advancing the interest of the Oneida people. To this end, I have already authored and released several comprehensive memos which probed at policy issues and pursued discussions at various internal levels. It is important that we, as a tribe, start thinking more critically about certain policy matters and start pursuing a more reasoned governing course. This is why I will continue to actively push for these important discussions even though they may be controversial.

PER CAPITA

I wanted to note, in my last Kalihwisaks article I took the initiative to present an optional per capita proposal in the attempt to prompt some dialogue around addressing the fast approaching expiration of the current per capita plan. I have heard from many tribal members, some in support of a new approach towards per capita and some not in support. First, it is encouraging to know so many people are keeping informed by reading the Kalihwisaks and are becoming involved in voicing their opinions on policy proposals. Secondly, I have heard the points that have been raised, some excellent ideas have been pointed out.

It is worth noting, I was advancing in one part of my per capita proposal a plan I heard from a tribal member whom lives over 130 miles from Oneida. This particular member drives to all of the GTC meetings so this was not a proposal that came from someone whom lives locally. It was the idea of someone who puts in a great effort (drives 260 miles round trip) to make it to all the meetings. Nonetheless, I understand some people would prefer the per capita plan to remain structured as it is.

Part of the basis of my per capita proposal was to try and build in some cost savings under a new per capita plan. In working the numbers, I have found there is a considerable savings opportunity for the tribe. Moreover, per capita distributions, as laid out in my plan, reflect a proposed annual distribution of $15,117,403. The actual FY2012 annual per-capita and stipend budget cost this year alone is $25,932,800. Under my proposal we can realize a savings of $10,815,397 annually.

I would note the idea around the use of these savings under my proposal is many. First, we need to exercise a concentrated effort to build more housing on the reservation. The housing needs here are historic and well documented. Secondly, over the last few years there is an array of services which have been eliminated which need to be restored. Lastly, I would note, we have so many homeless and unemployed Oneidas and we need to try and find creative ways to foster program activity where we may be able to elevate some of these folks whom are willing to work hard.

The truth is, the tribe is in a precarious financial position. For example, although we have a good credit rating and we pay all our bills, we are treading into some murky waters with some built in carrying costs. Fringe and indirect are the heaviest carrying costs. In fact, going into the next (2013) budget cycle we will be facing a projected $10,000,000 million dollar plus deficit. What we are trying to exercise is a delicate balancing act here, where we contain some cost without having to choke-off services or reduce personnel numbers.

So, the OBC and the membership will undoubtedly have to make some tough decisions later this year. Hopefully those who have thoughts on this issue will be able to attend the GTC meeting when a per capita plan is discussed so we can hear good solutions around the per capita issue.

POLICY UPDATE

In addition to work on various policy issues, my office has been working diligently on legislation and projects which are at various levels of completion. Following are some brief overviews of a couple of legislative pieces I am working on.

At the last LOC meeting, I presented amendments to the Legislative Procedures Act (LPA) which I believe is an important step towards completing a thoroughly comprehensive law to regulate how the OBC and Legislative Operating Committee will process our laws. This law will be presented for a public hearing in the next few months. I look forward to your honest and frank opinions and comments, not only on the LPA, but on all legislation and policy matters my office is working on.

Since January, my office has also completed a thorough review of the Judiciary draft last presented to the GTC. At the last GTC meeting, I noted to the membership that I had many concerns and questions regarding the Judiciary that I'd like to see looked at. I have submitted a memo to the Judiciary workgroup containing approximately 25 points that I wanted reviewed in order to ensure the Judiciary draft is on point with what this OBC and GTC are asking for. If you'd like a copy of my memo, contact my office and we'll get you a copy of the memo.

I have been hearing from the membership that there is a need for John Doe hearings and a good whistleblower law. Our members and employees need an avenue for reporting any wrong doings in order to reduce the risk of loss for the tribe while protecting those who have come forward. As such, I have submitted a request to the LOC for research to begin on a whistleblower policy that can work for our organization.

My office has also been working on providing two-way communication as part of the public hearing process. As part of my commitment for open government and communication, I have been promoting a mechanism for tribal members anywhere in the country to view our meetings live and to view archived meeting footage. Internal departments are working together to put the finishing touches on this project so hopefully we will be doing trial runs in the next month or two.

LIAISON UPDATE

The Community Development Planning Committee (CDPC) continues to actively work on addressing raised concerns and continues to review development and planning projects and reports. As the CDPC Chair, I am excited to report that the meetings have not only had a large number of attendees but have prompted many good productive discussions.

In December I submitted a memo to the OBC requesting a housing assessment for the Milwaukee area. We have a large population of Oneidas living in and around Milwaukee County so I requested a study to be undertaken to assess what the true housing needs are for the Oneida Milwaukee area residents. As part of providing housing opportunities to as many Oneidas as we can, we need to more thoroughly understand the full extent of the need.

At the December 14th OBC meeting I brought forward a recommendation that the Oneida Housing Authority no longer pursue the acquisition of taxable housing stock. It is imperative that we set the course towards building on our trust lands as a norm rather than the exception. I further supported the motion for future acquisition dollars earmarked for housing to be prioritized for housing stock purchases on non-taxable land. Housing continues to be a priority for my office and I am committed to bringing both housing and jobs to the reservation which is why I am continuing to aggressively work towards bringing a cutting edge housing proposal that will not only bring affordable housing onto the reservation but jobs as well.

I encourage you to join my email list. Through my email list I will send out updates and other forms of policy information. ## Gaming enterprise in need of audit

I see all gaming departments failing in Management which leaves poor supervisory skills, which causes the employees to have friction amongst themselves which cause increased levels of stress, makes you dread coming to into work and in worse case scenarios are the reason a person wants to quit their job – they are the "difficult coworkers." But quitting a job that you like or love because you don't get along with a coworker shouldn't be a reason for your resignation – that is so high school. When situations like this happen, stand back and do a self-assessment, is it really you or management? 90 percent of the time it is management not doing their job in a professional manner.

If it's not friction could it be "favoritism" in this/or all departments of gaming? When I worked in gaming, I could see and others could see in these departments if a Manager/Supervisor is favoring a particular employee or group, thereby leaving excluded employees at an unfair disadvantage. This unfair disadvantage can lead to feelings of resentment and mistrust, resulting in decreased morale and productivity. While the organizational consequences can be quite serious, they are not necessarily the worst threats. There can be server legal ramifications for favoritism in the workplace as well.

While it is natural for certain people to have more in common than others, employees who hold positions of authority are expected to develop work relationships that are professional and free of bias. No employee should be subject to unfair treatment because of a manager/supervisor's prejudice or personal inclination to favor an individual or group.

Having three (3) managers in one depart, this type of activity should not be occurring but it does and on a daily basis. What makes this department any different than any other department in gaming? Will Louise Cornelius or Chad Fuss please explain this?

I think the gaming enterprise need to be shut down until someone can get into these departments to see why there are so many management/supervisor/leads in all departments with the amount of front-line employees. I have never seen such a vast amount of money being paid out to management/supervisors/leads, these directors/managers/supervisors need to do their jobs and not hire others to do their jobs for them. If the supervisors are scared of accountability then they shouldn't be supervisors.

More scenarios:

Bingo has three supervisors/three leads, now why would bingo need leads? There is nepotism in the bingo hall, why hasn't anyone addressed this? Doesn't the manager/director know we do not allow nepotism? Who does the hiring of the managers/directors in gaming, are these individuals educated or just hired because they are related/friends to someone?

Slots department has at times two (2) supervisors and a lead on all shifts, why?

Security department has corporals, sergeants, and lieutenants all working on one shift, why?

All gaming employees hear from management is "we don't want to hear about the negative." Well, how do you fix things then?

Random Acts of Kindness

Today I stopped in at the health center, and when I got there, I realized by back tire was flat. I called AAA for roadside assistance and was prepared to wait the hour or so before someone could come out and change my tire. A young man pulled up to my car and asked if he could help me. While he was doing so, I ran into the pharmacy to pick up my prescription and as I came out he was pulling away. Although I had thanked him before I went in, I wanted to thank him again. If it weren't for another gentleman he was helping to put a charge on his dead battery, I would not have been able to catch up to him. He would not accept payment from me, and for that reason, I assumed he was just a regular kind of guy offering assistance when needed with no expectations of anything in return! How awesome is that. Chivalry is not dead! For that reason, I will not print his name in my letter, but just wanted to let him know if he reads this, his help was greatly appreciated and his act of kindness will stay with me for a long, long time.

Poem of Remembrance

Michelle; as I'm walking thinking of you missing all the things we used to do

Those times will be with me night after night day after day thru and thru

I always try to forget the bad times the sad times that we used to share

Remembering our laughter, the happiness the love we have for each other and for each other we were there

All the times I think of you, your beauty through my eyes

As you softly glide along watching over across the beauty of the skies

And when the times I think of you I feel all alone

The teardrops softly running down remembering that you are safely home

All the times I dream of you somewhere in the middle of the night

I awake remembering your image I softly laugh as I remember what a beautiful sight

And the times I think of you I can feel the hurt and pain

Just hoping for my next dream to come so I can see you once again

Sent to you with remembrance and love

Menards ends discrimination claim for $1 million

Eau Claire, WI – The Menards home improvement chain has agreed to settle a race discrimination case for $1 million.

A Chicago arbitrator recently approved the settlement which compensates hundreds of managers and assistant managers who say they were passed over for promotions because of their race. About 700 employees at Menards Midwestern stores can begin filing claims for their share of the settlement Feb. 23.

The plaintiffs' attorney Jeffrey Taren tells the Eau Claire Leader-Telegram that letters will be sent to employees affected by the settlement. Menards spokesman Jeff Abbott says the company has denied any wrongdoing, but chose to settle because it's a "wise business decision."

The case began in 2004 when three former Menards employees filed a claim with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

City of Sheboygan pursuing casino plan

Sheboygan, WI – The city of Sheboygan is pursuing a casino development agreement with the owners of the Blue Harbor Resort and the Sokaogon (suh-KOG'-en) Chippewa tribe.

Claremont New Frontier Resort, the Sokaogon Mole Lake and the city would develop a casino near Lake Michigan in Sheboygan's South Pier District. An off-reservation casino would need federal approval, which could be a lengthy process.

The Sheboygan Press says a contract approved by the Redevelopment Authority Thursday night requires the tribe, resort owners and the city to reach a development agreement in 180 days. The city would sell land on the South Pier to Claremont for the casino. If the project does not get federal approval, the city would have the option of buying back the land.

The Sokaogon Chippewa Community is a 1,200-member tribe with a reservation near Crandon.

US House OKs bill for Quileute tribal move

PORT ANGELES, WA. – The U.S. House approved a bill Monday that will allow the Quileute tribe to move its school and other buildings out of a tsunami zone on the Washington coast to higher ground in Olympic National Park.

The land transfer bill gives the tribe 785 acres in the park and settles a reservation boundary dispute. In return the tribe assures access to coastal beaches that are reached by trails through tribal lands.

The Peninsula Daily News reports there's similar legislation awaiting action in the U.S. Senate.

The tribe needs higher land to put the school, elder and child care centers and the tribal headquarters out of reach of a tsunami.

The tribe has been seeking land to move to outside of the tsunami zone for about 50 years.

Man loses thumb in attack outside casino hotel

TURTLE LAKE, Wis. – A Minnesota man is accused of cutting off the thumb of a victim he was trying to rob outside the St. Croix Casino and Hotel in Barron County.

Prosecutors say 29-year-old Deangelo Rucker, of St. Paul, pulled a knife on the man, tried to stab him and take his money as the victim was walking toward the hotel in Turtle Lake last Friday. Court records say a large portion of the man's left thumb was cut off.

Police searched the hotel and found Rucker in one of the rooms. The Eau Claire Leader-Telegram says he's being held on a $25,000 cash bond.

Mohawk indicted in upstate NY landfill dig case

ALBANY, N.Y. – A Mohawk who began digging up a capped toxic landfill near his reservation home in northern New York last summer has been indicted on felony and misdemeanor charges.

Authorities say 57-year-old Larry Thompson drove a backhoe through the fence at the former General Motors plant in Massena and dug about a half-acre from the top of the 12-acre landfill. He faces counts of criminal mischief, reckless endangerment and resisting arrest.

Part of the 270-acre industrial site made aluminum cylinder heads starting in 1958. It was designated a federal Superfund priority in 1984.

Thompson said after his Aug. 11 arrest that he was frustrated by the government decision to cap the landfill instead of removing the chemicals, blaming them for cancers among his family and other Akwesasne (og-wuh-SAHZ'-nee) residents.

Local native man participates in stem cell research study

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

> The 35 of us might pave the way for use of stem cells in the United States"
> – Staber Burr

At the height of his career as a PGA pro, 33 year-old Staber Burr suffered a massive stroke. He and his then wife were blessed with a son Grayson who was only five months old at the time, and they had just purchased their first home with plans to fix up their home together.

"It was a stroke that doctors now say was going to happen someday," explained Staber. Extensive testing revealed that Staber had a blood condition that causes blood clots. The diagnosis was grim. "They (doctors) said my life would never be the same," Burr recalled. At first, he explained, "I could not sit at the side of the bed, couldn't feed myself, couldn't talk good, couldn't use the bathroom or hold my son."

That was six years ago.

He has come a long way since then. "I fought back and with my family's help, I regained some of my abilities. But, I still have miles to go as I have limited use of my left side and still struggle with every day efforts," said Burr.

Through the years, the support of his family has been unwavering from day one. His mother Georgia devotes her time to her son without question. His father Robert Sr. and siblings Robert Jr. and Teshia are a constant support as well.

A glimmer of hope came shining down on the Burr family recently. Staber received confirmation that he was accepted to be a part of a unique opportunity – to participate in a stem cell research trial through the University of California in San Diego. The year long research will test how stroke survivors respond to stem cell injections. "I am extremely lucky that I was even accepted into this study," he explained. Only 35 were chosen out of thousands of applicants and Staber was the only candidate that was chosen from out of state. "The 35 of us might pave the way for use of stem cells in the United States," he added.

His initial visit took place last fall from November 3-18, 2011. His father accompanied him on the initial visit and a 30-day follow-up visit in December. "My family and I are praying these treatments will help me regain some physical and mental abilities I lost due to the stroke," said Staber. He is due to make the trip once again this week – his three month check-up. He will be leaving on Thursday, Feb. 9, 2012 with his father by his side. Additional follow-up visits will take place at six months, nine months and at twelve months. Each of the additional visits require at a minimum, a three to four-day stay.

With the required extended stay to participate in the study, the financial burden falls on the family for airfare, hotel and meals. To offset costs, a benefit for Staber is scheduled for Thursday, February 23rd, and will be held at the Harmony Café, 1660 W. Mason St., Green Bay, WI from 2:30 – 5:00pm. There will be numerous prizes raffled off during the event including a one-night stay at the Stockbridge Casino. Raffle tickets are on sale now for $1 each or 6 for $5. (Look for the flyer in this issue of the Kalihwisaks for more information.)

"I would greatly appreciate anything you can do to assist me in making this rare opportunity possible. Without generosity from people, businesses, organizations like yours, I will not get this very rare opportunity," expressed Staber.

Travels of your food - eat local foods for better nutrition

Your food probably travels more than you do. It takes the typical food item 1,500 to 2,400 miles to travel from farm to plate. A head of California lettuce shipped to Wisconsin requires 36 times more fuel energy just to transport than the caloric food energy it provides us. 20% of total fuel consumption in the U.S. goes toward food (growing, packaging & transporting). In other words due to the distance our food travels, each person consumes about 1 gallon of gasoline every day, simply by eating.

That is why the Oneida Nation Farm and Tsyunhehkwa are trying to optimize their outputs and provide more locally, nutritionally dense food to the Oneida community. It all starts on the farms. This involves everything from preparing fields, selecting crops and seeds, planting and cultivating, ensuring adequate soil fertility so the plants have all the nutrients they need to grow, managing pests (such as weeds, insects, and diseases), harvesting the crop, and then managing the crop residue in the field.

The agricultural products are then brought either to a processing facility (beef and buffalo), or to the Oneida Cannery (fruits and vegetables). Tsyunhehkwa processes their own poultry on site. At the Cannery produce gets processed into jams, jellies, salsa, pickles, pie filling, apple chips and of course White Corn (flour, bread and dehydrated). The folks at the Cannery are concerned about the community's well-being and they use only the healthiest ingredients in their canning process.

When the processing is complete the products are then either taken to the Oneida schools system, the Apple Orchard, or Tsyunhehkwa Retail. The latter two are the locations that community members can go and purchase these nutritionally dense foods. At this point your food hasn't traveled thousands or even hundreds of miles, but only a dozen or so.

On Tuesday, January 31 the Oneida community had two visitors from the USDA office in Washington DC. The Deputy Under Secretary and her Chief of Staff came and toured the Oneida Community Integrated Food System (OCIFS) sites. They heard about OCIFS in the halls of DC and wanted to come and see our community food system. It was a great opportunity for them to not only see what OCIFS does, but also allowed us to show them what assistance the USDA could be for Oneida in the future.

REMEMBER
WHEN YOU FIRST GAVE ME TO THE KIDS ?
We would hit the sidewalk, going faster and faster, listening to the concrete pass under my wheels. Remember the hours we spent at the skate park, hitting ramps and flying through the air! We had so much fun! Heck, Dad, 60 minutes of play time each day is all I need. Please?

School salad bars offer great tastes and healthy options

Submitted by Susan Higgs, RD, CD
WIC/Nutrition Manager, Oneida Community Health Center

Oneida Nation School System students and faculty enjoy a nutritious trip to the salad bar.

The Oneida Nation schools are fortunate to have salad bars, not all schools do! Students and staff are able to make selections each day or receive fruits and vegetables as part of the regular menu.

School Salad Bars Are:

- An easy and delicious way to eat healthfully.
- Offer a variety of good-for- you and great tasting fruits and vegetables.
- A great way to help make "half" of what you eat each day, fruits and veggies.
- An easy way to try a new or different form of fruits or vegetables, whether they are fresh, frozen, canned or dried.
- Helpful in meeting your daily requirements of fruits and vegetables.
- An easy way to start or keep a healthy habit.

Why are fruits and vegetables so important?

- They are high in vitamins, minerals, antioxidants, and fiber.
- Give you energy with less calories; compared to chips and soda.
- Help you achieve a healthy weight.
- Fruits and vegetables are low in fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, and sodium; and help to prevent heart disease and high blood pressure.
- The fiber helps:
  - o You feel full longer.
  - o Aids in digestion.
  - o Prevents spikes in blood sugar.
  - o Decreases cholesterol by binding to the "bad" cholesterol and removing it from the body.

The 2010 Dietary Guidelines for Americans new My Plate initiative encourages all of us to make half your plate fruits and vegetables. So parents and caregivers can also be role-models to kids at home, by offering fruits and vegetables at meals and eating them as a family.

More information, easy recipes and ideas about healthful eating is available at www.ChooseMyPlate.gov

Get to know Avery

By Josanna Cornelius
Thunderhawk Times

Avery King

Avery King is a sophomore at Oneida Nation High School. He's attended Oneida schools for about seven years and has been at the high school since he was a freshman.

Other schools he has been to are Freedom and Wahpeton. He lives at Kylene's house who is his girlfriend; his family is the King's.

Avery averages about a B in school. I asked him how his schedule is and he said and quoted "boring." His favorite class is physical education, and he does not participate in any out of school curricular activities. He took journalism because that's what the school put him in he "had no say." He does not do any type of writing besides in this class.

Avery said he doesn't know much about the Oneida language

He said he plans to go to college for construction management.

His favorite interests are playing basketball, eating at Subway, watching sports center, and listening to Wiz Khalifa. Avery's favorite color is red, his favorite movie is "The Ghetto Stories," and he has no favorite book.

He likes pepperoni and cheese on his pizza. His role model is his brother and his favorite sports team is the Lakers. His motto is "Just do it", just like Nike. He thinks Obama is pretty straight, and he would choose the Bears over the Packers.

Extreme Sports

By Joelle Thomas
Thunderhawk Times

In Journalism, we started the semester looking at extreme sports and, then, conspiracy theories. I'll give you a rundown of extreme sports in this issue.

Extreme sports are doing stuff like BASE jumping, BMX, Dirt jumping, Extreme Motorsport, Kite surfing, Paragliding, Parkour, Rock climbing, Sky diving, Bungee jumping, and much more. You can go to You Tube and just look up "Extreme Sports" to see some of these.

Some people think the people that do extreme sports are crazy and out of their mind. But you only live once so you might as well try everything you can. Am I right or am I right? I'm right. It takes a lot of Adrenalin to do something like that but I'm sure its lots of fun.

Personally, I would love to try something like that.

People have actually died doing extreme sports but I'm sure it's only because they didn't know what they were doing or they were nervous. You have to clear your mind when you are doing something like that.

But now that you know what Extreme Sports are maybe you will want to go and try it some time.

The Chicago Bulls

By Avery King
Thunderhawk Times

Here's a prediction for this shortened-NBA Season: The Chicago Bulls are going to go to the Championship 2012, because there is no other team more ready for a championship than the Bulls. Their point guard "D. Rose" is going hard to the paint and nailing his three-point chances.

Rose is a key to the Bulls' chances. His salary is $7,000,000 and his new max deal is $94 million, over five years. As the Bulls' MVP, he has a lot of point catching up if he wants to be MVP two years in a row. He is also part of Adidas.

Don't Be Afraid of the Dark - Movie Review

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

Guillermo del Toro directs this thriller about creatures who live in the basement of Blackwood Manor.

A young girl named Sally (Bailee Madison) goes to live with her father (Guy Pearce) and her father's girlfriend and co-worker (Katie Holmes). Sally doesn't want to live with her father in some strange place with a strange woman; however she has no say in the matter.

The three of them live in Blackwood's Manor, an old dusty mansion that Lord Blackwood used to live in until he mysteriously disappeared. Sally's father and her father's girlfriend live in Lord Blackwood's manor while they clean it and fix it up to sell it.

Kim (Katie Holmes) is an interior designer and really wants Sally to like her. Sally is very hesitant and gives Kim the cold shoulder many times in the movie. When things start moving, Sally lashes out to alert someone, and of course the old movie cliché, her father thinks she is making it up and crying out for attention. Kim doesn't believe her at first, but she does know that something is not right.

Kim begins to research Blackwood's Manor and finds that his final painting matches the drawing Sally made a few days earlier exactly. The painting and the drawing depict a screaming demonic creature crawling out of a dark tunnel or cave.

Kim starts to believe and they try to get Sally out of the house, but the creatures need Sally for their plan so they take action. This kept me watching, longing to know what happens next.

4 of 5 Stars.

So what is the purpose of an Ombudsman?

The purpose of an Ombudsman is related to the 'type' of Ombudsman one is referring to. There are currently three basic 'types' of Ombudsmen with three very distinct functions and purposes. These include:

Classical Ombudsman (including Legislative and Executive)

An individual who represents the general public and their concerns related to the actions, lack of actions, and/or conduct of government agencies or officials. The Classical Ombudsman is often referred to as a "watchdog" or "defender of the people" as they receive complaints, has the power and authority to investigate matters, provide recommendations to resolve issues or make corrective actions, and issue public reports about situations and the end results. The Classical Ombudsman, while employed by the Government/Legislature/Executive, is independent and works at an informal level to provide a check on government activity in the interest of the citizens and investigate complaints of improper government activity.

Organizational Ombudsman

A designated neutral party who assists in the informal resolution of conflict while providing confidentiality and maintaining fairness, equality, and objectivity. The Organizational Ombudsman does not represent a specific party or the organization in any aspect. The Organizational Ombudsman represents "fair process and the administration of fair process" and functions independently of management. The Organizational Ombudsman investigates matters/concerns by gathering information, assists in identifying possible resolutions, makes recommendations to resolve matters, provides recommendations for process improvements, identifies potential systemic problems within an organization, and maintains open communication by issuing public reports about situations and the end results.

Advocacy Ombudsman

An individual who represents or advocates on behalf of a specific party or designated population while seeking resolutions to conflicts or complaints. The Advocacy Ombudsman typically seeks to resolve problems, concerns, or complaints of an individual that related to a belief of a violation of rights or improper treatment. The Advocacy Ombudsman, as a representative, may become involved in formal resolution processes representing the issues and interests of one side. Advocacy Ombudsmen are often found in the long term care setting such as Nursing Home facilities.

While these are the three basic "types' of Ombudsmen, it is important to understand that a 'hybrid' style of Ombudsman also exists. This 'hybrid' style is simply the cross of one of the three basic types of Ombudsman with some characteristics or typical functions of another. The most common mix seems to be the Organizational with the Classical thus creating an informal, impartial, and neutral party with the authority to do formal investigations and/or possibly provide statements or input as part of a formal process. It could also include the ability to assist with 'binding' (documented and agreed upon) solutions between parties.

As a result of a directive given by the Oneida General Tribal Council in 2005, the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is currently required to have an Ombudsman. The specific type of Ombudsman was not defined, nor was it stated as to whether or not there was to be only one type of Ombudsman. For this reason, the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin currently has one (1) Ombudsman functioning as an Organizational Ombudsman. The next article will look at the creation of the Oneida Ombudsman and the identified intent behind the creation so that the community can see the link to how the function of the current Ombudsman came about.

Haskell, EPA promote environment, science careers

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) ~ Haskell Indian Nations University is partnering with the Environmental Protection Agency to promote science and environmental careers.

The university in Lawrence and the EPA's office in Kansas signed an agreement Wednesday to promote interaction between Haskell students and EPA staff.

Karl Brooks, the EPA district's regional administrator, says he hopes the agreement will encourage more Haskell students to apply for internships and jobs with the EPA.

He says it also should prompt EPA staff to help Haskell faculty with research, and give Haskell students knowledge they could use to help their tribes with environmental issues.

The Lawrence Journal-World reports EPA staff members also will be considered for adjunct faculty positions at the school.

Oneida Adventure Works with 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th graders at the Turtle

Todd Muske writes about how Oneida Adventure provides new opportunities of physical and emotional health for his students. He writes: During gym Students climb to new heights in Experiential Education. Through Experiential education programming this winter session, students have had the opportunity to "tree climb." During this unit students learned how to set and reach goals and to encourage themselves and fellow classmates to try a new experience. Students continued to thrive under new and challenging experiences, one of which was "tree climbing." How this worked was, students where able to climb to the top of the gym ceiling by use of harness, ropes, and tree climbing knot system that allowed student to ascend using their overall body strength. While some students achieved their goal of just making it off the ground, others made it to the tree chairs slung up near the top of the climb. Students could relax in the chairs, and view how far they had come, realizing the pride in achievement. Todd continues stating, "Cindy, Kip Mark, and Shannon have been instrumental in bringing this fun and exciting experience to our students. One of the student's, Ta Koma King adds, "I really enjoyed the challenge to see how high up the ropes I could get!" Overall, most students challenged themselves to climb.

GTC meeting to be held at ShopKo Hall

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A recent decision by the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) will have an April 21 special General Tribal Council (GTC) meeting off the reservation at ShopKo Hall in Ashwaubenon.

The meeting location was agreed upon during the February 8 OBC meeting after concern was expressed over availability and capacity of the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. There is no law precluding the tribe from holding GTC meetings off the reservation.

"We now are using two separate spaces at the Radisson for one meeting. We are going to need bigger space," said Tribal Secretary Patty Hoeft during the February 8 meeting. "Access to the Radisson is becoming more and more limited. There are no Saturday dates for the remainder of this year. The dates that are available are very random."

The Saturday meeting will focus on a petition

Anna John Nursing Home gets CMS five star rating

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The Anna John Nursing Home (AJNH) was one of only two area nursing homes to receive a five star rating from the U.S. Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS). AJNH administrator Jane Smith credit's the home's staff for the high rating.

"The staff here are providing excellent care for our residents, and I think that's one of the most important goals you should have, and an independent source has a way of quantifying that," she said.

The CMS rating gives a one-to-five star rating on three aspects of the nursing homes: health inspections, staffing, and quality measures. AJNH received two five star ratings and a four star rating on quality measures.

"We do get a number of calls … from people who use the Nursing Home Compare … website. They say we see you're a five star facility, and they're using the tool to place people that they love in in places that are acknowledged to provide good care," said Smith.

According to Smith, the AJNH has consistently received high ratings since the rating CMS rating system started in 2008. That kind of con-

Obama touts American manufacturing in Wis. visit

By Scott Bauer
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) _ President Barack Obama tried to use his Wednesday visit to a Milwaukee padlock manufacturer to highlight an improving economy and showcase companies that are bringing jobs back to the U.S., even though the Wisconsin company's success isn't reflective of the state.

Master Lock, which Obama mentioned in his State of the Union address, is a good story for the president _ especially in Wisconsin. It's a unionized company that recently brought back 100 jobs from China, and the state's Republican governor is being targeted for recall largely because of his proposal that effectively ended collective bargaining rights for most public workers.

However, in the face of national growth, Wisconsin has lost private sector jobs in each of the past six months. Democrats have been using that to hammer embattled Gov. Scott Walker, who promised during his 2010 campaign to create 250,000 jobs during his first term.

Obama's visit to Wisconsin was his first in more than a year and a recognition that he must win the state, which he carried by 14 points in 2008 but where Republicans captured nearly every statewide office two years later. Wednesday also marked the one-year anniversary of the first widespread protests against Walker's union proposal.

Walker has been making the case across the country that his recall election is a bellwether of how Obama will do in Wisconsin in the fall. In a fundraising letter his campaign sent to potential donors outside Wisconsin last month, Walker said a win would deliver a ``devastating blow'' to Obama's re-election efforts.

Walker greeted Obama at the airport Wednesday and was with him for the Master Lock visit. Walker's official office and his campaign said only that it was an honor to have Obama in Wisconsin.

A Wisconsin Republican Party spokesman wasn't as charitable.

``Wisconsin voters went to the polls in 2010 and resoundingly rejected the Democrats' ongoing effort to move our state backward, and they have no interest in four

State helps Veterans find unclaimed money

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Wisconsin Treasurer Kurt Schuller and Secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs John Scocos presented a check that represented over $76,000 which was given to Wisconsin Veterans from the state of Wisconsin. The presentation took place at the Robert Cornelius VFW Post 7784 in Oneida.

The money presented came from unclaimed property and money that was piling up in the state budget. The state then made a special effort to help Veterans claim money they were previously unaware of.

The event also intended to raise awareness of funds in the state's Unclaimed Property Fund. A fund which 90% of Veterans have yet to take advantage of.

along with an update on the tribe's reorganization efforts. Parking would be free and transit would be utilized to avoid long walks for those needing assistance.

The final cost of holding the special GTC meeting is not finalized but estimates have been generated.

"The cost does increase. The space, use of their electricity, some of their equipment, access to their internet comes with a cost," said Hoeft. "The cost could be as high as $7,000 to $10,000. We won't know that until we actually get in and start putting together our plans."

Chairman Ed Delgado thinks now may be the time to ensure all GTC members in attendance are able to participate.

"(Every meeting there are) two or three hundred people who can't participate. They have a screen but they can't raise their hand to be recognized to speak. I agree that we probably need to move to that facility," Delgado said during the OBC meeting.

Mike Metoxen, of PMI Productions, heads the video and audio operations during GTC meetings and says his company has the ability to allow GTC members in the overflow room to speak and be heard by the OBC and GTC in the main room.

Councilmember Vince DelaRosa supported the ShopKo Hall request, but questioned if technology could keep meetings at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

"I would like to have had a technological solution for the Radisson. I think there's technology components that we could have easily adopted there that would allow us to have two way participation at the Radisson," he said during the meeting. "But I do think the overarching concern is the fact is there are no available Saturday dates. It's a blessing that we got them being busy but on the other hand it's a curse because we need some space over there."

Not all committee members agree this is the off reservation meeting is the best path for future GTC meetings. Councilwoman Melinda Danforth has been very vocal about opposing the location and filed a petition requesting all future GTC meetings be held on the reservation.

"When we talk about sovereignty we are talking about our land, our people, and our culture. I think our leaders need to exercise our sovereignty on our land and that means holding our meetings on our lands," Danforth said. "We are talking about our supreme governing body of the nation exercising their decision making rights, I think it needs to be on the reservation. You don't see Brown County making decisions in Outagamie county."

Danforth is also uneasy about the cost and tax implications associated with holding the meeting at ShopKo Hall.

"We're here in a time of budget crunch. We are asking people to cut back and were going to look to spend $10,000, $15,000, $20,000 for a GTC meeting when we know technologically we can hold the meetings at the Radisson."

Holding the meeting off the reservation would mean that attendees receiving the $100 meeting stipends will have to pay state income taxes on that payment.

"If we're talk about bringing revenue back to the reservation and we are going to be paying out state tax dollars now on the stipend, it just doesn't make sense to me," she added.

In order for the decision to be reviewed one original OBC member that supported the motion must agree to review the decision, Danforth stated that seems unlikely.

From 1A/Five Star Rating

sistency is due to the longevity and quality of the staff, she stated.

"I think that they come to work every day with an attitude of caring about providing quality care. If they didn't, we wouldn't be able to get high ratings, because if they're committed to quality care, they have to be attentive to the residents, they have to be aware of changes in residents' conditions, they have to be very aware of the change in the resident care plan, that they're following those changes, and they really have to be vested in working with this type of age group, this type of resident, someone who really relies on somebody else for a lot of assistance," she said. "The staff do take pride in their work, we have longevity in our staff, and I think that goes a long way in terms of their commitment to the tribe and the residents that they serve.

Smith sees the construction of a new resident care facility as an opportunity to continue giving quality care.

"We look forward to having a new facility, we look forward to maintaining a five star rating in our new facility, and I think that the five start rating will help us fill up our new facility," she said.

Signs let others know tribe's future development intent

more years of the same failed policies," said state GOP spokesman Ben Sparks.

Two years after Obama's presidential win, Republicans won majorities in both houses of the Wisconsin Legislature _ which had been controlled by Democrats _ and knocked off Democratic U.S. Sen. Russ Feingold. Republicans also picked up two of the state's congressional seats, giving them a five-to-three advantage.

A recent poll by the Marquette University Law School shows both Obama and Walker leading their potential challengers in Wisconsin. Obama was ahead of Republican Mitt Romney 48 percent to 40 percent, and Walker was ahead of potential Democratic candidates by either 6 or 7 percentage points.

``Based on that data, it's perfectly possible that the state renders a split decision," said Charles Franklin, director of the poll and visiting professor of law and public policy. ``Both races are likely to tighten as we get closer."

Franklin said it makes sense for Walker to tie his fate to Obama's since it would likely to help mobilize conservatives and tea party activists.

Democratic Party Chairman Mike Tate scoffed at the governor's claim that fighting off a recall would hurt Obama's chances in Wisconsin.

Recall organizers submitted an estimated 1 million signatures to recall Walker, and the state is currently verifying the names. A recall election would likely be held this spring of summer.

``It is an interesting difficulty of Democrats wanting to talk about jobs being bad in the state and blame Walker, while Obama wants to talk about things turning around for his re-election," Franklin said.

Walker campaigned in 2010 on the promise to deliver 250,000 more jobs to Wisconsin over four years. And while jobs have declined each of the past six months, they are up by 13,500 since Walker took office.

Master Lock, founded in Milwaukee in 1921, employed more than 1,100 workers at its sprawling downtown Milwaukee complex when it announced in 1997 that it would begin importing locks from China. By 2003, the plant employed just 270 workers.

Early last year, the company's leaders said the business was operating at full capacity after bringing back jobs that had been outsourced. The plant now employs about 410 people, though it still operates factories in China and Mexico.

Oneida Vehicle Registration – Who Can Register

At the Oneida Motor Vehicle Department, or Licensing Department, we receive many questions regarding who can and cannot register a vehicle through our department. In this article, we'll answer some of the more frequently asked questions. But, before we dive into that, let's start with a brief history. The Oneida Nation License Department was started in 1996. From 1996 to 1997 policies and procedures and ordinances were created for the backbone of the new department. Also, during this time a reciprocal agreement with between the State of Wisconsin and the Oneida Nation was signed giving the Oneida Nation the authority to register and maintain our own motor vehicles within the reservation boundaries. In 1998 a system was created for enrolled Oneida Members, who reside on the Oneida Nation Reservation, to register their motor vehicles exclusively with the Oneida Nation. By doing this, we are exercising our sovereignty.

Why do I have to live on the reservation to register my vehicle with Oneida?

That goes back to the sovereign immunity. Oneida has jurisdiction over the enrolled members residing within our reservation boundaries only. In regard to registering vehicles, we do not have jurisdiction over enrolled members living off the reservation. In some ways it would be like someone who lives in Wisconsin, but goes to Michigan wanting to register their vehicle there. It can't be done, because both states are under different governmental policies, and Michigan wouldn't have the authority to do this. Although not encouraged, Oneida members living on the reservation can still register their vehicles with the State, if they so choose.

Why do I have to provide proof of residency?

Believe it or not, from time to time, we get individuals who do not live on the reservation attempting to register their vehicle. We need to make sure that all members we are registering are indeed living on the reservation to ensure we have the authority to issue them tribal plates.

If I live off the reservation, can I use one of my relations or a friend's address who lives on the reservation?

No. That is fraud. You must live on the reservation. We realize people have their reasons for wanting to register their vehicle with Oneida, but we have laws we need to follow to keep our sovereignty intact. If someone actually resides outside the bounds of the reservation, but gives us a different address, once it's discovered, your vehicle's registration will be revoked, and your plates could be flagged as invalid. Then you're risking a citation. Not to mention the extra cost to register your vehicle with the State. Ask yourself if it is worth it?

What is an acceptable proof of residency?

The License Departments accepts all the following as proof of residency. Official Government documentation, direct deposit receipts, utility bills, bank statements, credit card statements, college material letters, child support documentation, traffic citations, insurance documentation, and rental/mortgage documentation.

What types of vehicles does Oneida register?

We register automobiles, sport utility vehicles, vans, trucks, motorcycles, mopeds, motor homes, and collector vehicles. All vehicles owned by the Oneida Nation are also licensed with our department. The License Department also offers assistance for most issues dealing with the Department of Transportation. For example we can do vehicle title transfers, apply liens to a title, take liens off a title, and make name changes to a title. When coming in for assistance if we don't know the answer we will get you answer from the WI DOT before leaving our office.

What are some of the benefits of registering my vehicle with Oneida?

Lower registration fees, tax exemption, and showing your pride as an Oneida!

Can a non-Oneida native living on the Oneida reservation register a vehicle?

No, only enrolled Oneida members can register. We can have a non-enrolled member registered as long as there is a co- owner of the vehicle who is an enrolled Oneida member. We do not have jurisdiction over non-Indians or non-Oneida Indians living within our reservation boundaries.

What happens if you have Oneida Nation Plates and you move outside of the reservation boundaries?

You would have three days to register your vehicle with your new jurisdiction.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Oneida is currently collaborating with the Wisconsin Department of Transportation, and with their assistance we are now able to verify addresses through a driver license or Post Office records. The DOT and Oneida will be working together to make our database more efficient and hopefully better serve our customer base. A follow up article will be published to explain this project in further detail.

Reflecting on the Oneida Office in Milwaukee

By Madelyn Genskow
Former SEOTS Board Chairwoman

I want to thank Mark Powless director of the South East Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) office for recognizing the 20th anniversary of the start of the SEOTS office. The date of the first meeting was January 30, 1992. The board that was elected was chair Alberta Metoxen, vice chair myself Madelyn Genskow, Secretary Fred Muscavitch, Treasurer Roy Huff, and board members Kim Reyes, Jim Cooper, James Zakhar, and Ester Olszewski.

Alberta worked full time and found that the position of chair was too time consuming and resigned. On March 31, 1992 the board appointed me to take over the position of chair. Later at a General Membership meeting, William Wheelock was elected vice chair. By October of 1992 Fred Muscavitch and Jim Cooper had resigned. Michael Debraska had become secretary and Mark Denning had come on board. At one point James Zakhar resigned and Priscilla Zakahr took his place.

The first Oneida office we opened was on Mitchell Street on June 19, 1992. Our rent was $185 a month. Our first budget was close to $21,000. We negotiated that our part time office secretary would be an employee of the Oneida Tribe. Our first office secretary was Donna Cornelius. Later Donna moved on to a job in Oneida. Our first full time office secretary was Gail Griger Webber. I served as the office supervisor without pay.

We worked hard to bring as many services to the people as we could. We received a $25 stipend per meeting and $25 for trips to Oneida on business. We did not get mileage.

On June 30, 1993 the Oneida Business Committee officially recognized the Milwaukee office as a program of the Oneida Tribe. By fiscal year 1994 the General Tribal Council in Oneida approved our budget of $181,731. It provided a staff of four plus services. Several of the people who worked to open the Milwaukee office have passed on. They are Jim Cooper, William Wheelock, James Zakhar, and Ester Olszewski. The memory of their service to the people should not be forgotten.

I'm so happy to see the SEOTS program doing well. The delivery of medication is the high point of the service. My dream has always been that the SEOTS program would have a fantastic learning center to help Oneida students similar to the Youth Enrichment Services (YES) program in Oneida.

I wish SEOTS would bring back a free Oneida children's Christmas party. In 1992 and 1993 with our limited budget we put on a party for 200 Oneida children from infant to 12 years old.

Also, I wish they would bring back a free Oneida elder Christmas party in Milwaukee. There are a number of elders in Milwaukee who are too ill to make the trip to Oneida.

The Oneida Business Committee who were in office at the time that the Oneida office in Milwaukee gained recognition were Chairman Richard Hill, Vice Chair Deborah Doxtator, Treasurer Loretta V. Metoxen, Secretary Amelia Cornelius, and Councilmembers Lloyd E. Powless, Russell Metoxen, Shirley Hill, Mark N. Powless and Julie Barton.

God bless the SEOTS program.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Tribal Treasurer

Sheku,

The winter months for my office are always challenging with the start of the next year's budget cycle and trying to stay on track with current and future projects. This winter has been pleasant weather wise and has allowed progress at the new Anna John Resident Care Center to move forward quickly and remain on schedule. Recently I had the opportunity of touring the facility and am very pleased with all the amenities it will provide for our elders. The walls are insulated inside and out to reduce drafts. That combined with the radiant floor heating around the perimeter of each room should provide a comfortable living environment. The planned gardens will be a nice place to relax and the computer center will give our elders the opportunity to learn or maintain their computer skills. The building is expected to be completed in November of this year and once the furnishings and interior equipment are installed, the center itself will open in early 2013. That opening will mark completion of a project that has been years in the making.

The sense of pride regarding the new Anna John Resident Care Center is bittersweet with the budget cycle of FY 2013 at hand. Unfortunately our deficit has grown and it will be necessary for each department to make substantial cuts without reducing services to our membership. Despite the hopes that our economy would strengthen and the reorganization of our Tribe would have been implemented to address some of these concerns, we are now faced with having to make the tough choices for the coming year. I understand this concept may be hard for some people to realize as we have had the luxury of increasing revenue each and every year since the start of gaming but now that our gaming revenues have stabilized and our reserve funds are being replenished, we struggle sometimes just to make ends meet due to our employment and cost of operations. Imagine your wages remaining consistent but your food, electric bill, gas, cable, and other bills increase. At one point you realize there just is not enough money to go around and some luxuries need to be replaced with something less expensive. That is where we were last year. This year, we need to cut further. This is a quick scenario to illustrate the point we are at and the tough decisions we are faced with.

Our hope was that some of this would be addressed during the restructuring process but that has proved to be slow moving since we have differing views on what is expected. What I have heard around the community is we are not as efficient as the membership expects and some areas get more benefits than others. To shed some light on these issues, we have enlisted the help of some community members. What they have told us is we should streamline our organization to increase productivity, effectiveness and efficiency by moving like areas and services together. While that may sound easy, it is a daunting task as there is resistance to change and rightfully so. No one knows what the future holds or how our decisions today will affect our organization tomorrow. Still, it was a GTC mandate that we must abide by and accomplish and we will provide an update at the next GTC meeting which will be held at Shopko Hall on April 21, 2012.

The decision to move our meetings to Shopko Hall was based on space. We hope the added space will address the GTC action of requiring everyone to remain in the meeting space and encourage more involvement from those who attend. The Secretary's office is diligently working on making sure all the details are worked out before the first meeting so it will be a positive experience for us all. I hope to see you there.

Wisconsin in Brief

Wis. Dems delay new wetland permit protocols

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Democrats in the state Senate have used a procedural maneuver to delay a vote on a Republican bill that would ease regulations on wetland development.

After more than an hour of debate on the Senate floor Tuesday, Sen. Chris Larson (D), objected to a final reading of the bill. That move blocked a vote until the next time the Senate convenes.

The legislation makes a number of changes to the DNR's wetland-filling permit process. Chief among them is a new requirement that developers submit a mitigation plan to the agency.

Conservationists fear mitigation will become the favored approach for developers who would no longer have to avoid or minimize damage. Republicans counter the bill provides a reasonable balance between the environment and business.

Thousands of mittens donated in Wis. and Mich.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Tourism officials in Wisconsin and Michigan parlayed their dust-up over mittens into the collection of at least 3,100 pairs of mittens and other winter items.

The states' tourism departments got into a good-natured battle in December over whose state has the better claim to looking like a mitten. About a week later, the states announced the Great Lakes Mitten Campaign.

The Wisconsin Department of Tourism says the items were donated through state travel centers and some chambers of commerce and were then given to more than 50 charities.

Some people also made some mittens by hand and donated them and some businesses donated funds.

Michigan officials asked people to donate mittens directly to their favorite charities, so they weren't able to keep track of how many were collected there.

Wisconsin to use part of settlement for budget

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Wisconsin will use about $26 million of its $140 million share of a national mortgage settlement to help plug a state budget hole.

Attorney General J.B. Van Hollen's office made the decision in consultation with Gov. Scott Walker.

The rest of Wisconsin's share will go toward helping homeowners who were affected by foreclosure abuses between 2008 and 2011.

Walker said at a news conference Thursday that just like communities and individuals affected by the foreclosure crisis, the state has also been harmed and the payment will go toward offsetting that.

But Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett told the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel in a story published Friday (http://tiny.cc/r18r1 ) that none of the money should go toward the state budget.

A new projection shows the state faces a $143 million budget shortfall.

Wisconsin senators unveil new mining bill

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. - Senate Republicans on Monday unveiled a softer version of a bill to help an iron mine open in far northwestern Wisconsin, allowing challenges and creating a new tax that would help local governments pay for damage the mine might cause.

The new bill puts legislators under the gun. Assembly Republicans passed their own bill last month; now the two houses must find common ground on an incredibly complex, sensitive issue before the legislative session ends in mid-March. Complicating the dynamics even further, four GOP senators face recall efforts against them, forcing them to tread lightly.

"We know we have a fairly aggressive timeline to meet with the potential closing of the spring session," said Sen. Neal Kedzie, R-Elkhorn, chairman of the Senate mining committee that developed the bill. "It's going to take a Herculean effort from members of the committee to put their noses to their grindstone."

A company called Gogebic Taconite wants to dig a huge open-pit mine in the Penokee Hills just south of Lake Superior. The company has promised the project would create hundreds of jobs that will last for generations, a prospect that appeals to Republicans hungry to deliver on campaign job-creation promises. Conservationists, though, fear the mine would pollute one of the most pristine regions in the state. The Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, whose reservation lies just north of the mine site, is particularly concerned runoff from the mine could contaminate their beloved wild rice beds.

Gogebic Taconite officials have put their plans on hold, though, saying they want legislators to guarantee a stopping point in the state's complex, open-ended mining permit process. Republicans have been scrambling for most of the last year to come up with a bill that would streamline the process for the company.

Assembly Republicans passed a bill during the last week in January that would require the Department of Natural Resources to approve or deny an application within a year. If the agency doesn't make a decision by then, the application would automatically be approved.

The measure does away with contested case hearings, semi-judicial proceedings to challenge DNR decisions during the process, a key tool for environmentalists. The legislation also blocks citizen lawsuits alleging permit violations and caps application fees at $200 million.

The bill also splits revenue from a state tax on ore sales between local governments and the state 60-40. Currently, 100 percent of the revenue goes to local governments to help them repair damage mining equipment might cause to public infrastructure such as roads.

Senate Republicans have been moving more slowly. The GOP holds only a one-vote majority in that chamber, and four Republican senators face recall drives over their support for Republican Gov. Scott Walker's contentious law stripping public workers of their union rights. Forcing them to support a divisive mining bill might hand Democrats even more ammunition on the campaign trail.

Their bill steps back from some of the more contentious provisions in the Assembly legislation.

The Senate measure restores contested case hearings, according to a memo from the Wisconsin Legislative Council, a group of attorneys that advises lawmakers. It retains the year approval timeline but allows the DNR and the applicant to extend the deadline as many times as they wish by mutual agreement. And in a nod to local officials upset with the Assembly bill's revenue split, it creates a new tax on mineral sales and divides it 70-30 between the locals and the state.

A spokesman for Assembly Speaker Jeff Fitzgerald, R-Horicon, had no immediate comment. Gogebic Taconite President Bill Williams said he hadn't seen the bill early Monday evening and had no immediate comment. Democratic leaders in the Assembly and Senate didn't immediately return messages.

Amber Meyer Smith, government relations director for environmental advocacy group Clean Wisconsin, said in a statement both bills are terrible.

"Unfortunately, the environmental rollbacks contained in the Senate bill are practically identical to those in the Assembly bill," she said. "We urge the Senate to stand with the majority of Wisconsin residents who oppose weakening environmental protections for mining by starting over."

The mining committee already has scheduled a public hearing for Friday at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville in southwestern Wisconsin, some 300 miles from the mine site just south of Lake Superior.

Assembly Republicans took waves of criticism for scheduling a hearing on their bill in a Milwaukee suburb hundreds of miles from the site. They ultimately decided to hold a second hearing up north.

Kedzie said he still wants to hold a northern hearing as early as next week in Ashland. He said he wants to gather input from across the state. The Platteville area has a rich history of mining, the school turns out mining engineers, and offers a large venue, he said.

"This," he said, "is a starting point for the discussion."

SD snack maker expects big growth with Whole Foods

By Kristi Eaton
Associated Press

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. ~ A South Dakota company created to provide a healthy snack for American Indians expects its sales to grow by a third this year after seeing its product picked up by national grocery chain Whole Foods Markets.

The development also could lead to more hiring at Native American Natural Foods in Kyle, adding valuable jobs on the Pine Ridge Reservation, which encompasses some of the poorest counties in the United States.

Native American Natural Foods produces Tanka Bars, which are made with bison meat and cranberries. The high-protein, 70-calorie snack bars are based on the traditional Lakota food called wasna.

The company sold 1 million units of Tanka products, which include bars and packages of smaller bites, last year and expects that to increase by a third this year with sales at Whole Foods, co-owner Mark Tilsen said. The products are sold at 3,500 stores nationwide and online, including 67 Whole Foods stores in the Northeast and South.

Whole Foods began selling the bars late last year, and its stores in other regions are expected to add them before the end of this year, Tilsen said.

"It's wonderful when you see a company - start it from scratch - see it grow from consumer direct and then distribution and then products go out to retailers. And then we see it get to chains," co-owner Karlene Hunter said. "Whole Foods was just sort of icing on the cake and exemplifies all the work the company has been doing and fruits of the labor."

With the increased sales, the company hopes to hire four or five more full-time employees by the end of the year, Tilsen said. Native American Natural Foods started with four employees in 2005 and has grown to 16 full-time and several part-time workers.

Theo Weening, global meat coordinator at Whole Foods, said the company became interested three or four years ago in offering Tanka Bars as part of its growing selection of buffalo products.

Weening said he likes the story behind the bar and the positive effect the company is having on the Pine Ridge community.

"I'd like to expand on it," he said.

Unlike the term organic, which is federally regulated, there's no official definition of natural food. However, Whole Foods has its own standards, and it took about two years for Native American Natural Foods to meet all the requirements, including having its plant certified, Tilsen said.

The payoff comes with access to a much broader market.

"Native American communities only represent two percent of the country," Tilsen said. "As we try to become a national natural brand, Whole Foods is the leader."

Michael Watson is the type of customer Native American Natural Foods hopes to attract with sales at Whole Foods.

He's not Native American, and he's never been to an American Indian reservation. Yet the 20-year-old University of Florida junior became hooked on Tanka Bars after his aunt gave him a box for Christmas. Since then, many of his fraternity brothers have become fans too and ordered their own supply online.

"It feels like a much more natural type of food," Watson said. "But what I like most is (that) it's a very American product."

His aunt, Ellen Harvey, 56, of Freehold, N.J., said she bought two boxes of bars to distribute as gifts to her family after learning about them from story about the Pine Ridge Reservation on ABC's "20/20."

"They're producing a quality product based on their heritage and putting people to work for everyone's benefit. I know buffalo is a good lean meat with a lot of nutrition in it," Harvey said. "I wanted to do my bit to help."

Descendants of ex-slaves seek OK tribe

By Jarrel Wade
Tulsa World

TULSA, Okla. ~ The descendants of former slaves of Muscogee (Creek) Nation members have petitioned the U.S. government to be recognized as their own tribe - a move that could set a legal precedent for thousands of Indian freedmen descendants around the country.

The petition meets the requirements set by the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs and should be accepted, the freedmen group's leader told the Tulsa World.

If accepted, the petition could make the Creek freedmen descendants the first such group to become their own separate tribe.

The group's leaders are now waiting for BIA officials to confirm that they have accepted the petition and have begun reviewing it.

Ron Graham, the 47-year-old president of the Muscogee Creek Indian Freedman Band, was raised as a Creek Indian until he was 15.

But he and other Creek freedmen descendants were kicked out of the Creek Nation in 1979 by a vote of the nation's members.

Graham's father, Theodore "Blue" Graham, practiced the traditions of his Indian heritage, including his participation in stomp dances, in his hometown of Okmulgee, which is also the headquarters of the Creek Nation, Graham said.

"That's why this is so dear to me," he said. "I was born and raised in the Creek Nation right there in Okmulgee. ... We just want to be federally recognized, because that's who we are."

Edwin Marshall, Creek Nation chief of staff, said the tribe has no comment because the freedmen descendants now have no affiliation with the Creek Nation.

Marshall said the tribe properly conducted a referendum to remove the freedmen descendants from the Creek Nation rolls and that the descendants are starting a new entity.

Freedmen were the former slaves of Indians and were guaranteed full rights and privileges to the tribes to which they had belonged in the U.S. Treaty of 1866.

"We're Creek Indians. We are also of African descent. It's hard for people to believe, but ... we're both, though, That's how it is," Graham said.

The descendants have since become a central part of tribal sovereignty issues, as several tribes, including the Cherokee Nation, have also voted to expel freedmen descendants from their ranks.

Tribal leaders often attribute a resentment of the treaty to the U.S. government's repeated violation of it while forcing tribes to adhere to it.

The votes to expel freedmen descendants are the result of tribes' seeking to allow enrollment only of Indians with traceable bloodlines to the tribe.

However, Graham and other Creek freedmen descendants can show bloodlines tracing back to non-freedmen Indians, unlike other groups of freedmen.

Additionally, the criteria for becoming a federally recognized tribe doesn't require proof of Indian blood, Graham said. The standards just require proof that the tribe's members have ancestors on the original Indian rolls, which the Creek freedmen descendants have, he said.

They were just designated freedmen descendants along the way because they also had African lineage, Graham said.

Based on those and other arguments, Graham said the Muscogee Creek Indian Freedmen Band should be federally recognized.

"This is precedent. They haven't dealt with anyone in our position right now," he said. "We're not sure what to expect. If they go by facts and documents, we believe we will be federally recognized. ... It will be shocking to me if they do deny us. But I strongly believe that we have our documents well in hand."

This one man show is filled humor, music, videos and education as Plass gives his perspective and tells stories about personal experiences. This show will address the advancement of two cultures, Native American and Non-Native American as it relates to education, politics, culture, history and entertainment.

I am always trying to address the stereotypes, stories and/or image concerns relating to our history and even modern awareness. Also, because, "Broadway" has a storied past, not only for Native Americans and Green Bay, I am trying to address my story as it relates to showing how a positive spin, through humor, videos and music can help further cultural understanding," said Plass.

Tickets are $8 for Neville members and $10 for non-members and can be purchased at the Neville Public Museum by calling 448-4460.

Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus Updates

• Submitted by Susan White • Trust Director •

Every Oneida adult is encouraged to process the OLIPP Beneficiary Form before the inevitable

The Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus has been in place for over 2 years. The Trust Committee, Trust Department and the Enrollment Department have gained a lot of experience working with the plan. The process for claiming the benefits continues to evolve. Originally, we knew there would be issues with claims even though there were many meetings and articles to explain the project. This article is to encourage you to complete one form and to tell you about some of the benefit claim scenarios – good and bad.

Missing an Oneida Beneficiary Form is the main cause for delaying the death benefit. If you have not already, please complete and file a form this week. The forms are located at www.oneidanation.org/enrollment under the "Customer Services and Forms" section. You may call us at 1-800-236-2214 to request a form be mailed to you. If you already completed a form and filed it at Enrollments – YAWÁ?KO (thank you)!

All enrolled Oneidas are automatically covered by the insurance. That part is easy. After you are "gone," the Enrollment Department and the Insurance Company cannot follow your wishes without a completed Beneficiary Form on file. No form means the Insurance Company will pay the person(s) in this naming sequence: widow/widower, children, grandchildren, parents, brothers and sisters, estate. Many times, Oneidas have extended families and a lot of family research needs to occur when there is no beneficiary form on file.

In the case of a member whose minor children are to be paid, the money will be put into trust for the children and cannot be used for the funeral expenses. Adult children are to each receive a portion of the proceeds. However, if some or all of the children do not allow a portion of their proceeds to pay for the funeral expenses, the funeral costs fall on the individual(s) who sign the paperwork with the funeral home. Some family members are at odds with each other and this causes problems in getting the funds to pay for the member's funeral. After the death certificates are received and the insurance company completes their research, each child or sibling will be contacted to complete paperwork. After the final paperwork is received by the insurance company, payment will be sent to the individuals. Remember, without the beneficiary form on file, the payment could take months.

Oneida Trust Committee

Onʌyote? a-ka Latiwista?nunha

"They take care of the money."

When a completed beneficiary form is on file with the Enrollment Department, we can get the documentation to the insurance company so payments can be made within two weeks of the date of death of the member. Receipt of the death certificates begins the claim process. We need two certified death certificates. One stays on file at the Enrollment Department and the other is forwarded to the insurance company.

When research needs to be done to identify who in the naming sequence will receive the proceeds, it slows down the payment. Here is a worst case scenario for not having a Beneficiary Form on file. The death certificates for an Elder were received on 8/24/2011. The deceased did not have a spouse, children, or grandchildren. The parents & siblings were deceased. He had 17 nieces & nephews. While nieces & nephews are not in the naming sequence; Wisconsin law recognizes nieces & nephews as part of the estate. The insurance company required their signatures on affidavit letters and assignment of proceeds to pay the funeral expenses. Only some beneficiaries assigned their benefit proceeds to the funeral home. All of the remaining payments, but one, were mailed to the beneficiaries on 10/11/2011.

Here is a Best Case Scenario for timeliness. The death certificates were received for a tribal member on 12/5/2011. She had a Beneficiary Designation form on file with Enrolments. She had no minor children and the beneficiary is an adult. The benefit was paid on 12/14/2011. That's eight business days.

We can keep you posted on best and worst scenarios for claims processing, if you like. Meanwhile, let all Oneida adults get the OLIPP Beneficiary Form on file with the Enrollment Department. Please do so before the event happens. If you need a form, please go to the website listed above or call us at 1-800-236-2214.

Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus Continues to Evolve

The Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus (OLIPP) has been in place for two years. This article is to remind you about OLIPP and how it works. It is also to inform others who may not be aware of it benefit.

OLIPP was created by the Oneida Trust Committee. It is a $15,000 life insurance product for each tribal member. The plan was approved by the General Tribal Council by GTC Resolution 01-17-09B. One does not need to sign up for OLIPP, but the Trust Committee stresses the importance of completing an OLIPP Beneficiary Form.

First and foremost, final expenses were part of the design of OLIPP. In addition to final expenses, the beneficiary could pay off debt, start an education fund or donate to a charity. The beneficiary could save it for an emergency, use it for the bereavement process and more if they chose. We continue to improve the benefit and make the claims process more efficient. OLIPP meets the gap between a funeral benefit and a financial benefit. While OLIPP can provide the financial resource for final expenses, there are more options available to the beneficiary(s). OLIPP goes beyond the dollar and cents. It provides the beneficiary the opportunity to decide how the money should be spent. It puts the beneficiary in charge to make decisions and have responsibility, without the influence from the tribe. If assistance is needed, the Tribe is available. OLIPP provides the beneficiary with control.

The Trust Committee was consistent with the message about OLIPP. During all of the community meetings, we stated that the beneficiary directs the use of the funds. The same PowerPoint slide was used for community meetings and General Tribal Council meetings stating: "burial expenses, pay off debt, education fund, bereavement, etc." The Trust Committee consistently told the membership that OLIPP was their benefit.

In a second edition of the OLIPP brochure, we add the bolded line: "It is the intent of this policy for the beneficiaries to use the life insurance to pay for the outstanding funeral expenses of the deceased member." This was in response to the Business Committee's concern that people need to be aware that the former burial benefit of $5,000 was no longer available. The statement let the membership know that the members are responsible for final expenses.

Our biggest issue is not about the intent of OLIPP. It is about the mechanics of the beneficiary process. In other words, the membership needs to name proper and responsible beneficiary(s.) Please read the following article about good and bad scenarios due to having a Beneficiary Form on file. Having the form on file impacts the timeliness of the life insurance benefit payment.

Tribal Property Classes Scheduled

Where:
Division of Land Management Office
470 Airport Drive Oneida, WI
When:
Thursday Afternoons, beginning March 1, 2012
Cost:
None = 45 hour class schedule
* Tribal employees may be paid for dependant on the program
Contact:
Call Lisa Metoxen at (920) 869-1690 x1801. Registration forms available at Land Management front desk. 8:00 a.m.–4:30 p.m.

The instructors are Attorney Rebecca Webster and Real Estate Services Area Manager Mary Jo Nash. The classes started in 1996 to train all of the Land Management staff on the basics of tribal law. After the first course, staff from other tribal programs and boards found the discussion and information helpful in their positions. Participants have attended from the community including Casino, Appeals, Commission, Compliance Division, Business Development Unit, Tribal School, Land Commission, GLIS, Environmental Department and Personnel Department. So far, 112 attendees have received a Land Commission Certificate for completing this annual course.

The class size is small in order to facilitate discussions. A limit of 12-15 participants is usually accepted. The discussions focus on various federal eras of Indian policy and law, and how the Oneida Tribe was specifically impacted. In addition to lectures, lively sharing of information is generally received from the participants as the class moves through the traditional early years of the government, the Allotment Era, Indian Reorganization Era, and the present Self-Determination Era.

The class focuses on tribal laws and authority of different branches of the Oneida government, with an emphasis on Oneida tribal land transactions. Invited speakers from tribal programs such as the Appeals Commission, Environmental Department, and Tribal History enhance the discussion of how the Tribe as a whole carries on its business.

A tour is given of selected reservation properties, and then continues with an in-depth discussion of how and why properties are purchased within the Oneida Reservation boundaries. The overlap between tribal law and state law is evident in the area of acquiring land. This area is also where there are frequent jurisdictional and political disputes between the Oneida Tribe and surrounding state governments.

We invite you to think about joining us on March 1, 2012, 1:15-4:15 pm at the Division of Land Management Conference Room for our first class. March is right around the corner!!

Oneida Museum closed for exhibit renovation

The Oneida Nation Museum is currently closed to the public, but don't worry, we will be open again soon. We close for a short time every winter to change out some of our exhibits. Even though we are a small museum with limited space we have a number of different exhibits at any given time. Every year we change out some of them and improve or update others. This year we have two major exhibits that we will be unveiling at our reopening February 24.

The first exhibit is about Oneida Agriculture. This exhibit will explore Oneida's use of the land for subsistence from the time of creation to the present. The viewer will learn about the Three Sisters to the Oneida, the impacts of modern farming and our community approach to present-day agriculture. The second will be a traveling exhibit that has been around the world featuring Haudenosaunee artist, Sam Thomas from Canada. The exhibit is called Power of Place – Strength of Being and it explores World Indigenous and Western bead techniques, textiles, and various objects. It includes both contemporary and traditional art with historic examples and their cultural context.

Our smaller displays will include Oneida's contributions to the War of 1812 and a comparison of Haudenosaunee government and the United States Government.

All of the exhibits will be on display for the rest of the year. Sam Thomas will be at our opening event. He will also be in the area this summer, conducting beadwork workshops at the Oneida Nation Museum and Bearpaw Keepsakes The dates and times of these classes have not been set and we hope to get that information out in the near future. Until that time everyone is invited to our Grand Reopening February 24, from 11am-6pm. Come check out our exciting new exhibits and support your local museum.

Any questions/concerns please contact the museum at (920) 869-6538.

It seems like it was yesterday when we learned to ride our bikes together, discovered that we both liked to dance and speak our language. It seems like we were never apart and everyone knew we were best friends.
When we decided to go to school, we made sure we were going to be roommates.
When you finally landed that first job after all your hard work, I was the first to say "congratulations." When you said you wanted to help the youth on the reservation, I said, "Let's do it together." Then came a time when you told me that you have a mental health problem, like depression and anxiety.
Now I know that anyone can experience mental health problems, even Native People. We thought we knew everything, yet I really didn't understand what a difference my support can make in your recovery.
Well, I am here for you. I will be here for you.
And—as always—we will recover together.

1812- Remembering the Forgotten War

Green Bay, WI ~ 1812 marches into the Neville this February for its 200 year anniversary. Featuring artifacts, interactives and graphics, this exhibit recollects one of America's forgotten wars and shares stories of the Menominee, British, French, Ho-Chunk and American people who fought in this conflict. 1812 is on display from February 25, 2012 – May 6, 2012.

1812 is often thought of as a sequel to the American Revolution—our second war for independence. Though smaller, the War of 1812 greatly impacted the United States, particularly the region of the old Northwest—including present-day Wisconsin.

Evocative objects from the Neville's collection—banners, medallions, weapons and personal artifacts—provide powerful connections to the past. In addition, the exhibit includes plenty of hands-on experiences that bring this compelling part of our history to life.

An 1812 teacher workshop is scheduled for Wednesday, February 29, 2012 from 4:15 p.m. – 5:15 p.m. at the Neville. Education packets are also available at www.nevillepublicmuseum.org for teachers interested in taking students to the exhibit. Cost of admission for both guided and self-guided tours of this exhibit for school groups is $2 a person.

The Oneida Emergency Management Homeland Security (EMHS) agency staff would like to recognize and say a special thank you to the following departments, Oneida Diabetes Prevention Program, the Oneida Bingo & Casino and the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation for the support they provided several EMHS staff and Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) volunteers as they participated in community event(s) that promote health and wellness. Through their support, they gave the Oneida Team and CERT volunteers the opportunity to participate in the Fox Cities Marathon and in the 2011 National Tough Mudder event hardcore 10-12 mile obstacle courses designed by British Special Forces which tested our all-around strength, stamina, mental grit, and camaraderie at Devil's Head Ski Resort in Merrimac, WI.

It is a goal of the EMHS agency and staff to stay fit and participate regularly in community events that promote health and wellness for Oneida public safety members.

We also want to thank all of our CERT members that volunteered throughout the year, at training, events, GTC meetings and other community events and to those who participated in supporting events with the EMHS staff.

EMHS is always looking for continued community involvement in our programs from members of the community. If you are interested in becoming a CERT member or find out what community events EHMS is participating in in 2012 please call 920-869-6650/6651 or email mantone@oneidanation.org

ND higher ed. board to sue to drop Fighting Sioux

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) ~ North Dakota's Board of Higher Education will file a lawsuit challenging a state law requiring the University of North Dakota's athletics teams to be called the Fighting Sioux.

The board voted to file a lawsuit Monday after a meeting by telephone with the state attorney general.

Attorney General Wayne Stenehjem says he's confident the law violates the state constitution and he believes the board will win in court.

The university has been seeking to drop the nickname because it fears penalties from the NCAA, which considers it offensive to Native Americans.

But the nickname has strong support among state residents who filed referendum petitions last week to put the question to voters. If state officials determine enough signatures are valid, the issue could appear on the June 12 primary ballot.

Why an Ombudsman for Oneida?

By Dianne McLester-Heim, Oneida Ombudsman 920-490-3713

In 2005 the Oneida Community Health Center was experiencing many internal issues and struggles that were negatively impacting the Oneida Community. These issues included; but were not limited to; a loss of personnel, concerns with the quality of care, questions about administrative management decisions and actions, and the future direction of the Oneida Health Center. With all the talk circulating within the community, a special General Tribal Council meeting was held to discuss and address the matter. On July 11, 2005 a motion was made and carried to establish a position of an Ombudsman. The specific directive stated

"That an Ombudsman position be established that would listen to the concerns of the employees of the Health Center and Tribal Community Members, and that these concerns are brought to the Assistant General Manager, and the issues and how they are resolved be published in the Kalihwisaks on a regular basis."

Written documentation was provided by the original motioner following the adoption of this motion that has provided greater insight to the intent and expectations for the establishment of an Ombudsman. This documentation states that "there is a perceived lack of trust in the community for those who hold office and those who are in 'senior management'." It goes on to identify concerns that community feels a sense of powerlessness, that they do not have a voice, and that they are not heard. For these reasons the original motioner stated that the Ombudsman should be there to help community members and employees start using their voices in a constructive way to hold themselves and management accountable. Also to help them work towards improved communication.

While the adopted motion states the Ombudsman is reporting to the Assistant General Manager, the original motioner stated that "in order for the community to feel level with the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) and Senior Management, the Ombudsman needs to be at the same level as the CFO, Chief of Staff," thus reporting out to the OBC but actually responsible to General Tribal Council. By designing the position of the Ombudsman to function outside the standard lines of authority, the Ombudsman is able to maintain independence, neutrality and address matters at any level. It also enables the Ombudsman to bring matters that are not being addressed my management to the OBC level and the awareness of the community ~ General Tribal Council without restriction. The original motioner went on to state that their vision for the Ombudsman is to expand out to addressing governmental and enterprise issues as well.

Attached to this documentation was an outline for 'Best Practices for Establishing an Organizational Ombuds Office'. This outline relates to the Standards of Practice and Code of Ethics as printed, defined, and adopted by the International Ombudsman Association (IOA). For these reasons, the current Oneida Office of the Ombudsman has been established as that of an Organizational Ombudsman with identified roles, responsibilities, and authority based on an identified Standard of Practice and Code of Ethics. Worked into all of this is an identification that the Office of the Ombudsman is ultimately responsible to the community ~ General Tribal Council, while reporting out through the Oneida Business Committee.

So what does the Oneida Ombudsman do??? The next article will look at what the current Oneida Ombudsman does and does not do. The article will identify what authority has been identified for the Ombudsman and provide some realistic limitations due to the fact that there are many functions within the Oneida Tribe and one Ombudsman for the Oneida Tribe.

Registration changes at OCHC

Beginning March 1, 2012 there will be changes to the way that you register as a patient coming to the health center! We are in the process of de-centralizing our registration process to improve your registration experience. On March 1, 2012 if you have an Optical or Dental appointment you will begin registering directly at the Optical registration desk. If you have a Dental appointment, you will begin registration directly at Dental registration desk, and if you have a Physical Therapy appointment you will register directly at Physical Therapy. Registration will continue at the main registration desk for all Medical appointments.

The Oneida Comprehensive Health Division's goal is to improve the quality of services provided to our customers. One of our strategic initiatives is to implement an electronic medical record. The first phase of this project was to install and implement the patient management system which was completed on June 9, 2011. The next step to improving your registration experience is to de-centralize the registration so patients can go directly to Optical, Dental and Physical Therapy departments to register for their appointments.

We know that change is often difficult and because these are new processes for these departments, we ask your patience as we implement this new process. Thank you in advance for you cooperation and patience as we improve our services for you—our customer!

Onʌ́yoteʔa·ka People of The Standing Stone - Oneida

Number System & Iroquoian Cosmology

The Iroquois Confederacy consists of the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca and Tuscarora Nations which is also known as the Six Nations. They are presently located in the northeastern part of the United States, the Providence of Ontario and northeastern Wisconsin.

The Iroquois Creation story is told a little different in each of the Six Iroquois Nations. I have attempted to examine and look at the Oneida/Mohawk Creation Stories and review how it can be told through our number system.

Although I am Oneida I chose to include the Mohawk as they are our Elder Brothers and they have delved into their Creation story before they came to this world.

We have very similar languages and also the Mohawks are our closest relatives in the Six Nations. The two stories attached are small versions of our entire Creation Stories.

The Creation Story of the Onʌ́yoteʔa·ka is the first story to be told. They explain our world view and our outlook on life. Along with race, language and culture this world view makes our people different from other people in the world.

Our Creation Stories tell us where we came from and that we have always been here on Turtle Island. We can take pride in knowing that our Elders have passed these stories on.

In trying to reclaim our identity as Indigenous peoples it is very important to start from the beginning of time which is of our creation story. As the story and importance of each number unfolds the correlations give us a sense of strength and familiarity of our identity as well as our place in the world.

Raymond John states, "The numbers refer to our spirit side onto our hukwehuwe' physical life."

The linguistic breakdown of the Oneida language reinforces the Creation story concepts that have been passed down thru the century's to our people such as yaʔt- root word relates to the physical life form, oyá·taʔ means body.

The continued use of our traditional Indigenous knowledge is an absolute must in order for us to continue on the path that the Creator has lain down for the Onʌ́yoteʔa·ka people.

We must continue to carry the knowledge forward to survive in today's world as Indigenous People's. Ta·ne

úska (1)

The pregnant Sky woman came from the sky beings and starts the beginning of life here on Mother Earth.

Another way to look at the number one is the couple or group comes together with one mind to make a decision about the future.

Téken (2)

Two pertains to Sky woman's daughter who had twins. She had twins which were to be called the Left handed twin and the Right handed twin. The root word for twins is –khʌ-, tehník(hʌ) in Oneida (Tom Porter.) Also pertains to two separate beings, spirit side or physical side, two Oneida beings - te- dual, kʌ́' –beings (Raymond John.)

áhsʌ́ (3)

Three is the root word meaning "in the middle", or "in the center." Sky woman is placed in the middle of the Turtles back when she falls from the Skyworld. Three can also remind us of the three-sisters which are our life sustainers, corn, beans and squash. It can also refer to a councilor mediator between two other peoples, in the middle of, the three clans of the Oneida's Turtle, Bear & Wolf. . Three times the Creator breathed into each of the things he created and then they came to life with a purpose.

Kayé (4)

When life was given to the four races (it's now proper or correct)

There were four, the white, the yellow the black, and the red. This is where our word for four comes from. The root word means you did it well, you're done. Tkaye·lí. Or you're making a beautiful anything for example you bead moccasins and you finish. And you look at it and you say, "tkaye·lí," it's correct, the root word is –yeli. That means it's correct, it refers to these humans and all life because we were the last to be created, of all Creation. Now everything is done. So he said tkaye·lí. Now they have life. So that's where four comes from. It's proper; it's complete, its' living. It comes from the work tkaye·lí. Follow it? That's four. So that refers to the humans beings. All of life in its totality is now complete. (Tom Porter)

We can also think in terms of the Four Directions, the colors of which depend on who is speaking of them. Four means "it's complete", or "whole" The Four Directions makes everything whole, like the 4 corners of a house, the 4 grandparents of a family, the "four corners."(Katsi Cook)

Ka'ye:-equal... sides from left or right fingers, also in curing Midwinter Ceremony the women clapping showing their ability to create, ka'ye: the completion of a life-giver! (Ray John)

Wísk (5)

In the Mohawk language, for number five, we say wísk. It comes from the root word in Shawískara. The root word is five, wísk, Shawískara. It was shortened. We are told not to shorten things, the Elders say were going to get lost if we keep on shortening things. And we've been doing it since the beginning of time, as this proves. This it the beginning of the word, and five is already wísk instead of Shawískara.(Tom Porter.)

One (an individual) standing on the turtle's back, or one standing in the four directions (of the earth, the universe, or anything that has four directions - one plus four is five. (Tom Porter)

wisk- wi-new life, s(e)-translocative of new life, k(i) spirit of new life! (Raymond John.)

Yá·yahk- (6)

crosses over/go across

Refers to the Sky woman when she came from the other world to this world, and she crossed over there to get here. So whenever we say six, were referring to the original woman that crossed over from Kaluhyá·ke (Karonhiá·ke) to the earth planet, (Tom Porter.)

ya:yahk-this is the female vowels of life-givers, ya:- crossing over , yaʔ- physical life form, ha-life path, k(e) benefactor of new family member,( Ray John.)

Tsya·ták (7)

Seven stands in-between the earth and sky, signifying spirituality, the point is the end of the arrow, the point of the flint, that we put our human intention into and throw forward into time, like a prayer, a ceremony

Tsiá·ta and the root word of that one is, oiá·ta . Oiá·ta is a body. Saiá·ta is your body. Kaiaton·ni means a doll. Akoiá·ta her body, onkwaiá our body. And so seven is tsiá·ta, referring to layers of generations, of existence. (Tom Porter.)

And so the seventh son of a seventh son usually is a powerful medicine. The seventh daughter is a very powerful, medicine to heal people. Just by touching, if you're a seventh son, usually you can touch a sick person and they get better. It's the same among all races of people. They're always pretty much of one mind even though they don't know each other. And those people were very much evident in Mohawk country until not too long ago. There was a man but he ruined his medicine because he used alcohol and he womanized later. And all that depletes your strength and your power, any unnatural kind of stuff, alcohol or womanizing stuff like that. It takes away that power.(Tom Porter.)

Seven layers of skin thickness is what is needed to be a Chief.

Tsya:tak-seven generations that we should always consider, (Ray John.)

tsya:tak- t(e)dual,s(e)translocative,ya:extending your physical side of life or generations, ta-earth,k(e)-benefactor or one who is supported.

Téklu? (8)

Harmony and balance (2 fours) Justice,

Téklu?ha -te-dual ke-benefactor, lu-sky force, ha-pathway, it also means both sides of the 2 worlds matched(Ray John.) When you look at something like a ball and cut it in half it's the same on both sides.

Wá·teluh? (9)

Completion of cycles, so patience is necessary to see something to completion. I have always thought that the Arabic number 9 looked like a fetus - cycles of gestation, pregnancy, reproduction of families and culture (Katsi Cook.)

wa-personal prefix, t(e)-duals of spirit & physical being, lu-male (skyforces)h(a)-pathway of being.

Oyelí (10)

Full circle, 10 fingers, 10 toes,

ho'ye:li' -ho-protective cover of the being, ye:-the life-giver, li'-our purposes, (Ray John.) The manifestation of intention and attention. We must move beyond fears to bring our ideas and hopes to become physically present. Ten is full of energy. It's the responsibility of the Haudenosaunee (Six Nations) to carry that great energy. (Raymond John.)

Healthy eating habits raise demand for bison

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

It has been fifteen years since the Oneida Nation joined the InterTribal Bison Cooperative (ITBC), which is a collection of 53 tribes that are dedicated to restoring the bison to their rightful range. During that time Oneida's buffalo herd has increased in size and quality, growing to a herd of 100, and buffalo meat was introduced to the community. Now the demand for buffalo meat continues to increase making it a top selling product at the Oneida Orchard.

"The demand is there. The price is high, but the demand is there. Right now it is selling for four dollars a pound on the hanging weight," Marlene Westgor, Oneida Nation Farm's Administrative Assistant.

But why the sudden jump in popularity? Surely buffalo meat could have been purchased a few years ago.

"It is becoming very popular because people are realizing the benefits of buffalo meat. Some people don't like the taste, but it is growing in popularity," Westgor added.

The benefits of adding buffalo meat to one's diet are abundant. The proportion of protein, fat, and minerals to its

Mining compromise brings GOP objection

Oneida Business Committee Vice Chairman Greg Matson, standing center, traveled with Oneida citizens on Friday, February 17 to support the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa in their opposition to AB-426 which would shorten the permitting process for mines among other changes. MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Two Wisconsin state senators on Tuesday proposed a new approach to streamline the state's mining permitting process, with the hopes of reaching a compromise before the legislative session ends next month.

Republican leaders in the Assembly immediately objected to the proposal. The Assembly has already passed a bill designed to help a Florida company open an iron ore mine in northern Wisconsin, but that measure doesn't appear to have enough support to pass the Senate, where Republicans have a narrow 17-16 majority.

Moderate Republican Sen. Dale Schultz has already said he wouldn't support the Assembly version of the bill, forcing additional changes. Schultz joined Democratic Sen. Bob Jauch on Tuesday in introducing a new approach, which they called a responsible plan that protects the public interest while balancing the desire to move quickly to create jobs.

Schultz said he was optimistic a bill could pass before the Legislature adjourns in mid-March, but that Republicans and Gov. Scott Walker could always call them back in a special session to take it up.

The Legislature's budget committee held a hearing on the issue

Off-rez GTC meeting cancelled

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

After a spirited discussion with community members the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) cancelled the scheduled April 21 General Tribal Council (GTC) meeting at ShopKo Hall by a vote of six to one.

The unusually crowded meeting room was filled with a majority of community members opposing the off-reservation meeting.

Chairman Ed Delgado explained his support for ShopKo Hall meeting.

"I believe that place is more safe, more comfortable. I believe that we are jeopardizing the safety of our people by crowding (that) many people into the Radisson," he said. "If something was to happen and we had a panic we would be looking at a major disaster. My number one priority is always to consider the safety and comfort of our people."

Councilwoman Melinda Danforth has a petition pending calling for all future meetings to be held within the reservation boundaries again voiced her disapproval of the meeting location.

"There were a lot of responses back that felt that our meetings need to be held here within our boundaries," she said. " It's a philosophical issue."

Tribal Secretary Patty Hoeft explained her position and desire to have the meeting body housed in one room.

"The question really is what does the tribal community value when it comes to where our meetings are held. We're trying to find a place that will allow most people to attend a meeting. I prefer ShopKo Hall. To me it's not about sovereignty, not about costs, (or) keeping the meeting on the reservation. It's all about accommodating the most people in a safe environment in one room," Hoeft said. "For the moment it's about space."

Community member Michelle Hill expressed her displeasure and disappointment that the GTC was

Military service brought brothers closer

An area Navajo veteran remembers his brother's celebrated life after he passed away on Wednesday, February 1.

Jim Begay's brother Jimmie, was a Navajo code talker and lead Jim to follow in footsteps.

"He was in the Marine Corps ahead of me and that's why I wanted to go too," Jim said.

Jim beams with pride when he talks about his brother's accomplishments and the Navajo's role in World War II.

"I'm so proud of that guy," he said. "They picked up 400 Navajos when the war started. One Major in the Marine Corps (was the) son of a trading post (owners) in Arizona. He knew all about the Navajo and was raised up with us."

"They went to radio school, they had to be quick with the language and Progress continues at the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC) s walls continue to go up at the construction site. The ORCCC is scheduled to be completed and ready for occupancy in Spring of 2013.

Staff from the Anna John Nursing Home are expected to operate the facility once completed with it not just being limited to elders but others who have significant health issues.

utilize it. They figured out how to use the Navajo language against the Japanese. Once we did that we knew we can beat them," he added.

The younger Begay has a military history to proud of as well. Though Jim was too young to be a code talker doesn't mean he didn't try. He did spend some time training with the Marines at the age of 15.

"I was in boot camp for two weeks, then they caught me," Jim said. "They told me to come back in two years."

At the appropriate age Jim enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1944. He served in World War II, Korean War, and Viet Nam War.

He was a tank mechanic and Staff Sergeant with a few close calls that include his tank being hit by a mortar and him watching shrapnel fly all around him as most of his crew was knocked unconscious.

"Sometimes I wonder how I ever did it," he said.

Begay is still fluent in Navajo but admits it's hard to practice due to the limited amount of speakers in the area.

"I really like to see other (Navajo speakers), I like to talk to them," he said.

He retired from the Marines Corps in 1966 and took employment in San Jose, Calif. He married his wife, June, Oneida, in 1953 and moved from California to Wisconsin in 1992. He had six children. His parents were Carl and Nesbah Begay. He had eight other brothers and sisters, Ruth Stewart, Lottie Randall, Amy Travis, Kee Begay, Kenneth Begay, Flora Begay, and Anderson Begay.

not involved in the meeting location discussions.

"This decision is huge. This is a decision that the people need to be heard on. We elected you because I want to believe in you. I want to believe that you have our best interest at heart. This decision kind of shows me that maybe that's not the case. (You) are taking our GTC to another territory," she said.

Tribal Historian Loretta Metoxen was impressed with the spirited discussion.

"I oppose the meeting place. We are born with sovereignty and it's our responsibility to maximize it," she said.

Other possible locations were kicked around along with advice to utilize forward thinking and look at building a facility specifically for meeting purposes.

"Think outside the box, not the rez," added Racquel Pamanet before the final vote was taken.

From 1A/Buffalo in demand

caloric content is much better than traditional meats such as beef, pork, and chicken. Buffalo is also an excellent source of iron and fatty acids which are essential to one's well being. With healthy eating habits continually growing in the national conscience these health benefits are being noticed by more people.

Oneida's buffalo herd is grass fed and supplemented with hay and grain feed, and the equipment used to maintain their well being has been largely grant funded.

"The majority of expenses such as the fencing, coral system is all funded through grants provided by the ITBC," said Agricultural Director Jeff Scofield.

Beck's Meats based in Kaukauna, Wis. also process Oneida's buffalo locally.

Now that a market for buffalo has been established and continues to grow the Oneida Farm looks to improve the quality of the herd.

Farm Supervisor Denny Van Vreede said, "We're constantly trying to change the genetic package in the herds to improve the quality of the animal. We're in that process now as you breed in better genetics you get a higher quality meat in the end."

Aside from improving the quality of the animals at the genetic level the Oneida Farm hopes to meet demand by increasing the number of buffalo in the herd.

"Eventually we'll also be in the Oneida Market on Packerland and once that happens the sales are just going to continually increase. We're planning on building the herd to maybe 175 buffalo, so right now we only harvest twelve to fifteen but we'd like to get to the point where we can harvest 30 to 35. There is easily a demand for that. The Oneida Orchard gets one buffalo per month basically and we're constantly sold out," said Scofield.

Oneida Nation Farms' buffalo meat, as well as other products they produce, can currently be purchased at the Oneida Orchard located on 3976 W. Mason Street

Oneida, WI and can be contacted at (920) 869-2468. Visit the Oneida Nation Farms' website at http://www.oneidanation.org/farm and select the "Beef & Buffalo" section to download a useful "Cooking with Buffalo" recipe book. The buffalo herd can also be observed by visiting a viewing site located just off of Highway 54 on Cooper Road.

From 1A/Mine Bill

Friday and was expected to quickly pass a bill for the Senate to consider. One of the Republican co-chairs of that committee, Rep. Robin Vos, rejected the proposal along with Assembly Speaker Jeff Fitzgerald and Assembly Majority Leader Scott Suder.

They said it largely represented anti-business ideas that the Assembly had already voted against. All three said they were still committed to finding a compromise they could support.

A spokesman for Republican Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald declined to comment.

Gogebic Taconite officials have promised the project will create hundreds of jobs and bring decades of income to economically depressed northern Wisconsin. But they've put their plans on hold until lawmakers can guarantee a stopping point in the state's open-ended mining permitting process.

The fight over what changes to make has pitted environmentalists and Democrats concerned about potential pollution from the mine against the state's business community and Republicans who say the promised jobs would give a much-needed jolt to an economically depressed part of the state.

The fight has come over several key portions of the proposal, including who would benefit from a sales tax on the minerals being mined, how quickly the permitting process would take, and whether the public would have an opportunity to object.

The new proposal allows 540 days for the state to issue a permit, longer than the 360 days in the Assembly bill that Jauch said was unrealistically quick. Schultz called the 540-day timeline "extremely aggressive." It is broken into two parts: the DNR would have 270 days to draft an environmental impact statement and it would have another 270 days to either approve or deny the permit.

The new version also provides numerous ways that the DNR, the company or federal regulators could delay the permitting process to address problems that may come up.

While the Assembly bill eliminated contested case hearings, which give the public a chance to object to the process, the new bill would retain them in the final phase of the application. They would be eliminated at an earlier point in the process.

"It is a fair and flexible plan that provides predictability and certainty but also retains safeguards to protect the public voice," said Jauch, who represents the Penokee Hills area near Lake Superior where the mine would be located.

The Assembly bill divides a sales tax on ore sales 60-40 between local governments near the mine and the state. Under the new proposal, all of those proceeds would remain with the local governments. Of that, 20 percent would be set aside to pay for what Schultz described as any unforeseen, unthinkable catastrophic event related to the mine or its abandonment.

Under the new version, permit applicants would have to pay $5 million up front to make guaranteed payments to location communities over the first five years of the mine's operation. They would not have to pay property taxes during that time.

A $2 million cap on any fees that could be paid by those applying for a permit is in both versions.

In Winona, 'Mount Frac' blows ill for some

By Mary Juhl
Winona Daily News

WINONA, Minn. ~ Anyone who spends time in downtown Winona has seen them: growing piles of silica sand reaching skyward from the grounds of the Modern Transport Rail loading terminal near Huff and Second streets.

The stockpile has become an icon that frames the local debate about the sand rush - and the complex decisions and opinions of all parties involved. The arrival of silica sand-related businesses to southeast Minnesota and western Wisconsin has sparked controversy and discussion across the region.

Recently, as city of Winona staff proposed changes to the way the city issues permits and regulates businesses handling frac sand, residents turned their attention to the most visible daily reminder of the industry - the 40,000-ton pile of sand on Second Street that some have dubbed "Mount Frac," the Winona Daily News reported.

Three years ago, Sierra Frac Sand owner Kim Smith of Longview, Texas, was flying his plane to Eau Claire, Wis., for a business meeting when he noticed he was low on fuel. He decided to land at the Winona Municipal Airport, but before touching down he saw a business from the sky: Winona Aggregate. Within five minutes, he was on the phone with the local company to talk business.

"We stayed in contact," Smith said. "It started right there."

The connection between Sierra Frac Sand and Winona Aggregate initiated cooperation among several local businesses to mine, wash, store and transport silica sand in the city of Winona. The city now has six active sites where sand is either mined, shipped or processed, with at least two more locations proposed.

The increase in demand for silica sand has created new opportunities for those working at Modern Transport.

"It's maintained jobs and created jobs," said general manager Tony Wasinger. The company has added four jobs since the demand for silica sand skyrocketed about 18 months ago, Wasinger said.

Winona developer Rich Mikrut, who leases the Second Street location to Modern Transport and runs a sand shipping operation, said the new industry can benefit the local economy.

"They say it's these big Texans coming in and making the money; they're not," Mikrut said. "The truckers get a little, the washers get a little, the rail gets a little. It's all local dollars we're keeping here."

Job creation goes beyond the sites where sand is handled. Local truck drivers from CD Corp. haul sand from locations in Arcadia, Wis., and the Biesanz Stone Quarry in Winona to Modern Transport and other facilities. CD Corp. co-owner Dan Nisbit said the company has seen additional revenue and added jobs since the silica sand boom arrived.

"It's created five to six new jobs, but probably saved 10 existing jobs," Nisbit said. He said the partnership with sand-washing and shipping facilities helps other local trucking companies, too.

"We have an agreement where we do all the trucking, and when we can't handle it as a company we hire (local) outside trucks," said Nisbit.

"Mount Frac" has created benefits for some, but it's dealt a dusty disadvantage to its neighbor across the street - Chrysler Winona.

"This summer, we noticed a sand problem," said general manager Andrew Puetz. "We noticed dust particles adhering to the paint."

Puetz isn't opposed to the industry – "More jobs mean more car sales," he said - as long as it doesn't affect his business. Puetz said because of dust from the sand piles, all 130 cars stored on-site need to be hand washed every two to three days. The company had to increase employee hours and hire an additional part-time employee to help with the extra labor, a move that Puetz said costs the dealership about $2,000 a month.

"The unknown cost is lost sales. That's the thing we're most concerned about," Puetz said. "We've had so many comments about how filthy our cars are and had customers ask what color they are."

Modern Transport has hired a street sweeper to clean dirt and dust off Second Street several times a day, but Puetz said the dust problems are worst during the cleanings. Other local businesses agreed.

"The only time the dust is really bad is when the street sweeper comes by," said Bryan Volkert, manager at Sears, which abuts the Modern Transport land. `"t creates a huge cloud of dust."

Dust isn't the only concern.

At the Winona YMCA, executive director Andy Blomsness said the increase in truck traffic coming from the interstate bridge could make the facility more dangerous for members. The YMCA, a block from the bridge, has 3,900 members but only 96 parking spots, Blomsness said - members often park on nearby streets, then cross them to get to the building.

Wash. Legislature consider tribal rights bill

By Shannon Dininny
Associated Press

YAKIMA, Wash. ~ Lawmakers in Washington are considering a proposal to start dismantling the state's civil jurisdiction over American Indians, a step many consider long overdue. But some say they worry that restoring full sovereignty to tribes over their members might subject outsiders to unfair treatment in tribal courts.

Congress passed a law delegating jurisdiction over tribes to some states in 1953, at a period when the government was forcing Indians to assimilate. The law was sparked in part by public demand for improved law enforcement on reservations and a desire to offload financial burdens in the wake of World War II.

States such as Nebraska and Oregon have unraveled parts of the federal mandate in the years since. In Washington, the idea has garnered broad support following a series of meetings last year by a task force that included law enforcement, prosecutors and representatives of counties and cities.

Some people, though, fear tribes may fail to ensure due process for everyone, given a perceived lack of separation between some executive and judicial tribal government branches. They contend state courts must remain an option to settle disputes.

Jack Yearout spent months trying to get a parenting plan approved by the tribal court of the Yakama Nation, the state's largest tribe, which resides on a sprawling reservation east of Washington's Cascade Range.

Yearout is an enrolled member of the Nez Perce tribe in Idaho. The mother of his 5-year-old daughter, meanwhile, has ties to the Yakama Nation.

After several rulings in his favor, allowing him to visit his daughter, the Yakama Tribal Council adopted a resolution last summer stripping authority over child custody cases from the Yakama tribal courts, an example of the executive branch removing authority from the judicial branch.

"I support tribal sovereignty, but in my case, I didn't get due justice from the tribal court," Yearout said.

The federal law mandated civil and criminal jurisdiction over tribes in six states and authorized several others to assume jurisdiction if they chose. Washington did so in 1963, assuming state involvement in such matters as juvenile delinquency, truancy, mental illness and adoption proceedings and enabling state courts to hear cases involving Indians.

Tribes have long considered the law a breach of the treaties guaranteeing their sovereignty.

Significant effort has been made in recent years to improve law enforcement and court systems on reservations, and Washington has already returned criminal jurisdiction to some tribes.

The proposed bill creates a "retrocession" procedure by which a tribe can ask the state to return its jurisdiction over not just criminal, but also civil matters, to the federal government and the tribes themselves. The state would retain jurisdiction over sexually violent predators.

Retrocession allows tribes to be treated like a sovereign government as they were promised, and it allows states to pass budget burdens off on another government entity, just as occurred decades ago, said Carole Goldberg, professor at the UCLA School of Law.

Goldberg also noted that tribes often win federal grants and assistance that states don't qualify for, which could improve services in a local community.

Democratic state Rep. John McCoy, the bill's sponsor and a member of Washington's Tulalip tribe, said the biggest concerns about the bill have centered on whether the non-Indian community is losing any rights.

"Tribes have co-jurisdiction now, and it's not your decision on whether tribes get retrocession," he said. "It's like we're the child, and the non-Indian government is the parent."

About a half-dozen Washington tribes testified in favor of it the bill, including the Yakama Nation.

Yakama Tribal Council Chairman Harry Smiskin did not return telephone calls about the bill. However, in a House committee hearing, he said it allows for cohesive law enforcement among tribes and local and state agencies.

He did not address civil jurisdiction.

"This gives members of the Yakama Nation pride in their government again," Smiskin said. "It says there is a true government to government relationship with the state of Washington."

The proposal is widely expected to pass the Legislature.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Go-green Painting, LLC.

Go-Green Painting, LLC is the canvas for Danforth's new business

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Allen Danforth started his business Go-Green Painting, LLC four months ago building on his 15 years of experience as a professional commercial and residential painter.

If a client wants to see a sample of Allen Danforth's skill as a professional painter, all he/she would need to do is knock on his front door.

"I painted this to look like wood," he explained of his steel door.

Danforth is the owner of Go-Green Painting LLC which does commercial and residential painting using environmentally friendly paints that have low volatile organic chemicals (VOC).

"Everything's going green, everything's gearing towards that," said Danforth.

Danforth has 15 years of professional painting experience. He worked on many of the large homes built in Thornberry Creek.

"When those homes are showcased, everything has to be perfect," he said.

Danforth thought about starting his own business several years ago, but was making good money where he was. Then the economy went sour, and he found himself getting laid off.

With some encouragement from a friend and a chance meeting with Jeff Bowman of the American Indian Chamber of Commerce of Wisconsin, Danforth began to explore the possibility of entrepreneurship.

"(Bowman) started having me itemize everything that would be needed, and start forming a business plan, start crunching all the numbers of what it would take," said Danforth. "I just had a lot of help through this whole process."

Danforth worked with several good painting businesses, but also has witnessed some organizations cutting corners.

"I couldn't understand how they could get away with it and do the things that they do meaning the quality," he said. "Having my own business is being in control of the way the job's going to be done."

Danforth has been working on getting Go-Green Painting LLC started for four months.

"Having my own company, it's not an easy thing to do, otherwise everyone would be doing it," said Danforth with a laugh. "People don't realize that there's a lot of hours that are involved besides just the job. Sometimes I get up at 5:00 in the morning taking care of other things."

Danforth sees a great need for his services in the area, but worries that many homeowners prefer to put off painting projects until it's too late.

"I see a lot of people not doing a lot of maintenance on their homes," he said. "A prime example is the wood molding around a garage door. If they properly maintain that with primer and paint, the cost of that would be so much cheaper to maintain your home as opposed to wait until it rots out. Then you have to bring in the carpenter, and then you have to replace the wood molding."

Currently, Danforth gets some part time help from one of his daughters, but would like to grow his business.

"Hopefully as the revenue grows, I'll be able to bring in more family members," he said.

To contact Go-Green Painting LLC, call 920-366-0778 or email gogreenpainting@new.rr.com or look for his business on Facebook.

A Positive Exercise of Sovereignty

I support holding General Tribal Council meetings in the facility that is most safe for our Oneida people. It is apparent to me, when I look down from where I sit at General Tribal Council meetings in a relatively un-crowded area on the stage at the Radisson Hotel, that the area below is not a good place to hold large General Tribal Council meetings. That area, where almost 2,000 of our Oneida people are seated, is overcrowded, uncomfortable, and I say unsafe. If something should happen that would cause a panic, we would have a major disaster on our hands and our babies, our infirm and our elderly would be at the most risk for serious injury or even death. Such disasters have happened many times over throughout the United States and the world.

As elected Indian leaders, all members of the Oneida Business Committee have all been taught to put our people first. It is our people's comfort and their safety that must come first. I know the Tribal Secretary's Office has visited the facility and I have heard good reports about that facility. I am convinced that the Shopko Hall facility would be a more comfortable and safe place to hold General Tribal Council meetings. Those who are against holding General Tribal Council meetings at Shopko Hall should visit the facility and determine for themselves where our people would be most comfortable and safe.

On the issue of sovereignty, sovereignty is the inherent right of human beings to govern their own lives, a right provided by the creator of us all. For Oneidas, our ancestors long ago agreed to live collectively by a set of rules. Many call those rules "The Great Law." Today, Oneidas live under a Tribal Constitution. The laws (rules) that we live by today, were adopted under the authority of our Constitution. Those laws (rules) can be directly linked from the traditions created under The Great Law traditions practiced by our ancestors so many years ago. Central to those traditions is what I stated above, that is, Indian leaders (Oneida leaders) must always put the safety and well-being of their people first. I believe that is what the Oneida Business Committee did when the Business Committee agreed to hold the April 21st General Tribal Council meeting at Shopko Hall. Thanks for reading.

GTC Meeting Law

This law has been completed by the team and forwarded to the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC). In the near future, an analysis will be done, comments will be made by other members of the LOC and then it will be brought back and finalized. After this is completed a Public Hearing will be held. Once those comments are looked at and possibly incorporated into the law, it will be presented to the GTC for their action.

Dream Homes

When I last wrote about the interest rates of this program it was because of the disparity in the program. I am glad to write that working with the Division of Land Management (DOLM) and the Land Commission, these rates have been corrected. Effective immediately new Dream Home Loans will be at 4% and VA Loans will be at 3.5%. DOLM is working on new guidelines to be put in place for existing Dream Home Loans and sometime in March individuals should be able to refinance their loans at the lower rate, thus saving the buyers several hundred dollars. Individuals will not be able to get cash back they would be refinancing to the lower 4% rate. I want to commend both entities for working together and resolving this inequity for our tribal members.

Quality of Life

This is a committee made up of five individuals. Although this group is still in the forming stage, their goal is to bring about a better community to our members.

Head Start

Last week the U.S. Government was holding Tribal Consultation Meetings in Petoskey, Michigan. I was scheduled to go, but due to some pre-scheduled meetings Melinda Danforth is filling in for me as she was scheduled to be in Petoskey later in the week. To cut down on expenses to the Tribe, she went one day earlier and attended the meeting in my place. Thank you, Melinda.

The Head Start Policy Council meets at noon on the third Tuesday of each month at the Three Sisters Building. Due to conflicting schedules with BC Executive sessions, I have not been able to attend. However, my assistant has gone in my place and reports that this group is very in-tune with meeting the needs of the children of our community. They meet to discuss and take care of business at hand, sometimes questioning both the director and management reports. They are to be commended for staying on top of all that is happening in Head Start.

Larsen Road Project

Traffic has increased in this area and the project is moving forward. A schedule has been developed and some of the more important dates are fast approaching. Proposals are due this week. In the coming weeks a firm will be selected, contract negotiations will begin, final design and construction plans will be formulated and then construction can begin. Right now we are looking at building completion somewhere around mid-October.

Anna John Resident Care Center Update

This building project is moving forward at an incredible pace. Since I last wrote about this facility in January, other areas within this project have taken on more dimensions and it's beginning to look more like a building.

DOT Meetings

I have been attending meetings with the Wisconsin Department of Transportation on the Highway 54 Project and also the De Pere Project. These meetings have been helpful in determining alternate routes around the project and getting to our businesses and workplaces during the construction. By now you may have been affected by the closure of Mason Street and some of the frontage roads and the need to find alternate routes around the city. Signs have been posted in various locations showing how to get to the affected businesses. Remember, this will be going on till the end of July.

Indian Preference Law

This week I am bringing together a group of individuals to sit down and go over the existing Indian Preference Law and see what changes need to be made. This law is outdated and needs to be revamped. I believe it needs to be written so as to bring our members better work opportunities in projects that are being built on our reservation. Changes also need to be made as to what exactly is "Indian preference". Right now some of these guidelines do not meet federal standards and will have to be changed to be in compliance with federal regulations, particularly in housing needs. I will update you on further developments as they happen.

Housing Opportunities

The Oneida Housing Authority is actively seeking to help our membership in their quest for reservation housing. There are several avenues for individuals to take when seeking a rental property or home ownership. Some of the programs they have available are: Low income, 10-15 year loan, lease to own, Section 184, Dream Loan, conventional mortgage, USDA guaranteed Rural Housing Loan, USDA 502 direct, flat rate renting and income based renting. If interested, please contact Brian Denny at Oneida Housing Authority, 869-2227. He also provides budgeting classes for tribal members.

Conclusion

Again I want to thank you, the general membership, for taking the time to read these articles and as always I am available to meet with you, should you so desire. I can be reached at 920-869-4482 or you can e-mail me at djordan1@oneidanation.org .

(3) The decision is clearly erroneous and is against the weight of the evidence presented at the hearing level;
(4) The decision is arbitrary and/or capricious;
(5) There is exhibited a procedural irregularity which would be considered a harmful error that may have contributed to the final decision, which if the error had not occurred, would have altered the final decision;
(6) There is a presentation or introduction of new evidence that was not available at the hearing level which, if available, may have altered the final decision.

To conserve time and space provided, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System will only put into print the Initial Review Decisions which have been denied. The cases that have been accepted at Initial Review will be published when the final adjudication has been entered.

Denied according Rules of Appellate Procedure, Rule 9(E) Failure of Allegations. If the appellant fails to sufficiently allege one of the criteria of Rule 9(D) above such that the Initial Review body cannot determine the basis for the allegation or the issue within the original hearing body decision, the appeal may be denied.

Appellate Court Decisions

Donald J. Hahnke vs. Donald R. White, Governmental Services Director.

Docket No. 11-AC-014, September 30, 2011. Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester, Linda Cornelius (Pro Tem), Pearl House (Pro Tem), Lois Powless and Jennifer Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of an Oneida Personnel Commission decision which upheld, Appellant, Donald J. Hahnke's layoff of September 22, 2009. This case was remanded to the Personnel Commission to hear the merits of the assertion based on the incomplete record submitted to this Appellate Body for review by the Personnel Commission.

Oneida Bingo & Casino, Cage/Vault Department, Al Griffey vs. Jessica Kristof.

Docket No. 11-AC-009, October 7, 2011. Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Winnifred L. Thomas, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of an Oneida Personnel Commission (OPC) majority decision which overturned a two-day suspension of Respondent, Jessica Kristof. Ms. Kristof was suspended for two (2) days for violation of Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures, Section V.D.2.I.g Work Performance, Negligence in the performance of assigned duties. (W/S/T). Ms. Kristof had previously received a verbal warning for unfound shortages on October 13, 2010 and a written warning on December 11, 2010; all three violations were for negligence in the performance of assigned duties and were within a twelve month period. The Appellate review body agreed with the OPC dissenting decision of the OPC finding the Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures (Blue Book) to be law of the Oneida Tribe utilized when issuing disciplinary actions to tribal employees and not the Standard Operating Procedures as ruled in the majority OPC decision. OPC majority decision reversed, two (2) day suspension reinstated.

Paula Schommer vs. Oneida Bingo & Casino, Cage/Vault Department, Connie Hill.

Docket No. 11-AC-010, October 10, 2011. Pro Tem Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Marjorie Stevens (Pro Tem), Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of an OPC decision which upheld the termination of Appellant, Paula Schommer. Appellant, Paula Schommer was a cage cashier in the Oneida Bingo and Casino Cage/Vault Department. She was issued a Termination on January 19, 2011 for a violation of the Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures V.D.2.I. Work Performance, Sub – Sec (g) Negligence in the performance of assigned duties. (W/S/T) and V.D.3. Accumulated Disciplinary Actions Warranting Termination, Sub-Sec: (c) The accumulation of three (3) of any combination of upheld warning notices and/or upheld suspensions within any twelve (12) month period. (T) Through the evidence presented to the Appellate Court Ms. Schommer failed to complete the transaction properly on the computer thereby resulting in overpayment to the next customer. Schommer argued the Standard Operating Procedures were never followed and she should have been disciplined under the Cage/Vault Over/Short Standard Operating Procedures. Oneida Case Law establishes that the Blue Book/Oneida Personnel Policies & Procedures trumps any Standard Operating Procedure. The Appellate Court affirmed the May 06, 2011 decision of the OPC to uphold the termination of the Appellant, Paula Schommer.

Claudia Skenandore vs. Florence Petri.

Docket No. 11-AC-023, November 4, 2011. Judicial Officers, Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester and Jennifer Webster presiding. This was an Interlocutory Appeal of OPC's decision to deny the Appellant, Claudia Skenandore's Motion to Remove the Indispensable party from a case before the Personnel Commission. The OPC's decision was made to Join Martha Braeger as a party to the case. The Appellate Court was asked to intervene in this matter and order the OPC to reverse their decision. The Appellate Court ruled, Ms. Braeger is allowed to be a party to this case based on past precedent case Tenielle Johnson, Oneida Community Health Center vs. Rita Reiter Personnel Relations Officer, Cher Becker, Dental Assistant, 09-ADV-001. The Appellant's Motion to Remove Ms. Braeger as the Indispensible Third Party is denied.

Oneida Bingo & Casino Bingo Department, Samantha Skenandore vs. Wayne Lambert.

Docket No. 11-AC-018, December 13, 2011. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster residing. This case was an appeal of the OPC's decision of July 7, 2011. In that decision the OPC ruled to compensate Mr. Lambert for preforming the duties of the Bingo Caller since the date of March 15, 2008. The OPC ordered the Area Manager to correct the situation with the Respondent, Mr. Lambert's, job description, his job, duties, responsibilities and wages within thirty days of receipt of their decision. The Appellate Court ruled that the OPC's decision to be Erroneous, Arbitrary and/or Capricious. The Appellate Court ruled this case should have been adjudicated as a complaint as the Area Manager had attempted to do. The Area Manager was in contact with the Oneida Human Resources in regard to what is considered a Complaint or an Adverse Employment Action. The OPC failed to consider the evidence presented by the Appellant concerning how this matter was handled. This Appellate Court found the OPC was outside their scope of authority when they ordered an employee to be reassigned and then to determine the employee's wages. The Appellate Court ruled, the OPC's decision to be outside the scope of their authority or otherwise unlawful, clearly erroneous and against the weight of the evidence presented. The Appellate Court overturned the decision of the Oneida Personnel Commission.

Oneida Bingo & Casino, Bingo Dept., Samantha Skenandore vs. Lisa Kinjerski.

Docket No. 11-AC-015, December 16, 2011. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of an OPC decision which overturned the termination of Respondent, Lisa Kinjerski. Kinjerski was terminated from employment after her fourth upheld written warning in a five-month period. The OPC overturned the termination based on the alleged failure of management to meet the time lines for investigation and discipline. However upon a closer review, the Appellate Court found that management did meet the timelines. The Appellate Court upheld the termination and overturned the OPC's decision and listed a number of cases concerning timelines.

Trial Court Decisions

Judicial Officer Leland Wigg-Ninham vs. Oneida Tribal Judicial System.

Docket No. 11-TC-136, October 4, 2011. Judicial Officers Stanley R. Webster, Kathy Hughes (Pro Tem) and Carole Liggins (Pro Tem) presiding. This case originated with Petitioner, Judicial Officer Leland Wigg-Ninham filing suit against the Oneida Tribal Judicial System to halt the implementation of the internal selection of full-time Judicial Officer seats within the OTJS. Selection was made in accordance with the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Judicial Code, Chapter 1, Article III, Section 5 "Full Time Judicial Officer(s) are selected internally by the members of the Oneida Tribal Judicial System when a position becomes vacant…" Although Judicial Officer Wigg-Ninham participated in the selection, he failed to be selected and filed an Injunction to stay the implementation until such time as a hearing body could amend current policy, or the pending Judiciary Act be approved in which individuals run for specific positions within the Judiciary. OTJS filed a brief in Opposition to the Motion for Injunctive Relief and filed a Motion for Attorney's Fees for Filing a Frivolous Action. The Trial Court denied Judicial Officer Wigg-Ninham's request for a preliminary injunction. The Trial Court found the Petitioner, Wigg-Ninham's injunctive request to be a frivolous claim and awarded attorney's fees in the amount of $375.00 to the OTJS.

Linda S. Dallas vs. Oneida Election Board, Oneida Police Department.

Docket No. 11-TC-105, October 5, 2011. Pro Tem Judicial Officers James Van Stippen, Gerald Cornelius, Robert Miller, Jr. presiding. Petitioner, Linda S. Dallas filed a complaint on August 10, 2011, contesting the results of the Oneida General Election of July 16, 2011. Ms. Dallas was a candidate for a Oneida Business Committee Council Member and lost in the election and alleged violation of the Oneida Election Law Recount Procedure, Section C. The Trial Court found Ms. Dallas's filing was late as she failed to file her challenge to the election within 10 calendar days in accordance with the Election Law, Section D,2.11-11. The election was held on July 16, 2011, making any challenge due on July 26, 2011. Ms. Dallas filed her complaint on August 10, 2011, 16 days late. The Trial Court agreed with the Respondents' assertion "The Petitioner attempted to sidestep the Oneida Election Law by filing the complaint alleging Constitutional violation." Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss pursuant to Rule 14(B)(C) Involuntary Dismissal which was granted by the Trial Court.

Family Court Cases

O.B.C. Legislative Operating Committee

LOC Update

How Are Tribal Laws and Policies Created?

What does it take to turn a concept into an actual, enforceable law, policy, or other legislation? Every jurisdiction has different requirements. For the Oneida Tribe, legislation is handled by the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC), which is made up of the five Councilmembers of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC). The LOC is responsible for processing new laws, policies, bylaws and other legislation, and for processing any amendments or repeals of current legislation.

There are two main processes for adopting, amending and repealing laws and policies—usually, these legislative changes are approved and enacted by the OBC, but sometimes, laws and policies are processed following a directive from General Tribal Council (GTC) or require GTC approval. For the purposes of this article, the following chart just shows the regular process—where new legislation, amendments or repeals are processed directly through the OBC.

Sometimes there are variations, or additional requirements in the legislative process, but the steps set out below are the main roadmap for implementing, amending, or repealing a Tribal law or policy.

Step One: Agenda Request Form

Any person or entity can ask the LOC to create a law or policy.

The first step to initiate this process is for the requester to submit an Agenda Request Form to the Legislative Reference Office. The form contains a few basic questions such as what kind of law or policy is being requested? Why is this being requested? Who can we contact if there are any questions?

The requester may, but is not required to, also submit suggested draft language or supplemental information which helps explain why the law or policy might be necessary.

Once an Agenda Request Form has been completed and submitted, the request will be placed on an upcoming LOC agenda, usually the next one to be held.

Step Two: Active Files List

Once a request is placed on the agenda, the item will be addressed during an LOC meeting.

LOC meetings are open to the public, and the requester (or any other person) is welcome to attend the meeting to answer any questions the LOC might have, and/or speak about the request.

Then the LOC discusses the matter: Is this issue something that requires legislation, or can it be resolved another way? Would this legislation be useful and beneficial? Does it resolve or prevent any problems? Is this the right time to address this? Will this be a priority? How much will it cost to implement this proposal?

If the LOC determines it is appropriate, the item is added to the Active Files List and an LOC member will be selected to sponsor the item. The sponsor is then responsible for guiding the item through the rest of the legislative process.

Step Three: Research, Consultation and Drafting

Once an item is on the Active Files List, it is turned over to the Legislative Reference Office, where the matter is researched. A staff attorney works with the sponsor and any other necessary parties to determine exactly what needs to be included in the law or policy; then, drafting work is done.

If proposed language had been submitted, it will be reviewed and revised to ensure it conforms with the Format For Laws and other requirements for Tribal laws or policies.

The drafting process can involve numerous meetings with the sponsor and other interested parties, and continues until a draft is ready for the LOC to review.

Do you need an Agenda Request Form? Do you want to submit Public Hearing comments? Do you have suggestions, questions, or even just want more information about anything the LOC is working on?

Meetings—LOC meetings are generally held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month, at 9:00 a.m. in the Business Committee Conference Room on the second floor of the Norbert Hill Center, Oneida, WI. These meetings are open to the public.

Office—The Legislative Reference Office is also located on the second floor of the Norbert Hill Center, and is open during normal Tribal business hours.

E-mail—Legislative Reference Office Paralegal Tonya Boucher can be reached at Tboucher@oneidanation.org.

Phone: (920) 869-4240

Website: for more information about current laws and policies, or to learn more about the LOC or LOC members, please visit the Tribal Website at https://oneida-nsn.gov and click on the link for Government.

Mail: Legislative Reference Office
PO Box 365
Oneida WI 54155

Step Four: Legislative Analysis

When the initial draft is complete, it is sent for Legislative Analysis.

The LRO Staff reviews the draft, checking for consistency with other Tribal laws and policies, and identifying the potential effects of the legislation.

The LRO Staff also works to resolve any drafting issues or problems that are found during the analysis—sometimes, this means additional changes may need to be made to the draft, or that additional issues must be brought back to the sponsor for further direction.

When all issues are resolved, the LRO Staff drafts an analysis explaining what the law or policy would do and identifies any potential impacts of the legislation.

When this step of the process is completed, the analysis and the draft legislation are sent back to the LOC for review and consideration.

Step Five: LOC and OBC Review

When the analysis and draft legislation are before the LOC for consideration, sometimes, the LOC will request additional changes to a draft. If this occurs, Step Four is repeated.

But once a draft is approved by the LOC, the draft legislation and the accompanying legislative analysis will be scheduled for a public hearing date (if required). Then, the draft legislation and accompanying legislative analysis forwarded to the OBC, which ratifies a Public Hearing date.

Sometimes the OBC will determine additional changes are still required to the draft, before it is sent to Public Hearing. When this occurs, the item is sent back to the LOC , the changes are made, and then Step Four is repeated.

Step Six: Public Hearing and Comment Review

After a Public Hearing Date is approved, it is noticed in the Kalihwisaks, Tribal Website, and other places around the Reservation. Tribal law requires notice be posted and published at least 10 days before the Public Hearing, including the time and location of the Public Hearing, and a description of the new or changed law.

All interested parties are welcome to attend a public hearing. Anyone may speak about the subject of the Public Hearing and there is a five-minute time limit per person. Each person who speaks is encouraged to provide a written copy of his or her oral testimony.

If you are unable to attend or speak at the Public Hearing, written testimony can be submitted within 10 days of the hearing (10 page maximum, double-spaced),. These ten days are known as the "public comment period."

After all of the Public Hearing comments and written testimony have been received, the LOC will review them to determine if any additional changes should be made to the draft law. If substantial changes are made to the draft law, then another Public Hearing will be held, and the process repeats at Step Four.

Once a final draft is complete, and has completed the Public Hearing process without requiring substantial changes, then the LOC will forward that item to the OBC for approval.

Last Step: OBC Adoption

Once the LOC is satisfied that all of the public comments have been considered and they approve a final draft; then they vote on whether to forward the final draft to the OBC for adoption. After an item is forwarded to the OBC, the OBC will review it and vote on whether or not to adopt the proposal.

If adopted, the new or amended legislation is filed with the Tribal Secretary's Office. Unless stated otherwise in the legislation, all changes go into effect 10 days after OBC adoption.

So that's it, the entire legislative process from start to finish! In upcoming issues of the Kalihwisaks, we will bring readers more information about additional LOC work. If there is a legislative topic you would like to learn more about, let us know.

Stay informed on Oneida Tribal laws and policies!

Wisconsin in Brief

2 Milwaukee infants die within hours of each other

MILWAUKEE (AP) – Two Milwaukee infants have died within hours of each other - both in sleep-related incidents.

The deaths bring the number of sleep-related infant deaths in Milwaukee to four this year.

The Milwaukee County Medical Examiner says Monday that a 2-month-old boy was found unresponsive Friday morning with his 3-year-old brother on top of him. The baby had been in a bed with his brother, their mother, and the mother's boyfriend.

The mother told authorities the baby normally slept in a Pack `n Play but was brought into the bed because he was fussing.

Hours later, a 4-month-old girl was found unresponsive in a bed with her mother. The mother told authorities she had about three beers then fell asleep hours later. She woke up and the girl wasn't breathing.

Who's responsible for costly cleanup of Fox River?

MILWAUKEE (AP) – A federal trial in Milwaukee has several paper companies arguing over which firms are responsible for cleaning up the Fox River contaminated decades ago by discharges from the papermaking process.

Appleton Papers Inc. and NCR Corp. say they can't be held solely responsible for the expensive cleanup because other paper companies bought scrap paper from them and used it to make recycled paper, a process that discharged PCB contaminants into the river. But, Georgia-Pacific and other area paper companies say Appleton Papers and NCR arranged for them to dispose of the PCB waste and should be solely responsible. The case was moved from Green Bay to Milwaukee because more than 30 lawyers are involved.

The Green Bay Press-Gazette says (http://post.cr/wpTObA) the cleanup is expected to cost at least $750 million.

Pope sets October 21 to make US saints

VATICAN CITY (AP) – Pope Benedict XVI has set Oct. 21 as the date to make two U.S. saints: Kateri Tekakwitha, a Mohawk Indian who spent most of her life in what is now upstate New York, and Mother Marianne Cope, who began religious life in the same area but moved to Hawaii to care for leprosy patients. Benedict had already approved miracles attributed to the two, the final step toward sainthood. At the end of a ceremony Saturday to make 22 new cardinals – including New York Archbishop Timothy Dolan – Benedict announced the date for canonization of the two women and five others.

Dolan marveled that his first official act as a cardinal was to formally OK the New York-area saints. He quipped: "As grateful as I am for being a cardinal, I really want to be a saint."

Judges want Wis. lawmakers to reassess voting maps

By Dinesh Ramde
Associated Press

Milwaukee, WI – Federal judges on Tuesday postponed a trial over the state's latest election maps, telling lawyers for both sides to spend the day determining whether lawmakers would consider drawing new maps.

Presiding Judge J.P. Stadtmueller cited a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling in which the justices concluded that redistricting is best handled by lawmakers as much as possible, not by judges.

Stadtmueller gave the lawyers until 5:30 p.m. Tuesday to "advise the court whether there is opposition to addressing this matter in the forum where it should be addressed - the Wisconsin Legislature."

Redistricting is the process in which lawmakers draw new maps for voting districts every 10 years to account for population changes.

The most recent maps, drawn in secrecy and approved last year by Republicans who control the state Legislature, are GOP-friendly. In some cases they cluster Republicans and disperse Democrats in ways that Democrats say could make it harder for them to win future elections.

Democrats and an immigrant-rights group have sued the state Government Accountability Board to prevent the board from conducting elections based on the new maps.

Daniel Kelly, an attorney representing the Government Accountability Board, told reporters the next step would be for attorneys to see whether the majority and minority leaders in the state Senate and Assembly had any interest in taking up the issue again.

"I would hate to speculate" on what they'll do, he said.

In the Assembly, Republican Majority Leader Jeff Fitzgerald and Democratic Minority Leader Peter Barca both declined to comment.

The state Senate leaders, Republican Scott Fitzgerald and Democrat Mark Miller, did not immediately return messages.

If lawmakers agree to revisit the issue, the trial will be postponed three or four weeks. If lawmakers decline, the trial will begin Wednesday morning.

The plaintiffs are asking the court to invalidate the 2012 maps and to order that the previous maps be used for elections this year until the court establishes a fairer redistricting plan.

Gov. Scott Walker, his lieutenant governor and four state senators - all Republicans - are being targeted for recall. The outcome of the redistricting case would only affect contests for Senate seats because the governor and lieutenant governor are statewide races. State elections officials are currently trying to determine whether enough valid signatures have been submitted for the elections to proceed this year.

The new maps could give Republicans an edge toward maintaining their 17-16 majority in the Senate.

Democrats had called on Walker to veto the maps. Doing so, they said, would go a long way toward showing he was serious about being more bipartisan following rancorous debates during his first six months in office, most notably over his collective-bargaining proposal that spurred the recalls.

But Walker signed off on the maps in August, saying he believes they meet the legal standards of fairness in their treatment of communities of interest, minority representation, and compact, contiguous districts.

The plaintiffs are asking the court to intervene in the drawing of new maps, a request with some precedent.

The last three times redistricting was taken up in Wisconsin, due to split political control, the Legislature and governor were unable to agree upon a plan. Each of those times, in the 1980s, 1990s and 2000s, a federal court had to intervene and approve a map for state legislative districts.

The trial this week marks the latest step following a series of preliminary rulings that have gone against Republicans. Last week the federal court issued a scathing order forcing Republican lawmakers to make public emails and other documents they wanted to keep secret related to the redrawing of political boundaries.

The judges said Republican lawmakers made a "poorly disguised" attempt to "cloak the private machinations of Wisconsin's Republican legislators in the shroud of attorney-client privilege."

The judges called it a "shameful attempt to hide the redistricting process from public scrutiny."

Previous disclosures in the lawsuit revealed that nearly all of the state's Republican lawmakers signed a legal agreement in which they promised to not comment publicly about redistricting discussions while the maps were being drafted.

Another document of talking points prepared by legislative staff for state Rep. Robin Vos, the powerful co-chairman of the budget-writing committee, warned him to ignore public comments about the maps and focus instead on what was being said in private strategy meetings.

Today, it is one of the largest university powwows in the nation; according to USA Today Travel, it is one of "10 great places to be wowed by American Indian culture."

The 2012 Powwow will continue the tradition of providing a gathering place for Native Americans to celebrate and share their culture with one another, and for others who are interested in learning about our country's strong indigenous heritage. This year's Powwow will host over 150 dancers, 12 drums, and over 33 vendors/artists from across the nation and throughout Indian Country. In addition, there will be special celebrations to pay tribute to 40 strong years of powwowing for Mother Earth.

Ore. tribal courts deliver 'restorative justice'

By Tyler Richardson
The World

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) – For years, Judge Donald Costello sentenced offenders to jail and prison terms, only to see them back in his courtroom with nothing to show for their time served.

Costello doesn't work that way anymore. Instead, he practices an innovative spin on the judicial system that has become an effective restorative-justice program.

"Our recidivism rate is around 5 percent," said Diane Whitson, court clerk for the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Suislaw Indians. "There is as much as a 67 percent failure rate of people who are incarcerated. We haven't had anyone re-offend since we started this system."

That system is known as the Peacegiving Court. Costello was part of a team that invented it in Deschutes County, and now it's part of the judicial systems for both the Coquille Indian Tribe and the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Suislaw Indians.

Restorative justice emphasizes repairing the harm caused by the crime, making offenders take accountability for their actions and their crimes' effect on victims. The victims are active participants, providing insight on a crime's impact and helping devise solutions.

Joe Ward could tell by the look on his cousin's face he was in trouble. There would be no warnings or second chances this time.

The cousin, a Coquille tribal police officer, stopped Ward in 2004 for driving with a suspended license. Ward had neglected to pay nearly $6,000 in traffic fines. Little did he know, Ward was set to become the poster boy for a new peacegiving process that many tribal members still doubted.

"Joe was really the model case to answer people's questions if this would work," Costello said.

Costello could have imposed additional fines and revoked Ward's driver's license. But that would have left Ward unable to work and provide for his family.

Instead, Costello referred him to the Peacegiving Court. There, Ward was connected with a peacegiver, a mentor handpicked to create a plan for Ward's future.

Ward was then put into a peacegiving circle, in which the people affected by his poor decisions spoke to him. The circle included the peacegiver, Ward's aunt and his boss, among others.

A contract was then drawn up that allowed Ward to borrow money from his aunt and boss to pay off the fines while he continued to work. He also had to go through every tedious step to regain his driver's license.

"There was a lot of appointments and running around," he said. "That piece of license is gold, and that whole process made me realize that."

Within four months, Ward regained his license, which he happily showed to Costello. Soon after that, he paid his debts.

"It really taught me to be responsible," he said. "It was a good way to get me to learn a lesson."

Costello is the father of the Peacegiving Court. He began practicing restorative justice in the state court system in Deschutes County in 1984.

Costello said he did away with such words as 'punishment' and concepts like leniency. He focused instead on ways to teach offenders the real consequences of their actions.

Soon, Costello and his fellow judges were seeing lower recidivism rates.

In 1997, Costello was approached by the leaders of the Coquille Tribe. They were concerned about leadership within the tribe. They wanted to challenge the community to find other ways of justice.

Costello became the Coquille Tribe's chief judge and began working with tribal leaders. The Confederated Tribes joined the project in 2002, and soon both tribes had their models in place.

"He is the god when it comes to the Peacegiving Court," Whitson said. "We have all been trained by him."

Tribal members who violate tribal law can't get into Peacegiving Court unless they admit their guilt. Person-to-person disputes also can go to Peacegiving Court.

The party or parties are then connected with a peacegiver, who guides them through an agreed-upon plan. Most peacegiving cases involve juveniles, but adults can be referred as well.

"When a person commits an offense, it's not just one person involved," Whitson said. "Multiple people are affected. We find out everybody who is involved and give them the chance to speak."

The Coquille Tribe and the Confederated Tribes oversee areas within Coos, Curry, Lane and Douglas counties. The Coquille Tribe also stretches to Jackson County, and the Confederated Tribes reach Lincoln County. Any violation or dispute on tribal lands in these counties can be referred to a Peacegiving Court.

The court handles only what a state system would call misdemeanors, mostly dealing with vandalism, theft, person-to-person violence, custodial interference and some drug- and alcohol-related offenses. Any tribal member who commits a federal felony goes to non-tribal court.

The peacegivers are volunteers, and the system costs the tribe almost nothing. By comparison, Whiton estimates incarcerating an offender costs nearly $32,000 a year.

Tribe touts Minn. casino for Vikings stadium

ST. PAUL, MN (AP) – Leaders of northwestern Minnesota's White Earth Tribe tried Thursday to breathe new life into a previously unsuccessful request for state support for a new casino in the Twin Cities area by suggesting it as a way to raise money for a new Minnesota Vikings stadium.

White Earth Chairwoman Erma Vizenor, at a Capitol news conference, said the 20,000-member American Indian tribe - the state's largest - has desperate needs in health care, education and housing on its rural reservation about 250 miles northwest of Minneapolis. The tribe wants state lawmakers to vote to let them open a casino in the much more heavily populated Twin Cities, which Vizenor said would raise enough money to both alleviate tribal poverty and cover a taxpayer share of a stadium project that's likely to run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Vizenor said an estimate prepared for the tribe a few years ago said such a casino would clear $300 million in profit a year, which Vizenor said could be split 50-50 between the tribe and the state.

Supporters of the proposal face an uphill battle. A similar tribal casino bid in 2005, backed by then-Gov. Tim Pawlenty, died in a Senate committee after meeting heavy opposition, not just from opponents of expanded gambling but also other Minnesota tribes that already own casinos near the Twin Cities. Vizenor acknowledged White Earth has not been able to persuade other tribes to support the proposal since.

The Vikings have sought a replacement to the Metrodome for nearly a decade, contending it no longer generates sufficient revenue for the team to keep up with other NFL clubs, most of which are playing in new or renovated facilities. The Vikings' request has taken on new urgency in recent months because their lease at the Metrodome has expired. Although they are certain to play there at least one more season, fans - and state officials - fear a possible move to another city if they don't get a new stadium.

WIVA-OC hosts An Evening with writer Jim Northrup

The Wisconsin Indian Veterans Association – Oneida Chapter (WIVA-OC) hosted "An Evening with Jim Northrup" which was held at Doxbee's Banquet & Buffet in Seymour, WI on February 10, 2012.

The event featured a variety of activities such as a buffet style All-you-can-eat fish fry, door prizes, and a silent auction

Veterans Marshall Groleau and Edward Skenandore received special recognition for their volunteer work for Veterans and for the local VFW post.

However, the main attraction of the evening was the presentation by author and Veteran Jim Northrup.

Northrup is an Anishinaabe author and a Vietnam Veteran who served as an Automatic Rifleman in the Marine Corps's First Division.

He currently writes a syndicated column titled, Fond du Lac Follies. His work is distributed in The Circle, The Native American Press, and News From Indian Country.

The writer's speech at the dinner chronicled his life experiences and the lessons he has learned from them, as well as what Native people can learn from past experiences.

Beginning with his childhood, which was spent in a boarding school, to stories of his family, his time spent serving in Vietnam, and his experiences as an author it is immediately apparent that Northrup is not afraid to confront the darker aspects of life.

Northrup masterfully approaches real world issues with a serious tone, but can also inject a personal bit of humor that makes his story and his work a must read.

Duck Creek dam removal project making progress in early stages

Staff members of Oneida's Environmental, Health & Safety Division are working with the WI DNR, Brown County, US Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Oneida Golf and Country Club to remove dams in Duck Creek that prevent fish from moving up into other streams within the reservation. The project is currently in the design and engineering phase and the dams are expected to be removed in late summer.

The dam removal will benefit fish in many ways: by removing obstructions to upstream and downstream fish movement, restoring natural river habitat by allowing debris, small rocks and nutrients to pass below the dam, restoring natural seasonal flow variations, and eliminating unnatural temperature variations that occur above and below the dam.

Many local anglers like to fish right below the dams in Pamperin Park during spring and may feel that they will lose a good fishing opportunity. However, fish aren't below the dams because it is good habitat, they're getting stuck there while trying to move upstream to find spawning habitat. The removal of the dams will improve the health of the river, increase help to increase fish populations. Because of this local anglers can look forward to improved fishing opportunities along a much longer stretch of Duck Creek and its tributaries as fish will once again return to historic tribal fishing locations. Additionally, the dam removal will allow a wider variety of warm water, cool water and cold water species to occupy the same stretches of river at different times of the year, providing tribal members with greater fishing variety and opportunity.

Native American Carbon Researchers Partner with National Laboratory to Help Support Resettlement

Studies on the use of Amazon Black Earth technology to mitigate radiocesium plant uptake.

ONEIDA INDIAN RESERVATION, WI — February 21, 2012 —. Researchers from the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory and Dan Hawk, a climate change expert, who leads a team of American Indian scientists and engineers, have partnered to study the possible use of Black Earth technology (or Cpryo) to help mitigate the uptake of radiocesium in locally grown foods in the Marshall Islands.

After WWII, the United States conducted 66 nuclear detonations between 1946 and 1958, on once pristine inhabited atolls of Bikini and Enewetak in the northern Marshall Islands. The detonations contaminated the islands with radioactive fallout debris. Long-lived radionuclides such as radiocesium remain accumulated at different levels in indigenous terrestrial plants that may be used as food. To help reduce levels of radiation exposure and support on-going efforts by Marshall Islanders to resettle their ancestral homelands, the contaminated coral soils need to be remediated as a best practice under the general principles of ALARA (As Low As Reasonably Achievable).

"Terra Mulata an ancient indigenous Amazon Black Earth technology will be investigated at Lawrence Livermore and on the atolls this year," Hawk said. "Our team expects carbon, the main ingredient of Terra Mulata to significantly improve plant productivity as well as water/nutrient retention of coral soils, and potentially help decrease radiocesium uptake in plants."

Together with existing recommendations on remediation of radiocesium uptake into tree-crop products such as coconut, this work may provide an alternative method to using large amounts of chemical fertilizers as opposed to a one-time application of Cpryo, especially for use in home vegetable gardens, said Terry Hamilton, head of LLNL's Marshall Island Program.

"We envisage that this work will ultimately support food security and economic development of island communities, and provide added assurances on radiation safety and health. We hope these efforts will help bring about dietary change to combat rampant indigenous diabetes; as the Marshall Islands has one of the highest rates of diabetes in the world", Hawk said.

The instructors are Attorney Rebecca Webster and Real Estate Services Area Manager Mary Jo Nash. The classes started in 1996 to train all of the Land Management staff on the basics of tribal law. After the first course, staff from other tribal programs and boards found the discussion and information helpful in their positions. Participants have attended from the community including Casino, Appeals, Commission, Compliance Division, Business Development Unit, Tribal School, Land Commission, GLIS, Environmental Department and Personnel Department. So far, 112 attendees have received a Land Commission Certificate for completing this annual course.

The class size is small in order to facilitate discussions. A limit of 12-15 participants is usually accepted. The discussions focus on various federal eras of Indian policy and law, and how the Oneida Tribe was specifically impacted. In addition to lectures, lively sharing of information is generally received from the participants as the class moves through the traditional early years of the government, the Allotment Era, Indian Reorganization Era, and the present Self-Determination Era.

The class focuses on tribal laws and authority of different branches of the Oneida government, with an emphasis on Oneida tribal land transactions. Invited speakers from tribal programs such as the Appeals Commission, Environmental Department, and Tribal History enhance the discussion of how the Tribe as a whole carries on its business.

A tour is given of selected reservation properties, and then continues with an in-depth discussion of how and why properties are purchased within the Oneida Reservation boundaries. The overlap between tribal law and state law is evident in the area of acquiring land. This area is also where there are frequent jurisdictional and political disputes between the Oneida Tribe and surrounding state governments.

We invite you to think about joining us on March 1, 2012, 1:15-4:15 pm at the Division of Land Management Conference Room for our first class. March is right around the corner!!

It seems like it was yesterday when we learned to ride our bikes together, discovered that we both liked to dance and speak our language. It seems like we were never apart and everyone knew we were best friends. When we decided to go to school, we made sure we were going to be roommates. When you finally landed that first job after all your hard work, I was the first to say "congratulations." When you said you wanted to help the youth on the reservation, I said, "Let's do it together." Then came a time when you told me that you have a mental health problem, like depression and anxiety. Now I know that anyone can experience mental health problems, even Native People. We thought we knew everything, yet I really didn't understand what a difference my support can make in your recovery. Well, I am here for you. I will be here for you. And—as always—we will recover together.

Smoke Signals - Movie Review

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

Sometimes I like to reflect on some of the greatest movies I've seen in the past. Smoke Signals is one of the greatest Indian movies of all time. I cannot count how many times I've seen this movie or how many more times I would like to.

Thomas and Victor travel to get the remains of Victor's father. Their adventures begin when they hit the road. What makes this such a great movie is that to non-Indians it has humor, but to Indians, it has an entirely different humor to it. There are jokes that non-Indians would get, but there are also jokes non-Indians wouldn't understand.

This movie shows the hardships of current Indian reservation life, humor of all kinds, and is moving to many people of all shapes, sizes, and colors. Smoke Signals stars Adam Beach as Victor Joseph, Evan Adams as Thomas Builds-the-Fire, and Irene Bedard as Suzy Song. These actors have been in other Indian movies, and it doesn't hurt that they are real Indians as well. Adam Beach has played in movies such as Flags of our Fathers, and Cowboys & Aliens. Evan Adams starred in The Business of Fancydancing. Irene Bedard was a voice in the Disney movie Pocahontas as none other than The Pocahontas.

5 out of 5.

Remembering the Kennedy Assassination

By Sheldon Skenandore
Thunderhawk Times

A lot of people remember where they were the day John F. Kennedy was shot in Dallas, Texas. That includes some of our teachers.

Dave Santee is a special education teacher at ONHS. Here is a Question and Answer on what he remembers.

Dave Santee

Q. So, Dave, where were you at the time when John F. Kennedy was shot?
A. At school. I had just finished eating lunch. I was in second grade.

Q. Where were you exactly and what happened?
A. I was on the top of the slide. They called us into the school and told us that the president had been assassinated. The teachers were all crying. Everyone was sad and they took us in the gym to watch TV coverage.

Q. What do you remember of the next few days?
A. I remember Lee Harvey Oswald getting shot by Jack Ruby. I remember there were no cartoons on TV. They played that over and over. All I remember on TV was the coverage of the assassination. My favorite shows weren't on.

Q. Do you think there was a conspiracy involved in the President's assassination?
A. Yes. I think there was more than one gunman.

How about a Pet Snake?

By RJ Webster
Thunderhawk Times

Some people are cat people. Some people are dog people. There are between 86.4 and 93.6 million cats and 77.5 and 78.2 dogs owned in the US.

The number of households in the US is about 115.9 million.

If you want a different kind of pet, how about a snake? There are between 11 and 13.6 million snakes owned in the US.

What's cool about owning a pet snake? Well, I suppose you could say, "Nothing. They just sit there." But, they are actually pretty cool.

Probably the best thing about snakes is how beautiful they are. I know what you are probably thinking, "Snakes? Beautiful?" However, a snake's skin color can vary greatly and there are beautiful snakes.

Another interesting thing about a snake as a pet is its habits. For instance, snakes strangle their food. In fact, a person with a pet snake has to keep live food for them.

That makes cats and dogs pretty boring by comparison.

As far as how much a pet snake costs, that can be a lot or a little, somewhere between $20 and thousands of dollars, depending on how rare they are.

So, if you are looking for a pet that is unusual, I would recommend?

Pets snakes are in the news these days because people have released them when they got too big and they are taking over the Everglades. That is irresponsible.

Don't get a snake as a pet if you are not ready to take care of it.

Lin is a Good Role Model

By Kendrick Powless
Thunderhawk Times

Jeremy Lin is an Asian-American professional basketball player with the Knicks and has recently been a big part of all the sports headlines. Jeremy Lin is sort of like the underdog of today's sports. He had no college offers after attending Palo Alto High School after a 32-1 season.

It's interesting that Lin comes along right after an NFL season that had another feel-good story in Tim Tebow. What they have in common is that they were both underrated and yet they both have been pretty successful.

They are also both good role models to young people. Young people see that hard work and determination pay off and that you should never give up.

Colorstrology

By Matthew Powless
Thunderhawk Times

I found an interesting book at the Brown County Library called "Colorstrology." One online review says, "Colorstrology is a fascinating blend of astrology, numerology, and color theory that offers exciting new insights about our lives and relationships. Written by renowned astrologer Michele Bernhardt with the artists at Pantone, Inc., the global authority on color."

I took the book around my school and ask people for their birthdays and say their color and their personality. Furthermore it can also say your compatible birthdays.

Tasha Stevens said that when I showed her the color and the description for her birthday, "It was pretty cool. It was pretty close to describing who I am."

Dave Santee, "The description was kind of close, but it was nothing like how close Barak Obama's was."

That's right. We looked at the color and description for President Obama for August 4 and it was right on.

You can check the book out yourself.

One learns how to make driving safer, more comfortable, and more worry-free for one's self, the family who loves you and others on the road who depend on your driving abilities. The course is provided by AARP and is conducted by certified volunteer instructors.

The class runs for one/ four hour session, focusing on problems unique to older drivers. These include physical changes in eyesight, hearing, and reaction time which normally happen as people age. The instructors lead participants through a review of basic laws and patterns that may have changed since older drivers got their first license.

The goal of the program is to keep older drivers behind the wheel longer and more safely. It is difficult for the average driver to keep up with changes in traffic and related driving situations unless the individual takes a driving improvement course such as this. One example would be the additions of many "Round-Abouts". Some insurance companies may give a discount on insurance premiums for those taking the course. No tests are involved. The course is conducted in a classroom setting and there are no behind the wheel tests.

Frequently Asked Questions about the ORCCC

As of January 31, 2012 the following are responses to some frequently asked questions about the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC). As the moving date grows closer, we will continue to try to keep the community informed of our progress.

Q. When will the new facility be done?
A. Assuming no unexpected delays the building should be ready for occupancy Spring 2013

Q. What will the name of the building be?
A. The project steering committee has referred to the new facility as the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community, ORCCC however a formal recommendation on the name has been made and action taken by the Business Committee which will be forwarded thru the Naming process for the organization on 1/25/12.

Q. Where can I sign up for the building?
A. The new facility will be licensed as a nursing home and therefore anyone seeking admission will have a preadmission screening of their medical needs and safety issues. Priority will be given to those determined to be at the highest risk. In 2012 the Comprehensive Health Division will be establishing a case management program to assist in the screening process and details on who to contact will be available in the second half of 2012. Residents of the existing Anna John Nursing Home will be automatically admitted to the new facility.

Q. Will there be options for a husband or a wife who have been taking care of their partner in the community to move in together even if they have different medical or safety needs?
A. Options will be reviewed on a case by case basis – there are a limited number of units that can accommodate couples.

Q. Is this facility for Elders only?
A. The facility will not be limited only to Elders as there are younger people in the community with significant health issues who would be able to be considered for admission. However it is expected that the majority of the residents will be Elders.

Q. Will this facility be for tribal members only?
A. Because the facility will be certified for Medicare and Medicaid, admission cannot be restricted to Tribal members only however the case management screening process will play an important part in prioritizing the needs of Oneida Community members.

Q. Will the facility accept residents with Alzheimer's or Dementia?
A. Yes – the current Anna John Nursing Home accepts residents with Alzheimer's and dementia and the new facility will too. There are occasions when these types of residents need special care units and staff will help families find other facilities if that need arises.

Q. Who will be running the new facility and are they tribal?
A. The current Anna John Nursing Home staff will take over the operations in the new facility – some staff are Native, some are not but all have been hired according the Oneida Human Resources Department (HRD) policies which includes Indian Preference.

Q. How much will it cost to live there?
A. A daily rate will be established as the published rate. For Oneida community members, who are not yet eligible for Medicare, Medicaid or Supplemental Social Security Income SSI (Disability), an income sensitive daily rate will apply based on the level of care needed and assets available. There will be more details forthcoming in the summer of 2012. Unlike some of the services at the Oneida Community Health Center, Indian Health Services does not provide any funding for a facility like this and therefore, to reduce the financial burden to the Tribe; all sources of payment will be billed (example, private insurance, and Medicaid) and private payments will be necessary.

Q. What will happen to the old Anna John Nursing Home facility?
A. The Oneida Tribe has a committee that will address what will happen to the old Anna John Nursing Home facility. The committee reviews the existing structure and the cost to bring the existing structure to code if it is determined that the facility will become the home to another Tribal entity.

Q. Will there be a meal site, and will there be a charge for meals?
A. The current Elder Meal site will be closed and replaced with a new, larger meal site in the new facility. The meal site program rules will be the same as they are now and anyone who is not eligible for a free meal will pay a reasonable charge. Employees and guests of all ages will be able to get meals also for a reasonable fee.

If you have questions which are not answered here, please feel free to forward those questions to:

- Elder Services - Florence Petri or Lois Strong 869-2448
- Anna John Nursing Home - Jane Smith 869-2797
- Oneida Community Health Center - Debbie Danforth 869-2711

Insurance Companies are basing insurance rates on your credit, the lower your credit score the more insurance you will pay. In addition your credit is important if you are renting. Landlords are basing their decision to rent to you on your credit history. If you are planning on buying a home in the near future your credit determines if a bank will lend you money and if they will how much interest you will pay.

The Oneida Tribe is leading the way

By Michelle Myers
Community Health Nursing Dept.

The Oneida Tribe is the first Native-American Team that has been accepted into the Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute. In June 2011, a team was created for the purpose of impacting health and wellness for the Oneida Community. The team consists of representatives from Oneida Health Promotion, Oneida Family Fitness Center, Wise Women Gathering Place and the Oneida Community Health Nursing Department. "It has been exciting to be one of the seven elite teams selected to participate in this year's Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute program" says Jenny Berna of Oneida Health Promotion.

The summary of Team Oneida's action plan is as follows:

Goal Statement: To improve wellness in the Oneida Community by increasing awareness, access and utilization of wellness resources in the Oneida community.

Objective #1: By May 2012, assess awareness, access and utilization of Oneida wellness resources.

Objective #2: By June 2012, communicate HWLI project findings to key stakeholders and the Oneida Community.

The Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute has provided the teams with tools and training for successful planning, implementation and evaluation of selected projects.

Early on in the project, Team Oneida found a wide variety of wellness resources available in the Oneida Community. The question was posed, if there are so many wellness resources available, why does the Oneida Community suffer from so much chronic health and wellness concerns i.e. diabetes, obesity, mental health issues, domestic violence, etc.? One could assume that we just need better advertising and marketing of the wellness resources. However Team Oneida wanted to make no assumptions.

The team set out to learn why a community member might not utilize wellness resources that are currently available. With assistance from the dedicated staff of the Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute, Team Oneida developed an idea to take a grassroots approach to hearing the voice of the community. The team reached out to a handful of community members with key leadership skills. Team Oneida sat down with these leaders to plan a strategy to gather the community's voice. Their input was extremely valuable! The leaders were asked to complete a set of questions asking about wellness in the Oneida community. The leaders were then asked to casually meet with their circles of friends, family and other groups they interact, asking a smaller set of questions about wellness in the community. All interviews were completed by February 2012.

Team Oneida would like to say "thank you" to our leaders for all their assistance. Their participation and passion made all the difference for this project.

So what's next? The questions used during the interviews came from a research-based Community Readiness Survey. Themes and other findings from the community interviews are currently being compiled and scored. Team Oneida will communicate the results in a second kali article set to be published in March 2012. Additionally, Team Oneida hopes to bring the results to the newly developing Wellness Council in Oneida. Team Oneida feels this valuable project could help shape how the community learns about and utilizes available Oneida Community wellness resources.

What does the Ombudsman do?

By Dianne McLester-Heim
Oneida Ombudsman

As a general statement, the Ombudsman provides an informal, impartial, and confidential way to address complaints, concerns, questions, and conflicts that is independent of the 'normal' organizational system. The Ombudsman serves fairness, equity, and objectivity in the treatment of people and consideration of issues. What this means is that the Ombudsman…

- Receives and responds to complaints, concerns, questions, problems, and conflicts of both internal and external parties of the Oneida Nation. This can include community members, employees, and consumers that interact in some way with the Oneida Nation.
- Provides education and communication to the organization and the community regarding the duties and actions of the Ombudsman. This may include providing these services or assisting in providing these services on other topics and specific areas as they are identified.
- Conducts informal investigations to obtain information and data as necessary regarding matters that surface or are brought to the Ombudsman.
- Provides comments and non-binding recommendations or suggestions regarding potential solutions, proactive measures, or corrective measures.
- Assist parties in the areas of issue/problem identification and solution/resolution options while working to empower them to choose the option and actions they feel to be best.
- Collects and assesses data to identify trends and potential 'problems'. This includes assessing process, the application of process, system irregularities, and broader systemic issues from an outside neutral and impartial perspective.
- Communicate with the community and the organization at all levels.
- Maintain the confidentiality of parties unless given permission to share identity. The only exclusion is for imminent risk or threat.
- Is a voluntary option to work to address matter at the lowest level possible.

This also means that the Ombudsman does NOT…

- Accept 'notice' for the organization in any way. Formal matters of 'notice' are referred to the proper channels to be addressed.
- Force specific action(s) or impose specific solutions of a person, program, or the organization.
- Represent any party, group, or the organization.
- Become involved in formal actions or provide testimony.
- Change rules, policies, or procedures. The Ombudsman does not have authority over management.
- Replace formal compliance functions, formal grievance channels, or pause timelines related to formal systems.
- Align with management or specific areas and is not structurally affiliated with them.

There are a variety of ways in which the Ombudsman can do all of this. This includes such things as…

- Listening, obtaining clarification, identifying and reframing issues.
- Providing resource information and assist in identifying the most appropriate route to address issues.
- Assist in communication concepts/aspects of coaching, mediation, facilitation, alternative dispute resolution, and non-confrontational conflict resolution.
- Identifying or assisting in the identification of potential resolutions and solutions.
- Coaching and empowering parties to find ways to solve problems for themselves when appropriate.

The specific manner in which the Ombudsman addresses a situation is guided and identified by the situation and the parties involved. The authority that enables the Ombudsman to function in the manner necessary to do the job is outlined in the Ombudsman Position/Program Description Document and further supported by the Standards of Practice as identified by the International Ombudsman Association.

So how is this different than others services or functions that currently exist within an organization?

The next article will identify how the Organizational Ombudsman, while sharing some similarities to these other areas, has a specific purpose that is different and can often complement these areas. The Organizational Ombudsman is not a replacement for these important functions; it is a compliment and asset to these areas, the organization, and the people.

Your Credit Reports and Credit Scores:
Simple Steps to Make Them Better

By Dianne Zubella
Bay Bank

It is no secret that the information in your credit report may be used to help determine whether or not you will get a loan and how much you will pay for it — and perhaps even the cost of your insurance or if you can get a new job or apartment. But how much do you really know about credit reports and credit scores and how to improve them?

In a difficult economy, it's critical to know what's on your credit reports and why, and it's especially important to know how to rebuild a credit history after a financial setback. Here are several tips.

Review your credit reports for inaccurate information.

You can request a free copy of your credit report from each of the three major credit bureaus — Equifax, Experian and TransUnion — once every 12 months, as well as under certain other circumstances, such as if you've been denied credit or employment based on your credit report or if you believe you may be a fraud victim.

To order your free annual report from any of those three companies, there is only one place to go, visit: www.AnnualCreditReport.com or call toll-free 1-877-322-8228.

Remember to review each report carefully, as the information in your file at each bureau may vary. And, if you receive a notice that a lender or another entity used a credit report from a company other than one of these three credit bureaus, request your free copy from that bureau, too.

Once you obtain your report, review it for any inaccurate information and, if you find any, follow the procedures outlined by the credit bureau for disputing the information. While you should review your credit report regularly, it is particularly important to make sure your credit report is accurate before you apply for a loan because the information in your credit report will determine your credit score.

Know your credit score.

Your credit score is a number that is developed by a computer model based exclusively on the information in your credit report. It is intended to predict, for example, how likely you are to repay your debts. Keep in mind that credit scores may vary depending on which scoring services prepared them and which of the many different credit scoring models is being used.

If you are interested in knowing your credit score, you can order one for a small fee from a number of outlets, most of them accessible online. When doing so, though, think carefully before signing up for a subscription to additional services, which can be costly.

If a lender uses a credit score to help set material terms (such as the interest rate) on your loan or credit card, the lender, in most cases, must inform you of the score and related information free of charge. The lender also must provide similar information if the score is used in a decision to deny credit.

Understand what factors are likely to influence your score.

For most major scoring models, whether you repay loans as agreed (on time) is generally the most significant factor influencing your score. That's why it is important to pay your bills on time.

Another key component of your credit score is how much you currently owe on each account compared to its original loan amount or credit limit. Additional factors include how long you have had your current loans and credit cards, the types of credit accounts you have, and how many recent "credit inquiries" you have (these are requests by lenders for your credit report or score in response to your applications for new credit).

Recent changes in one major scoring model also suggest that how close you are to your credit limit on your credit card may have more of an effect on your credit score than in past years, while changes in another major scoring model suggest that credit inquiries may hurt you more now than in the past.

Contrary to common misconceptions, though, your credit score will not be lowered when you order your own credit report.

Understand how to improve your credit reports and scores.

In addition to ensuring that your credit reports are accurate, consider the following:

- Pay your loans and other bills on time. Even if you fell into trouble in the past, you can rebuild your credit history by beginning to make payments as agreed. Paying your debts on time will have a positive effect on your credit score and can improve your access to credit. So, don't pay a fee to a company that promises to "clean up" your credit record for a fee.
- To help show that you are not overextending on debt, try to minimize how much you owe in relation to your credit limit. One suggestion strategy for achieving that goal. Don't automatically close accounts that have been paid in full and haven't been used for a while because that can lower your available credit and make the ratio of credit used to credit available worse. The exception is an account that continues to be assessed monthly fees even with a zero balance.
- If you believe you cannot repay your creditors, contact them immediately and explain your situation. Ask about renegotiating the terms of your loan, including the amount you repay. Reputable credit counseling organizations also can help you develop a personalized plan to solve your money problems, but less-reputable providers offer questionable or expensive services or make unsubstantiated claims.

Dept of Labor announces funds to help young adult

Former offenders get on right track through training and service learning

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Labor today announced the availability of approximately $30million in grants through its Training and Service Learning program for projects to help young adult ex-offenders gain valuable jobs skills while giving back to their communities through service.

"We are a country that believes in second chances," said Secretary of Labor Hilda L. Solis. "The grant competition announced today will fund programs that give young people the chance to get their lives back on track by serving their communities and learning new skills."

Awarded through a competitive process, the grants will provide participants with meaningful community service projects and service learning opportunities, educational intervention to help them earn high school diplomas and industry recognized credentials, a career development component that seeks to place each participant in a job that also teaches skills, and post-program support and follow-up.

The department expects to award a minimum of 20 grants. Any nonprofit organization, unit of state or local government, and Indian or Native American entity eligible for grants under the Workforce Investment Act's Section 166 may apply.

Full eligibility information is included in a solicitation for grant applications published in today's Federal Register that can be viewed online at http://www.doleta.gov/grants/find_grants.cfm. Information about other Department of Labor employment and training programs also is available at http://www.doleta.gov.

Stevens attends Indian education roundtable

By Dawn Walschinski

Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Councilman Brandon Stevens participated in a tribal leader's education roundtable held in Shelton, Washington this February.

"I gave testimony on behalf of the tribe and as board of regents of Haskell University whom I represent 33 tribes in the Midwest area. Some of the things that I testified upon was the need for administrators, superintendents and principles to be more responsive to Indian students' needs and also the cultural responsiveness to the needs," said Stevens.

The roundtables are part of Presidential Executive Order 13592 which calls for improvements in American Indian and Alaskan Native educational opportunities and strengthens tribal colleges and universities. According to Stevens, the roundtables discuss problems in Native American education as well as highlights of programs that might be duplicated nationwide.

"This is just a small step in the many steps that are coming in the next year or two in how we deal with educating our kids," he said.

An issue Stevens brought up at the roundtable was the need to allow Title IIV funding to be used to buy locally produced foods.

"We'd like to bring in more healthier foods in

Early Head Start Program off and running

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Early Head Start Program, just 20 months old, is off and running while enriching the lives of local families.

The Oneida Early Head Start Program provides families with childrens' development assistance along with prenatal care and education for expecting mothers. Children up to the age of three are eligible.

"(Oneida Early Head Start Program) is a low income, federally funded program. Income guidelines are set by the poverty level, families at or below the poverty level are prioritized," said Susan Arnold, the program's Family and Community Partnerships Manager. "But, it's not just income, it's based on need as well. (We look at) needs in the family; homelessness, disability in a child, and possible emergencies in the family. A family may be over income but if they have needs they can qualify for the program as well."

It has 60 spots for children and expecting mothers and has been operating at full capacity for the last few months. Grant requirements call for a minimum of 48 home visits per year.

The program also has the ability to offer the unique service of being 100 percent home based.

"We have six home visitors that go on one weekly visit with every family," said Cheryl DuBois, Home Visiting Supervisor. "We use a curriculum called Parents as Teaches. The visits are 90 minutes."

"The home visitation option allows us to work one-on-one with the family, be in their homes and give them some skills and ideas on how to facilitate their child's development," said Joan Christnot, Director of the Oneida Early Start/Head Start Program.

The program also offers group play, called socialization, about six times throughout the year. The group play offers participating families to interact and create life-long bonds.

"It's nice to build connections. You see a lot of engagement going on during group sessions. It's nice to have that outlet and feel like their supported," added Christnot.

Maria Pecore has had both of her children, T.J. and Riley, utilize the program and has noticed considerable advancements in their development. T.J. joined the program when he was 1 and Riley joined when he was born.

"They learn a lot. My kids were really attached to us. (Riley) got to play with other kids and when he went to the socials. The program got to show us what they are learning and how far they came," Pecore said.

While focusing on the development and social skills of toddlers Oneida Early Head Start also assists soon-to-be mothers.

"A big goal we like to establish with prenatal women is to make sure they have access to comprehensive medical care," said Alebra Cornelius, Family Service Worker. "Then we like to make sure it continues after the (baby is) born. We offer pre and post natal education using the parent as teacher curriculum."

Home visits are very flexible as they are offered Monday through Friday 8 a.m. – 8 p.m. and Saturdays 8 am – noon.

"We definitely are focusing on the families needs," Cornelius said. "We offer breastfeeding education and accommodations for nursing moms as well. We also help families identify their strengths, goals and weaknesses and providing families with resources to obtain those."

Since the programs inception it has provided over 2,000 home visits and 48 group sessions. It has serviced 24 pregnant mothers and 124 infants and toddlers.

"It's exciting to watch them when they're little. You have seen such growth. There is such an attachment there. (Home visitors) are always checking on them. There is a friendship and bond being built with the family," said DuBois.

"Its really gratifying to see them leave with that confidence and carry that on to the next step of their life," added Cornelius.

NAICJA helping tribal courts with training

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The relationship between the Oneida Tribal Judicial System (OTJS) and the National American Indian Court Judges Association (NAICJA) goes way back, and according to Oneida Appeals Commission Judicial Officer Winnifred Thomas, is one that will help Oneida in the long run.

"Indian courts, Indian judges trying to help Indian judges which is really phenominal," said Thomas.

NAICJA is administering a $500,000 grant from the US Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Assistance to provide training and technical assistance to tribal justice systems across the United States. On February 12, the NAICJA board voted to re-establish its National Tribal Justice Resource Center (NTJRC) in Boulder, Colorado.

Thomas was named as an At Large Member to its board back in October and will serve a two year term.

Oneida Tribal Judicial Officer Winnefred Thomas was named to the NAICJA board in October, 2011.

"A lot of what the board does is training. They offer training when there's issues, Indian issues, on the hill in Washington, you'll find NAICJA there," said Thomas.

One of the major areas where OTJS got help was in dealing with state courts.

"Other Indian tribes had a lot more … comity with state and tribes than we had in the past. We have struggled very long and hard to achieve that, and we have," she said.

Thomas also hopes OTJS personnel will utilize NTJRC resources for training in family court procedures.

"There's a lot of exciting things … on the burners right now for training, and especially because a lot of the tribes are already in family law, of which we've just gotten on board with. There's going to be a lot of things that we'll be able to partake in as far as the training," she said.

Thomas said it's good to see how other tribal courts operate and what kind of issues they face.

"It's nice to go into other areas to find out they have … we all have the same problems but just different faces to the same problems," she said. "We in Oneida can be very proud that we have had the participation of our judges not only with NAICJA now, but also with Wisconsin Tribal judges in the past when we've has some of our own judges as the leadership roles there."

Green Bay diocese apologizes to Miranda Washinawatok

Green Bay, WI (AP) – The Catholic Diocese of Green Bay is apologizing to a seventh-grader who was punished after using her native Menominee language in the classroom.

Miranda Washinawatok, a student at Sacred Heart Catholic School, said a teacher reprimanded her for exchanging phrases used by the Menominee Tribe of Indians with two other girls. She was later suspended from playing in a basketball game.

In a Feb. 22 letter, the diocese's director of education, Joseph Bound, said diocese officials wish they could change how the incident was handled. The Green Bay Press-Gazette reports school principal Dan Minter also sent the family an apology.

The girl's great-uncle, Richard Plass, says they are pleased with the diocese's letter. He says he thinks it could result in more cultural awareness at the schools.

you put in the oven and you serve. We want more local foods from the farmers, fresh grown local foods," he said.

Stevens took away ideas for a mentorship program that would pair adults with at-risk youth.

"(We could) create a national resource for native male role models where this resource would be for those individuals who are capable of giving back to youth, sharing stories and going hands on with some of these young at-risk youth. There's a lack of Native American role models out there, to have those positive people in the community and saying, we have similar struggles in our community, we're not that much different, so this is how I can help to be able to show a young man how to be polite, how to interact with his female counterparts, how to respect your elders, respect your parents," he said. "I'm in contact with some of these tribes and seeing how can we do some of that here in Oneida without recreating the wheel."

The roundtable discussions also focused on how to access information on how Native American students are doing academically and how they're doing in the workforce.

"How are they faring out in the market? Are they getting jobs? Where is the industry begging for (employees)? How do we mold our curriculum to meet those needs?" he said.

While the roundtable participants emphasized the need for youth programs, they also acknowledged they need input from young people.

"There's a large conversation between the tribes in how do we do that and one of the big things is we don't want to tell the kids what they need, we want to include the kids, and bring our ideas together," said Stevens.

Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan
What is that?

Submitted by Oneida Planning and Statistics Department

Article 1:

Generally speaking, comprehensive planning is a planning process that involves public participation and is intended to develop community land use and community ownership of a long term plan.

A comprehensive plan is a written document that serves as a road map for future social, economic and physical growth of our community and is based on two major resources: 1) people; those we serve and those that our plan affects and 2) land; base and uses of the land that we want to consider. Most importantly, the plan is designed with the input from the Oneida community. The following bullet points are just some of the benefits from your involvement in long term planning for our community:

- To improve quality of life in response to social, economic, and physical realities
- To become more active in our government
- To provide for the well-being of Oneida and our community
- To promote community goals and objectives
- To enhance participation in community development and enhance a sense of pride and ownership
- To create a thoughtful plan to guide future planning

At the very beginning of the planning process, data is gathered about the people, which are called demographic information. For most communities, this information includes population, income, education, employment characteristics, housing, rate of poverty, rates of birth and death, and any other information that helps describe the socio-economic profile of the community. This information or data is usually found in the current U.S. Census Bureau report, and in our case, multiple additional sources are utilized such as a housing assessment and the Quality of Life survey. In addition to that data, and because we are an Indian reservation and we provide resources for members on and off the reservation, a unique source of data for Oneida is its membership or enrollment statistics which is used to plan, forecast, project and predict future trends and needs of the membership as well as the community.

Through a basic set of planning questions and from the results of gathering information from our membership and community, we may propose how to grow and develop our community. The plan describes the way in which our land is intended to be used and developed. In other words, it's a pattern of land uses and zoning that guides the development of land so that land use is orderly, convenient and suitable in relationship to the environment. The land use plan takes into consideration things like the natural environment, residential areas, neighborhoods, commercial uses, agriculture, forest, parks, recreation and infrastructure which generally includes public facilities, electricity, roads, water and sewer and the like.

To review, a comprehensive plan is designed by the people and for the people through public input and through a set of basic planning questions, and guides all decision-making on the growth and development of our community. Demographic information is studied to assist in planning efficient land use and service delivery. Because not all needs can be funded at once, priorities are selected and a set of goals and objectives, each with a set of action plans designed to achieve the goals and objectives over a specified time period, is prepared for implementation. This process is generally led by elected officials and senior management with technical support and implementation from staff members of the government and organization and input from the community.

Over the next few months, our department will continue to write and publish articles on the Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan, including a summary of what has been achieved over the years. We will develop and implement a public participation plan to guide your participation and valuable input in all phases of updating the current plan.

The Oneida Planning Department has been assigned to guide the Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Planning process by the Oneida Business Committee. The current version of the Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan was adopted by the Oneida Business Committee on December 10, 2008.

To review the current version of the Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan, go to the following website: www.Oneida-nsn.gov and click on the Community tab, then scroll down to and click on Public Works and scroll down again on the left hand column to Planning and Statistics and then click on Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan or Comprehensive Plan which includes Land Policy Framework. Or, you can reach the Planning Department by calling Little Bear Development Center at 920-869-4526 or 1-800-236-2868.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

March 22, 2012 • 11:30 AM
Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor – (BCCR)
Purpose: Amendments to the Per Capita Ordinance

The intent of these Amendments is to:

- Adopt a process to penalize those individuals who submit fraudulent proof of a diploma when claiming their trust account funds. The fine for submitting fraudulent proof of a diploma will be one-third (1/3) of the balance of the trust account.
- Prohibit someone who is dually enrolled in the Oneida Tribe and another Tribe from receiving a per capita payment.
- Authorize the attachment of per capita payments to satisfy federal tax levies.
- Outline how a Tribal member may refuse a per capita payment or trust account payment and direct where those funds are deposited.
- Clarify how prior payments may be claimed and how they are distributed.
- Prohibit a per capita payment to a Tribal member whose date of death occurs before the payment is distributed.
- Authorize the Trust Committee to establish additional payment dates, as needed.
- Equally divide the per capita funds between the attachments for child support arrears based on the number of court orders, instead of the number of children.
- Require that attachments for child support arrears be submitted to the Oneida Nation Child Support Agency, who will give a one-time notice to the Tribal member that his or her per capita payment will be attached for child support arrears until they are satisfied, as long as attachment requests are properly submitted before each per capita payment.
- Create a separate voluntary federal income tax withholding deadline for individuals whose per capita will be attached to pay child support arrears. Require those individuals to notify the Oneida Nation Child Support Agency in writing if they want to change their withholding from year to year.
- Authorize Tribal members to defer payment of a trust account.
- Clarify that a former Tribal member would become ineligible to claim prior or future per capita payments as of the date he or she relinquishes membership.
- Clarify that if a legally incompetent adult relinquishes membership in the Tribe, the funds held in that person's trust account are to be disbursed to his or her guardian.

The Amendments were requested by the Trust Committee, Enrollment Department, Child Support Agency and the Tribal Judicial System. Emergency amendments were passed on June 8, 2011, extended on November 9, 2011 and will expire on June 8, 2012.

Native Americans strive for homemade businesses

By Michael Neary
Capital Journal

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) ~ Nothing has been easy about Charlotte Almanza's work as the owner of Char's Café.

A few months ago a fire forced her Peever-based business out of its building. Fortunately she had insurance, and she's preparing to open in a new space.

But maintaining the business before the fire was a challenge as well. When Almanza wanted to make some improvements, she needed a loan - and her attempts with her local banker were not heartening.

"It wasn't much money I needed," said Almanza, who belongs to the Sisseton Wahpeton Oyate tribe in northeastern South Dakota. "I was asking for $5,000. When you don't have that support of people believing in you, it really discourages you."

But Almanza, who lives just outside the border of the reservation for the Sisseton Wahpeton Oyate, found another source. She took out a loan from a Native community development financial institution (CDFI) called the Four Bands Community Fund, and her business was on track.

The South Dakota Indian Business Alliance has recently produced an expansive report chronicling some problems - and solutions - encountered by Native American entrepreneurs on the reservations.

"We noticed the mainstream business development programs, especially the mainstream federal programs - we just kept seeing a trend that there was little or no activity on the nine reservations," said Tanya Fiddler, the SDIBA chair.

Fiddler is also the executive director of Four Bands Community Fund, a nonprofit founded especially to assist entrepreneurs of the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation.

The CDFI is one type of resource recommended by the SDIBA, which came together in 2007. CDFIs can provide much-needed financial training, and they can also issue loans and help Native American business owners - or would-be owners - establish credit. Fiddler said there are about six Native American CDFIs in the state.

One issue that looms especially large is establishing the credit to start a business in the first place. Fiddler said the opportunity to establish credit in extremely rural parts of the state can be slim.

On the reservations, the task is even tougher since the banks often do not report to credit bureaus. The cost and the potential liability involved in reporting credit, Fiddler said, are factors that make reporting difficult for the banks.

The SDIBA's report notes other obstacles Native Americans can face when they try to obtain loans. One is the trust status of land on the reservations, which prevents it from being used as collateral when taking out loans. Because reservation land is held in trust status by the federal government, the land cannot be repossessed by banks offering loans. That means Native Americans living on reservations lack a source of collateral available to others who might be seeking loans to start new businesses.

Fiddler said members of the SDIBA noticed, in recent years, a dearth of Native-owned businesses on reservations. She said one percent of the businesses on the Cheyenne River Sioux Reservation were owned by Native Americans in 2001. It's a reservation, she said, with a population that is 80 percent Native American.

Since that time, though, Fiddler said 100 Native-owned businesses have emerged. Fiddler noted training and technical assistance, access to capital and increased credit-worthiness as factors in helping the new businesses to develop.

The inability to establish credit, Fiddler said, can affect everyday purchases as well as business development.

"Indian people are poor for some really good reasons," she said. "Not having access to affordable products is one of them."

Scarcity of jobs is another. And for many Native Americans who live on or near reservations across the state, the best path to a good job is not the road to the nearest large retailer. It's creating a local business - or working for one that's recently surfaced.

"This is a path out of poverty," Fiddler said.

For Almanza, that path is strewn with home-cooked food. She's hoping to reopen Char's Café in April, and she's especially looking forward to rekindling the café's legendary "pie days."

"Everything is homemade," she said, "and that's what makes it good."

Mason/Taylor streets intersection closing March 1

(Green Bay) The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region is reminding motorists the Mason and Taylor streets intersection is closing to through traffic by 5 a.m. on Thursday, March 1 and will remain closed until August 1, 2012. The intersection is shutting as part of the second phase of the US 41/Mason Street interchange reconstruction project that got underway Feb. 1.

Since the closure of Mason Street between Hinkle and Taylor streets on Feb. 1, motorists have been able to travel northbound, southbound and eastbound through the Mason/Taylor streets intersection. The closure is needed to allow construction of a multilane roundabout. Alternate routes across US 41 include Larsen Road and 9th Street. During the Mason Street interchange reconstruction project, motorists can access US 41 using the Shawano Avenue or Lombardi Avenue interchanges.

All lane restrictions, road openings and work operations are weather dependent and subject to change.

OBC Forum...

Paul Ninham
Councilman

Shekóli,

I am pleased to announce that the standing committee on Quality of Life is finally underway. I am serving as the Chairman of this newly formed Committee along with Patty Hoeft, serving as Vice Chairwoman, and Ed Delgado, David Jordan, and Melinda Danforth, serving as committee members. The purpose of this committee is to address quality of life issues on behalf of the people and engage collaboration among all the internal departments, regulatory agencies, political entities and the community to improve services to our people; improve our way of life. Public policy, governance, internal services, the environment, culture, education, civic responsibility are but a few of the areas to be addressed.

The Quality of Life (QOL) committee will align their work with the Tribe's National Vision: "A Nation of strong families built on Tsi? Niyukwaliho Tʌ and a strong economy. Tsi? Niyukwaliho Tʌ means "our ways", which encompasses values, history, traditions, and responsibility. In addition, the Quality of Life Committee will align their work with the mission of the Business Committee. These missions could change every three years. The current leadership has adopted the following mission statements: "In three years, the OBC will aggressively grow the Oneida Indian Reservation as a beautiful and vibrant community where hundreds of additional Oneida families live. In three years, the OBC will reallocate the resources to better serve the needs of Tribal Members."

Basic needs in life: food, shelter, clean air, clean water, safety are the general foundation in everything this committee will address. In this process, everyone will be called upon to help out with defining priorities, developing teams to improve our internal operations to improve services, and/or review policy towards that end. Working to engage the community to help is also important. Statistical info is extremely important as they assess for need and service improvements. Such as, employment, population, benefits, environment, and education to name a few.

Collaboration among committees, the tribal organizational departments, and community members is key to the success of fulfilling our goals. It is expected and encouraged to overlap with the work of others. For example: keeping in- line with the National vision of strong families and the OBC's mission of increasing the tribal population, the Quality of Life Committee will work with the Community Development Planning Committee (CDPC) to ensure housing is made available. The CDPC may look at issues such as the infrastructure to build more homes, available lands, utilities, funding. And the QOL committee will look at necessary or increased need for health services, employment, education, food and recreation. Several surveys have already identified need. And several plans have also been completed, such as the Comprehensive Plan (identifies the needs and desires of the people for the reservation); the Live, Sustain. Grow plan that deals with the quality of our environment (air, water, land); the improved health operational service plans that are updated every two years; the Land Acquisition Plan adopted by GTC last year that identifies land resources. Together, the committees, appropriate departments and our tribal boards, committees and commissions can use these tools and develop action plans to provide quality service, while meeting the needs of the people. Together, we can make necessary change and improve our systems for "A Nation of strong families built on Tsi? Niyukwaliho Tʌ and a strong economy.

The Quality of Life Committee will hold a couple of informational meetings over the next couple of months. Then the regular meetings will be held meet every third Thursday, at 9:00 in the Business Committee Conference Room. These are open meetings and we encourage community participation.

Farming in Oneida

Today, I thought I'd discuss a little about the Oneida Farm (or farms), as we have two or three, if we count the Apple Orchard as a separate and distinct operation. I was raised on a farm and was required to do all the necessary work in the barn and in the fields.

The Oneida Nation has a huge farming endeavor—thousands of acres under cultivation and several thousands of acres of land in conservancy. It seems from some of the discussions I've heard lately in our exuberance to cut costs we want to do "something" with the farm. Well, let me be the first to say that the Oneida Farm will never (and I emphasize never) show any profits if we forever apply governmental accounting to it. The indirect costs of the Oneida Nation should not be applied here. Depreciation needs to be considered, but then a depreciation fund needs to be created to replace machinery when worn out. In short, the Oneida Nation Farm should be run and accounted for like any other farm in this area of comparable size. I believe with true farm accounting, profits will be indicated. But, profits are not the only thing to look at. There are many other benefits. Yes, Madeline, there are grass fed beef. The major portion of feed the cattle consume is produced at that farm. This farm is one of largest in northeast Wisconsin. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are received every year from the U.S. Department of Agriculture for the various programs the farm is eligible for. In 2007, the Farm received the top award from Harvard University's Indian Development program. The award was $10,000.00. The funds were to have been used to produce and distribute information about the farm to other communities. A DVD was developed and is available at Culture Heritage for anyone who would like to be informed. The beef marketing to Tribal members needs to be stepped up—available in quarters of beef or specially designed packages of 10 or more pounds per package. We have nearly 200 buffalo out in the pastures. They, too, are grass fed. This is one of the healthiest meats for human consumption. A program needs to be developed and carried out to provide buffalo meat to Tribal members on a regular basis, including to all the meal sites.

The Oneidas and all Iroquoian peoples were known for their farming capabilities. Their farms consisted of hundreds of acres of white corn, beans and squashes at every village, as well as numerous other vegetables. Some orchards in the 1700s had 1500 apple and peach trees. How many of us have made a concerted effort to visit the Oneida Farm to see what it is for ourselves?

Before we begin slicing and dicing the Oneida Farm, I think these, my observations, ought to be looked at. Farming is a 24/7 occupation. Crops are always subject to the elements. Rain may be too little or too much for optimum results. Often hail and wind raise havoc with mature fields. Crop insurance kicks in when that happens. Improvements can be made to increase profitability. There are many other questions not posed here that could be asked.

I suggest that the folks in charge visit Gila River Farms in Arizona as I did a few years ago to see how this Tribe of Pima Indians are doing such a fantastic job. They were farming more than 12,000 acres then and a lot more now—raising oranges, olives, watermelon, cotton and alfalfa—and some other things—and shipping their products to the far East. We could be in that league with all our agricultural endeavors. My recommendation is to cut the farm loose as a separate enterprise and create a Farm Board of farm knowledgeable persons to direct operations. The Board would be responsible for employing a Farm manager. The Farm accounting responsibility would be theirs. That's a huge step, but a step that should be taken—soon.

Wisconsin in Brief

Early Wis. trout season starts Saturday

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Here's one sure sign of spring: Wisconsin's early trout season starts this weekend.

The catch-and-release season gets under way at 5:00 a.m. Saturday and runs until midnight on April 29. Most trout streams should be open except for most Lake Superior tributaries and most streams in northeastern Wisconsin.

State Department of Natural Resources biologists say prospects look good. Little snow means streams should be easily accessible, trout populations are strong across most streams and the fish should be especially active from early to late afternoon.

Anglers must use artificial lures and flies.

Sturgeon spearing season ends with low harvest

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) ~ The Wisconsin sturgeon spearing season has ended, with low harvest numbers.

The state Department of Natural Resources reports spearers harvested 18 fish Sunday. That makes the season total 324 fish on Lake Winnebago and 566 for the entire Lake Winnebago System. The 16-day season ended at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

That compares to more than 1,400 fish in total last year.

The DNR attributed this year's numbers to marginal water clarity, marginal ice, poor travel conditions on the lake, and a poor shad hatch that likely kept sturgeon on the deep worm beds.

The biggest harvest since 1941 was in 1995 when spearers got nearly 3,200 fish on Lake Winnebago. That's before the 1999 harvest cap. The worst was in 1969 and 1973 with eight sturgeon registered each year.

Salazar, Duncan Partner to Boost Use of Parks & Public Lands as 21st Century Education Centers

Initiative will help build skills among students in the growing outdoor economy

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar and Secretary of Education Arne Duncan announced Monday, February 27, a new agreement to build, develop and formalize programs that use national parks, national wildlife refuges and other public lands as classrooms and catalysts for 21st century education – designed to benefit teachers, students and parents in rural America and urban classrooms alike.

Today's announcement comes in advance of Friday's White House Conference on Conservation being hosted at the Department of the Interior that will spotlight community-driven conservation efforts as part of President Obama's America's Great Outdoors Initiative.

The Memorandum of Understanding signed by Secretary Salazar and Secretary Duncan enables the Department of the Interior and the Department of Education to work together in new and more effective ways to connect young Americans to the outdoors, improve environmental literacy, support experiential learning outside the classroom, and form partnerships at the local level to learn from and conserve public lands.

Additionally, the agreement will help implement the President's goals for the Department of Education by investing in the education necessary to build a workforce with skills to succeed in the conservation and outdoor recreation economy and to develop careers in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM).

"An economy that's built to last requires that we make sure our children get the education and training they need so we have a workforce ready to take on the jobs of tomorrow," said Secretary Salazar. "This innovative partnership will help schools use our national parks, wildlife refuges and other public lands as educational and professional development tools to bring new environmental and historical knowledge to students and develop skills for the next generation of workers in America's growing outdoor economy."

America's outdoor economy – including outdoor recreation, conservation and heritage initiatives – powers 8.4 million jobs and generates more than $1 trillion in economic activity annually, according to recent non-governmental estimates. Independent estimates also show that the leisure and hospitality sector could add 2.1-3.3 million jobs this decade – the third highest job growth potential by sector.

"Science, technology, engineering and math fields are driving forces in the global economy," said Secretary Duncan. "Partnerships between our nation's schools and our national parks, wildlife refuges and other public lands is a smart approach that can better prepare our children in STEM subjects by providing engaging, hands-on learning experiences, making lessons tangible, and enhancing schools' ties to their communities."

Today's agreement will create new bridges between America's schools and its public lands – often at the local level, where national parks, wildlife refuges and other public lands exist in close proximity to communities, ideally situated as outdoor classrooms for teachers and students nationwide.

Under the agreement, Interior may offer both in-service and pre-service professional development opportunities for teachers and other educators, including workshops, in-depth subject-matter seminars, and summer employment opportunities. The goals include improving teaching skills and developing deeper levels of subject-matter expertise, with a special emphasis on those who work in, or will work in, Title I, rural, and other high-need schools.

Through its relationships with state educational agencies, local school districts, and colleges and universities, the Department of Education can serve as a resource in developing a range of teaching and classroom skills for Interior employees, including Bureau of Indian Education (BIE) funded schools, and partners who serve as educators in the classroom and on public lands. The Department of Education will also commit to encourage math and science, American history, and other programs.

This initiative will build upon, elevate and formalize some programs already in place. The National Park Service, for example, presents more than 95,000 education programs annually and reaches more than 2 million students enrolled in K-12 schools. It also provides extensive online resources for students and teachers. More than 40 parks have educational institutes and field schools.

Other key ongoing initiatives include the Fish and Wildlife Service's "schoolyard habitat" and "biologists-in-training" programs.

Meeting date set to discuss road construction at US 41/ Lombardi Ave. interchange

Green Bay, WI – The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region is holding a final public information meeting to talk about upcoming construction scheduled for the US 41/Lombardi Avenue interchange in Brown County. The open house meeting is from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Monday, March 5 at the Rock Garden Conference Center, Windsor Ballroom West, 1951 Bond Street, Green Bay. A brief presentation begins at 5:45 p.m.

The improvements designed for the Lombardi Avenue interchange at US 41 are being constructed in phases. # 6th Annual Wisconsin Local Food Summit recap

The 6th Annual Wisconsin Local Food Summit, held at Lake Lawn Resort in Delavan on January 26-27, 2012, organized and hosted by the Wisconsin Local Food Network, drew 195 people from all aspects of the food system, including a strong presence from individuals and organizations working toward improving public health, a critical aspect of a local food system. The Summit got off to an immediate high energy start, as the first ever Wisconsin Farm to School Conference preceded this year's Summit on the 25th, an event that drew over 250 people.

The Summit offered two full days of a multitude of presenters and people engaged in making local food more common and accessible in five topic areas: Food Security & Health, Producer Development, Market Development, Infrastructure Development, and Community Development.

This year's Summit focused on the economic development aspects of local and regional food systems, where this sector continues to create jobs, keeping the full economic growth right here in Wisconsin. To explore the economic impacts of the local food systems in Wisconsin, the Summit led off with a grounded yet provocative keynote presentation from Steve Deller, a Professor of Agricultural and Applied Economics at the UW Madison and from Laura Brown a Community Development Specialist with the UW-Extension Center for Community & Economic Development titled, "Thinking about the Economic Impacts of Local Food Systems".

On the second day of the Summit, attendees heard two passionate calls to action from Bill McKibben and Warren King. Bill McKibben, noted author, educator, environmentalist and founder of 350.org honestly and passionately delivered a personal video message to the Wisconsin Local Food Network in the morning. At lunch, Warren King, who served on the Governor's taskforce that crafted recommendations for the 2009 Illinois Food, Farms and Jobs Act; is a current member of the Executive Committee of the Association of Family Farms and an advisor to the National Good Food Network; and who has worked on numerous projects in the Midwest that have increased the amount of food grown in the region and promoted economic activity, investment and healthier lifestyles, gave a powerful, charismatic, empowering presentation titled "Opportunities abound for local food enterprises of all sizes." King's message emphasized the connections between a strong community food system and public health, as well as the economic opportunities for local food enterprises.

And like last year, the Wisconsin Local Food Network once again awarded mini-grants to projects happening around the state. This year, three projects that could measure/track the economic impact of a regional local food system and host a WLFN Quarterly Regional Gathering were awarded $2000 each. This year's successful awardees are Lorin Toepper of the Wisconsin Innovation Kitchen in Mineral Point, Fred Depies of Trust Local Foods in Appleton, and Kelly Cain of the St. Croix Institute for Sustainable Community Development in River Falls. Look for announcements with more details on these quarterly gatherings, as all are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Networking is always a focus of the Summit and an important reason why people attend. This year, Steve Ventura, who heads the Community and Regional Food Systems Project at UW-Madison; Amber Canto, a food security specialist at UW-Extension Family Living; Amy Alvig a nutrition specialist, previously of the Department of Health Services and now at UW-Extension; Bridget Holcomb, associate policy director with the Michael Fields Agricultural Institute; and Brandon Scholz, President and CEO of the Wisconsin Grocer's Association organized a social hour to discuss the current interest in creating a statewide food policy council.

And what would a Summit on local food be without some delicious locally-sourced meals? Chef David Ross at the Lake Lawn Resort was wonderful to work with and sourced food from a wide range of farms in the area to create delicious meals.

This year the winter was mild and there was no snow to enjoy, but you can start looking forward to the 2013 Wisconsin Local Food Summit because for next year's location, we will be heading up north. We are currently discussing the possibility of holding the 2013 Summit in Ashland. It will take place around the same time, late January or early February, so make sure to stay tuned for more details and get ready to pack along your cross-country skis and snowshoes next year!

Change in registration goes into effect March 1

Beginning March 1, 2012 there will be changes to the way that you register as a patient coming to the health center! We are in the process of de-centralizing our registration process to improve your registration experience. On March 1, 2012 if you have an Optical or Dental appointment you will begin registering directly at the Optical registration desk. If you have a Dental appointment, you will begin registration directly at Dental registration desk, and if you have a Physical Therapy appointment you will register directly at Physical Therapy. Registration will continue at the main registration desk for all Medical appointments.

The Oneida Comprehensive Health Division's goal is to improve the quality of services provided to our customers. One of our strategic initiatives is to implement an electronic medical record. The first phase of this project was to install and implement the patient management system which was completed on June 9, 2011. The next step to improving your registration experience is to de-centralize the registration so patients can go directly to Optical, Dental and Physical Therapy departments to register for their appointments.

We know that change is often difficult and because these are new processes for these departments, we ask your patience as we implement this new process. Thank you in advance for you cooperation and patience as we improve our services for you—our customer!

The Ombudsman and Other Organizational Functions

By Dianne McLester-Heim
Oneida Ombudsman

The role and functions of an Organizational Ombudsman are often seen as being very similar to some of the roles and functions of other areas and jobs within an organization. Just because there are similarities does not mean that one is better than the other, or that one is more important or effective than the other. In many situations, an Organizational Ombudsman is able to work as a compliment to these other areas of an organization. Since the Oneida Ombudsman also provides service to consumers and the community, the Ombudsman can be a great asset because the Oneida Ombudsman is not limited to serving just the employee or consumer. The Oneida Ombudsman is there to provide service to both.

The following will identify how an Organizational Ombudsman seems to be similar to internal organizational functions while identifying how the two are different…

1. Human Resources
Ombudsman does:
- Provide information about relevant policies, procedures, and rights
- Provides additional insight to an entity about policy and procedure matters

Ombudsman does NOT:
- Develop policies and procedures for areas outside the Ombudsman's Office
- Participate in formal arenas such as appeals, arbitration, or lawsuits

2. Employee Representatives
Ombudsman does:
- Help employees recognize and gain access to rights, locate policy & procedure information, and identify process
- Listen and 'coach' people in the identification and organization of their issues

Ombudsman does NOT:
- Interpret agreements or advocate on behalf of an individual or party

3. Employee Assistance Programs
Ombudsman does:
- Deal with underlying concerns and needs
- 'Coach' individuals /groups in identifying and prioritizing their issues and options for addressing the issues
- Work to prevent violence

Ombudsman does NOT:
- Focus on psychosocial assessments of the person or short term counseling /treatment of the individual
- Provide therapy or counseling services

4. Compliance related functions (such as audits, whistleblowing, and non-discrimination)
Ombudsman does:
- Inform people of the formal channels for reporting issues and/or wrongdoing
- Assist people in gaining access to information and knowledge of their rights
- Assist people in finding safe ways to come forward with matters

Ombudsman does NOT:
- Require people to file formal action or use formal channels to address their issues
- Mandate that matters be reported in a formal manner
- Function as an office of record or notice with/for the organization or individual

From a general perspective, an Organizational Ombudsman is able to complement multiple existing areas within an organization by providing an informal approach to the common formal route these areas use. The Ombudsman provides a great deal of 'coaching' to the individual (employee or consumer) to assist in identifying the true issue(s) and possible options for addressing the matter based on what the individual is looking to achieve. This is often done by providing 'reality checks' and identifying what is or is not realistically obtainable as an outcome. It also helps the party to explore the positive and negative aspects of the available options and allows the party to choose the option they feel to be best for them. The Oneida Ombudsman is able to provide this service to individuals and groups both employees and consumers/community members where the internal organizational functions are limited to employees. Again, the Ombudsman is not a replacement for internal organizational functions or formal routs but rather a compliment of these functions.

With all the duties, responsibilities, and services that are available through the Oneida Ombudsman, there is an amazing opportunity for positive actions as the community and the organization continues to grow and develop. At the same time, with all the areas of specialty and various functions that occur within the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin as an organization, there presents an enormous challenge as no single person can be an expert in all areas. The next article will provide some information on how other countries have been effectively addressing this same challenge. Many countries have successfully applied the Ombudsman concepts to their Legislative (government), public service sector, and corporate (business) sector functions for the betterment of the people as a whole.

By Kyle Casper
Recreation Supervisor

The Oneida Recreation Department on Cty H has recently named its members of the month for January. Members for each area were chosen based on their effort and level of participation for the month in one of the Department's core areas. The four core areas of the Recreation Department are Sports and Fitness, Arts & Crafts, Social Recreation, and Learning Center.

In the area of Sports and Fitness youth are encouraged to reach 60 minutes of physical activity per day. This will increase the level of physical fitness for each participant. For the month of January Kennedy Kaquatosh was the member for the boys reaching this goal 16 times for the month. Aja Wilber was the member of the month for the girls for reaching this goal 15 times for the month.

In the area of Arts and Crafts youth are provided the opportunity to be exposed to a new art medium each month. This month the students worked with oil pastel water colors. The member of the month chosen for the month was Kiona Leeman. Kiona is a very determined and artistic young lady who is very helpful to fellow students and the art teacher.

Youth learn about the aspects of the six pillars of character development and how to express those characters by participating in Character Club. The six pillars include Trustworthiness, Respect, Responsibility, Caring, Citizenship, and Fairness. This month the emphasis was on fairness. This month's member of the month was Sadie Schuman. Sadie showed the most character by sharing, taking turns, and playing by the rules in the social rec room and Character Club activities.

The Learning Center enhances the educational development of each participant. Students are encouraged to complete their homework assignments to improve on their GPA. The member of the month was Coleman Johnson. Coleman demonstrated hard work and dedication when it comes to his school work. He worked on completing homework assignments 14 days during the month.

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Tsyunhehkwa receives grant for Indigenous Food Systems Project

The community based agricultural program of the Oneida Tribe of WI, Tsyunhehkwa recently received a $30,700.00 grant from the First Nations Development Institute of Longmont, Colorado. This award will support the efforts of Tsyunhehkwa and their Indigenous Food Systems Project.

Through this project we will be improving our food preservation processes through equipment updates. It will help us in the education and showing of Food Security and Food Sovereignty. We will be utilizing the funds to purchase a gravity box/wagon and fan for storing and drying down our Traditional White Corn, a Commercial Dehydrator, and Commercial Vacuum Sealer. These items will help us to dry and store our white corn and process it into dehydrated products and package for better storage of the final product. In addition, we will work with other Tribal entities in establishing class sessions of our process in working with our traditional foods. We will be inviting the other 10 tribal nations in the state of WI to our program and travel to their locations to help them in establishing an entity/program similar to ours for working with traditional, indigenous foods for their specific needs.

Tsyunhehkwa is an agricultural, community and culturally based program of the Oneida Tribe of WI and located on the Oneida Tribal reservation in north eastern WI. It's outreach spans the tribal community of 3,000 plus as well as the greater community family of approximately 12,400. We would like to thank the First Nations Development Institute for this opportunity to improve our roles and responsibilities to one of our three sisters, the White Corn and our Tribe and Community. If you have any questions or comments about our program, the grant and the products and services we provide please contact us directly.

We can be reached at 920-869-2141, fax 920-869-2718 or email jmetoxen@oneidanation.org. We look forward to hearing from you.

"We are looking forward to improving our food security process working with our new equipment and sharing that knowledge," said Jeff Metoxen, Director of Tsyunhehkwa. "Food Security is important to everyone regardless where you live."

SEOTS Continues Search for New Home

By Mark W. Powless

For more than a year, the Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) Facility Search Team has been seeking a new location that will serve as the permanent home for SEOTS. The journey began when the contract for the current location included an option to buy. After an evaluation of the property a decision was made to not purchase the property.

SEOTS had been approved for a renovation of the existing space, but when the determination was made to not buy the property, the proposed expenditures to renovate were halted. Instead, a review of SEOTS space needs and associated lease rates resulted in a new plan to find a location to purchase for SEOTS. Economically it became more expensive to lease a space and more financially responsible to purchase a SEOTS building.

Moving forward, the team created list of criteria that were important for the new location and new building. The criteria included feedback from community meetings regarding the topic. Among these criteria were; a close proximity to the core population of Tribal members located on the near south side of Milwaukee, a location on a bus line, a safe location, and a building of similar size to the current location. The dream is to create a comfy and accessible gathering place for all Tribal members to have access to programs and services that enhance the well-being of our membership.

The team has looked at various buildings and vacant lots and has experienced some challenges. In one case, a test of soil at a vacant lot concluded that the soil was contaminated. In another case, an offer to purchase resulted in the lot being sold to another bidder. Many of the buildings visited did not meet all the criteria or required extensive renovations to meet the needs of the SEOTS community.

As the team moves forward, we will continue to exercise our due diligence to find a new home that serves the needs of the community. All necessary steps will be taken to ensure that a sound in responsible decision is made on behalf of the Oneida Tribe. The desire outcome is to develop a community facility that will be an expression of Oneida culture and progress as well as a source of pride for the community.

For Tribal members wishing to provide input into this process, or receive updates, feel free to contact the SEOTS office, Monday-Friday, 8:30am-4:30pm.

Tribe looking for feedback during re-org meetings

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Vice-Chairman Greg Matson has been hosting a series of community meetings looking for feedback regarding the tribe's latest restructuring efforts.

Each meeting focuses on a specific topic within the current tribal structure.

Information Technology, Human Resources Processes, Purchasing Process, and Policies and Procedures are highlighted.

The open meetings are designed to allow open communication with not only community members but employees as well.

Participants are encouraged to fill out surveys, email, or call to ensure their voice is heard.

During the September 28, 2011 OBC meeting the committee took action to undertake a major re-organization to the tribe's structure.

The re-organization removed the General Manager, Assistant General Manager and Chief of Staff from the organization and created a structure that has departments directly reporting to the OBC.

Mining company pulls out of Wisconsin

MADISON ~ Wisconsin Republicans' push to kick-start an iron mine in northwestern Wisconsin crashed to a halt Tuesday after GOP senators failed to muster enough support during a floor session.

Within hours, the head of the mining company looking to open the mine said the project was being dropped due to inaction by the Legislature.

Gogebic Taconite President Bill Williams issued a statement late Tuesday saying the company was leaving the state because the Senate sent a "clear message that Wisconsin will not welcome iron mining. We get the message."

Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald, R-Juneau, was forced to yank the bill off the day's calendar and sent it back to committee. The move puts Republicans in a time crunch if

New wave of casino proposals surfacing in Michigan

LANSING, Mich. (AP) ~ Fights are under way between groups proposing at least 22 new casinos in Michigan and opponents who are trying to protect the business of existing gambling halls or simply don't want to see more of them set up in the state.

The Detroit Free Press reported Sunday that it has reviewed confidential documents on proposals for opening new casinos besides the three privately owned casinos now operating in Detroit and 22 others chartered by Indian groups around Michigan.

Four tribes are working to expand off-reservation gambling, while two investor groups are seeking to amend the Michigan Constitution to allow more casinos. There are four proposals for casinos in Romulus and two each in Detroit and Port Huron.

"It's like fantasy land," said Michigan State University law professor Matthew Fletcher, a specialist in tribal law. "I really don't expect people are willing to have that many more casinos in lower Michigan."

Lansing Mayor Virg Bernero supports a casino proposal in Michigan's capital city. He said it is time that cities outside Detroit get a crack at the jobs and economic development potential of casinos.

"That's our money they're luring away," Bernero said. "I want that money reinvested here. Lansing will get a casino. The only question is when and where. I want it downtown as soon as possible."

One of the groups promoting casino expansion is Michigan First, which seeks a state constitutional amendment and the addition of eight casinos in the state.

The Free Press reported that Michigan First has made pitches to potential investors and government officials that include proposals for a new casino in Detroit, four outside the metropolitan Detroit area and one each in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

A competing proposal comes from another private investor group called Michigan Is Yours. There also are proposals from four tribes for off-reservation casinos, according to the newspaper.

Gov. Rick Snyder, Detroit Mayor Dave Bing, Detroit's casino owners and major Indian tribes oppose the proposals.

According to the documents that the newspaper reviewed, Michigan First says it has support from Republican ex-Michigan House Speaker Rick Johnson and Democratic ex-state budget director Mitch Irwin.

Irwin confirmed his role but declined to discuss details of the group's proposal, saying more would be revealed in mid-March.

"We're not ready to announce anything publicly right now," Irwin told the newspaper.

James Nye, spokesman for a coalition of tribes and Detroit casinos opposing the Michigan First effort, said his group is ready to raise $50 million to stop the new casinos.

"They are really unbelievably brazen with their plan to sell off pieces of our constitution to their investors," Nye said. "Worst of all, there is no transparency."

they hope to get any legislation passed before the session ends next week and lawmakers leave Madison for the campaign trail.

"We're at that tipping point now," Fitzgerald said. "This evasive 17th vote is getting harder and harder to find."

Republicans have touted the mining bill as their signature job creation legislation this session. They hold a 17-16 majority in the Senate, meaning they need everyone in their caucus to support the measure. But Sen. Dale Schultz, a moderate Republican from Richland Center, has vowed to vote against the measure, saying it makes challenging state regulators' permitting decisions too difficult and jeopardizes the environment.

Republican leaders have spent the last week trying to come up with a compromise to get Schultz on board. But Schultz hasn't budged.

Fitzgerald put the bill on the Senate's calendar anyway, sparking speculation the GOP had convinced a Democrat to switch sides and support the bill. The GOP opened the floor debate by offering up a revised bill to appease Schultz. The attempt failed 16-17 with Schultz and all 16 Democrats presenting a united front. Fitzgerald then moved to pull the bill back to committee rather than force a vote and watch the bill fail.

Schultz told senators he was still open to discussions but "today is not the day for this compromise. The people of this state have said over and over again, loudly and clearly, they're not against mining but they want it done in an environmentally safe and sustainable way."

Now the measure's future looks even bleaker. The legislative session ends March 15, meaning Senate Republicans would have to pass some kind of compromise and Assembly Republicans would have to concur in a span of just days.

Republican leaders could call the Legislature back for an extra session, but Fitzgerald said that would be difficult because half the senators and all state representatives will be out campaigning for November's elections.

And even if the Legislature reconvenes, the bill won't go anywhere unless Schultz or a Senate Democrat has a change of heart.

Assembly Speaker Jeff Fitzgerald, R-Horicon, Scott Fitzgerald's brother, said Assembly Republicans are done compromising because the Gogebic Taconite won't accept any more concessions.

"Senator Schultz and the Democrats decided to stand with environmentalists against job creators," he said. "We let something slip away."

Republicans have been working for a year on legislation to help Florida-based Gogebic Taconite open a giant open-pit mine in the Penokee Hills just south of Lake Superior. The company has promised the mine will create hundreds of jobs for economically depressed northwestern Wisconsin and boost the state's mining equipment manufacturing sector.

Environmentalists, meanwhile, warn the mine will pollute one of the most pristine areas left in the state. A fierce debate over how to best balance jobs and the environment has ensued.

Judge: Inmates can pursue sweat lodge lawsuit

HELENA, Mont. (AP) ~ Five Native American inmates who filed a lawsuit over strip searches required before and after they participated in religious sweat lodge ceremonies at a private prison in Montana can pursue part of their case, but cannot seek monetary damages, a federal judge has ruled.

"Plaintiffs have alleged sufficient facts to pursue their claims regarding the strip searches, the alleged prohibition of essential sacred items, and one alleged retaliatory act," U.S. District Judge Charles Lovell wrote.

However, Lovell ruled that the plaintiffs failed to show how the prison substantially burdened their religious exercise, so they can't seek monetary damages from the Department of Corrections or Corrections Corporation of America, which operates Crossroads Correctional Center in Shelby.

Lovell referred the case to U.S. Magistrate Keith Strong for a settlement conference, the Independent Record reported Sunday.

"More cooperation between the parties will go a long way toward achieving successful continuation of this ceremony in the prisons," Lovell wrote.

The lawsuit was filed after the Montana Human Rights Commission rejected a discrimination complaint filed by John Knows His Gun, Darryl Lewis Frost, Jason Chiefstick, William Gopher and Allen Potter. Knows His Gun and Chiefstick are now on probation, according to a Department of Corrections website.

The Department of Corrections and Crossroads Correctional Center filed motions asking Lovell to dismiss the case. He heard arguments on Feb. 23 and issued his ruling on Feb. 29.

The plaintiffs were incarcerated at the private prison in Shelby in 2008 and 2009. The men claim that in 2008, before and after sweat lodge ceremonies, the participants were subjected to "en masse" strip searches. On some occasions, the strip searches were done in a gymnasium with video cameras that at least one female guard monitored.

Prison officials said they suspected the ceremonies were being used to move contraband, although none was ever found.

Attorney Ron Waterman has said the contraband suspicions were nothing more than a pretext to discriminate against the inmates.

Wis. judge temporarily stops new voter ID law

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A Wisconsin judge on Tuesday granted a temporary injunction to groups trying to stop the state's controversial new voter identification law.

Dane County Circuit Judge David Flanagan's decision to grant the injunction stops the law from being in effect for the state's April 3 presidential primary election.

The NAACP's Milwaukee branch and immigration rights group Voces de la Frontera filed their lawsuit last year. A five-day trial on whether there should be a permanent injunction is scheduled for April 16.

Flanagan had first denied an injunction request in February, saying NAACP plaintiffs did not sufficiently demonstrate irreparable harm for an injunction. The NAACP's lawsuit included 40 affidavits describing plaintiffs' difficulties with complying with the law. But Flanagan at the time said the affidavits did not sufficiently demonstrate irreparable harm to justify the injunction. A hearing scheduled for April was supposed to focus on new plaintiff testimony.

Flanagan's motion orders the Government Accountability Board and Gov. Scott Walker to immediately cease any effort to enforce or implement the law pending the April 16 trial.

Government Accountability Board spokesman Reid Magney had no immediate comment on the judge's order. A spokeswoman for the state Department of Justice, which represented GAB in the case, did not immediately return messages seeking comment.

There are four lawsuits against the state's new voter ID law, which went into effect in February. All of them are pending.

Oneida Artist Honored with National Award

Rapid City, SD – Stand-up comedian and spoken word artist Charlie Hill of Oneida, WI is one of six Native American artists being recognized by First Peoples Fund this year. Today the Fund announced artists from six states who will receive a prestigious 2012 Jennifer Easton Community Spirit Award fellowship. Each year, the national organization honors and celebrates exceptional American Indian artists who embody Collective Spirit® — "that which manifests self-awareness and a sense of responsibility to sustain the cultural fabric of a community". Each honoree is recognized with a $5,000 no-strings-attached fellowship.

Charlie Hill

A member of the Oneida Tribes of Wisconsin, Hill honed his skills at The Comedy Store in Los Angeles before going on to become a true legend in stand-up comedy and to do theater, television and film. According to fellow entertainer Jennifer Kreisberg who nominated him, "Charlie has opened a door and paved a road for Native performers all over Indian Country. He is strengthening our community in his own unique ways — first and foremost is his use of humor as medicine." Through his humor over more than 37 years in the entertainment industry, Hill has taken on topics of race, Native identity and oppression. "I feel strongly that laughter is one of the ultimate forms of quick healing," he says. Kreisberg adds, "Charlie has been a profile and a voice for the people and for Indian Country at large through his work. He is tirelessly vaporizing the persistent stereotypes of our people."

First Peoples Fund's President, Lori Pourier (Oglala Lakota) explains that Community Spirit Award honorees are chosen not only for artistic excellence but for exemplifying indigenous values of generosity, wisdom, respect, integrity, strength, fortitude and humility. "Each artist exemplifies Collective Spirit® which moves each one of us to stand up and make a difference, to pass on the ancestral knowledge, or simply extend a hand of generosity", she said.

This year's honorees are:

- Duane Goodwin from Bemidji, MN (Anishinaabe) – Sculptor
- Elizabeth Jaakola from Cloquet, MN (Anishinaabe) – Music/Voice/Composition/Performance
- G. Peter Jemison from Victor, N.Y. (Seneca) – Fine Art Painting, Mixed Media
- Jackie Parsons from Browning, MT (Blackfeet) – Traditional Arts
- David Boxley from Kingston, WA (Tsimshian) – Visual Arts
- Charlie Hill from Oneida, WI (Oneida) – Stand Up Comedian, Spoken Word

Honorees were nominated for the national award by members of their own tribes and were selected by an independent panel of American Indian cultural leaders.

Over the past 13 years, First Peoples Fund has recognized a total of 59 Community Spirit Award honorees representing 43 tribal nations.

Support group offered for parents of college students

Do you have a student in college, or getting ready to enter college in the next year? Parents of college and university students are invited to participate in a mutual support group!

Have you ever wondered…

- What expenses might I need to assist my student with?
- What do I do when my student is homesick?
- How can I support my student without "parenting" them too much while they are away in college?
- Mitch and his staff could probably fill in many commonly asked questions PARENTS have.

The transition to college can be confusing, and full of anxiety for parents as well as students. Our children are starting true independence when they leave home for their higher education experience. It's hard to tell your student, "I don't know what you should do".

Come to this inaugural meeting on March 15, at the Oneida Community Education Center on Packerland Drive at 6:00 P.M. to share ups and downs, joys and trials, and patterns of college life.

The Parents of College Student Support Group will identify common questions and issues that parents encounter, who can then help prepare the next group of parents of students who will be venturing into college life next fall! Join us as we share light refreshments, exchange stories and better prepare our Oneida students for higher education!

Getting students to college is a major undertaking. Getting students through college is another. The inaugural meeting will be held at 7:00 P.M. on Wednesday, February 22 at the Oneida Community Support Center on 2632 South Packerland Drive. Refreshments will be served.

Let's unscramble the transition, confusing and anxiety producing experience of launching a child into the world of higher education. You will also receive valuable information concerning complex landscape of higher education and knowledge that every parent should know. The Higher Education staff will be available for consultation.

Our Land Claims Approach

New York Land Rights Victory – March 4, 1985…Land Rights Settlement Status?

March 4, 1985 saw the Oneida Nation victory of a key land rights test case in the Supreme Court of the United States of America. It seems like such a significant date in our land tenure rights would be a point of celebration and encouragement rather than a forgotten time in history. As we approach 25 years since our successful test case it seems, as one tribal member has said, as if we have addressed our land rights resolution as if we LOST rather than WON. Perhaps it is time to revisit our understanding of our land rights relationships, our own Oneida Diaspora and our recent decision on the settlement of our land rights in New York. With the social, legal, and economic world in the way it is perhaps, the context of what we settled for at another point in time needs to be revisited and reframed. Perhaps it is time to have a detailed understanding of what a "good settlement" would entail. Perhaps it is time to understand the value of a "non-settlement" on our terms. Perhaps we need to admit the full true position of the governments setting at the table in their approach toward a settlement of the land rights of Indian Peoples. If you were promised, a dollar and you get a nickel, which you did not have before some peoples thinking would see that as a "good deal". Others would say what about the other 95 cents? Others would say little with many words. Others would say what exactly has the land rights battle cost our community over the years? Some say many millions. Others say we do not know. Others say little with many words. Some say the time has come for a change in how we approach the issue both in negotiation and litigation strategies and seek a new path to a "good settlement" before another 25 years passes. Where do our values and standards and needs fit into both strategies? We may need to remind ourselves and those whom represent us of the thinking of the "good Indian mind for a good Indian settlement" mantra and the value that a comprehensive understanding of the subject culturally, socially and legally would provide. Were these elements missing or weak factors in the past context of our arguments? Will they be in the renewed reframing of the issue considering the many changes in the world and the position of the USA to address Indian land tenure issue in its own boundaries? I am being to wonder more than I have when I knew half of what I know now. For more information on the GTC New York Land Rights Petition and Internal Audit please contact;

Strip Mine Bill Threatens Local Homeowners, Flood Victims

Dear Editor,

I want to bring your attention to a provision of the Strip Mining Act, AB 426/SB 488, which will threaten the flood insurance policies if 18,000 Wisconsin homes and businesses worth more than $3 billion. This includes more than 3,700 policies in Brown, Fond du Lac, Outagamie, and Winnebago counties worth nearly $573 million. The following Representatives from the Fox Valley region are co-authors of the Strip Mining Act: Andre Jacque, Dean Kaufert, John Klenke, Michelle Litjens, Alvin Ott, Richard Spanbauer, Jim Steineke, Gary Tauchen, Jeremy Thiesfeldt, and Karl Van Roy, and Chad Weininger.

The Strip Mine Bill exempts iron mines from state floodplain rules, putting Wisconsin out of compliance with federal flood insurance laws, according to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

According to FEMA, if homeowners and businesses across the state cannot get flood insurance, mortgages could be cancelled and refinancing will be impossible. Other forms of federal disaster assistance may also be unavailable to relive damages like the $660 million incurred statewide in the floods of 2008.

We all saw the pictures of flood devastation like what happened at Lake Dalton in recent years. The Fox Valley was heavily flooded in 2008 and remains vulnerable to future flooding.

Call your Representative today and tell them to protect your flood insurance, disaster aid, and mortgages, not the profits of an out-of-state strip mining company.

Sincerely,
Rep. Brett Hulsey

Apologies to Miranda Washinawatok and the Menominee Nation

To the Family of Miranda Washinawatok and the People of the Menominee Nation:

On behalf of the Diocese of Green Bay, I wish to apologize for the events that led up to, and have followed, the benching of Miranda for a basketball game at Sacred Heart School, in part, for her use of the Menominee language in school. The resulting events that transpired were never intentionally grounded in any way that would cause the family and the Menominee Nation to view the Diocese of Green Bay as insensitive to a person of Menominee heritage or any heritage. We wish we could change how that was handled. The truth is that we cannot undo any damage that was inflicted, and we are keenly aware of the emotions that have come to bear as fallout in this incident.

Over the course of time that has followed the events of January 19, 2012, we have had the opportunity to discuss and, more importantly, listen to, how the incident has brought hard feelings and anger to the Menominee people. Because of these opportunities to dialogue with the family and tribal elders, our awareness at the Diocesan level has increased many-fold to the need for cultural diversity training that is needed at Sacred Heart School for the students, staff, school leadership, and school families. We believe that the need for this training exists not only in Sacred Heart in Shawano, but in every Catholic school in the Diocese of Green Bay.

Plans in the coming days and weeks will be directed to a partnership with the Menominee people to plan and implement this training at Sacred Heart in the coming months. We will then be inviting all interested cultural groups, including the Menominee people, to bring ideas and thoughts that can be crafted into an action plan that will bring cultural awareness and sensitivity to all of our Catholic schools in the Diocese of Green Bay.

We ask for your forgiveness for our actions that have inflicted heartache, pain, and anger to all those who have felt these emotions over the past several weeks. It is our hope that with this greater awareness, we can begin to repair any harm that has been casued and to be able to build new and improved relationships.

May God Bless You
and Keep You Always,
Dr. Joseph Bound
Director of Education

Dear Miranda Washinawatok Family and Menominee Nation,

Looking back at these past four weeks, I realize that I have now learned much about the culture and heritage of the Menominee people. I am deeply sorry for any personal or collective hurt that my actions caused Miranda, her family, or the Menominee Nation.

I regret that my lack of understanding with regards to the communal nature of the Menominee culture has caused my actions to offend the family and the Menominee Nation. In my cultural mindset, I believed that a personal apology such as the one I offered the night of January 24 was sufficient. In your culture, I have now learned, it is not. And for not asking for swifter clarification and guidance on this, I am sorry if this has caused further hurt.

I stated in our discussion on January 24 that one of the appealing aspects of the principalship at Sacred Heart was the fact that we have a very diverse student body. I stand by that statement. I want all of out students to be proud of their heritage and to feel that everyone at school respects each other's background and history.

We are working with a variety of people to put plans in place to help our staff and eventually extended school family become more culturally aware and sensitive. For this, I will need the help of many people and I hope that we can work together to move forward from this.

There are no perfect people in this world. We all make, have made, and will make mistakes. As an educator, it is my belief that we learn and grow from mistakes. The real shame in making a mistake comes if one is not able to admit to that mistake and resolve to learn so as to not repeat the mistake. With your help, I can learn from this and we can all grow in understanding and respect.

Again, I am sorry if my actions caused hurt, brought up old hurts or in any way gave the appearance that I and through me, this school, does not vale the cultural heritage of our students. This was not my intention or desire. I ask for forgiveness from Miranda, her family, and the Menominee Nation and I ask for your assistance in moving us forward to a better future regarding cultural awareness and sensitivity.

In Christ's Peace,
Dan Minter
Principal

OBC Forum...

Shekólih,

As I shared with you in my previous article, many times I focus my communication on specific topics, issues or legislation I am working on and received feedback that it sometimes appears as though I am working only on the one-topic items I report about. So, to ensure you are informed on the many items my office has been tasked with, I shared with you some of the upcoming meetings, legislation or projects being worked from my office. Since my last article, I have represented the tribe in two very important federal consultations as well as with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Federal Consultation

Federal agencies are required by executive (presidential) order to hold consultation sessions with tribal leaders. During the consultation session, tribal leaders have the opportunity to offer solutions, ask questions, express concerns and provided recommendations to federal rules which impact dollars and the services provided to tribal members. I attended two Tribal Consultation sessions in February in Petosky, MI. The first session was with the Office of Head Start and several technical issues were covered with the federal staff along with similar issues from other tribes from Michigan and Minnesota. I would like to extend my sincerest appreciation to Oneida's Head Start Director for assisting in describing the issues for Oneida and with the overall preparation for this session.

Melinda Danforth
Councilwoman

The second consultation session was held with the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS). Again, many technical and funding issues were covered in this session, including the need for tribes to begin working directly with the DHHS on rules and funding under the new healthcare guidelines. Another specific item of great concern discussed by the tribes was the use/abuse of prescription pain medications, specifically narcotics. Thanks to the foresight of the staff here in Oneida, we were able to share our policy information from our own clinic and offer up a framework for a solution for the tribes who were interested. I also would like to the thank staff at the Health Center, Center for Self-Sufficiency, Self-Governance and Legislative Affairs who prepared me for this consultation.

I also attended the Region 5 Tribal / Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) meeting which was held in Chicago, IL. One of the issues covered included the very public and controversial mining issue taking place in WI's northern region due its long-term negative effects on the area. Oneida supports our relatives to the north in their endeavors to thwart pollution and protect their resources, just as Oneida would do here in order to ensure there is hunting and fishing for generations. I worked with several staff from our Environmental Department to prepare for the 2 day meeting and also thank them for their work.

Code of Ethics

I am pleased to share that I have completed the first round of public feedback on the effort I am making to revise the tribe's Code of Ethics. I held five community forums where I validated survey results from late last fall. My next step will be to complete the draft Code of Ethics and bring it back to you for additional feedback. I appreciate the participation I have been receiving and have been able to incorporate much of it into the draft. For example, one of the challenges I am facing, is answering the question of "who will administer sanctions?" is it an individual, peers, or a separate committee? An elder suggested we consider developing a "jury pool" style hearing body for the sanctions and incorporate a similar process into the draft code. I have been sharing the concept in the forums held and have received positive feedback on this idea so as development of the draft code continues, this is one idea which I will be further exploring to incorporate. In the meantime, the second round of forums will be starting in mid-April, so please watch for the notices which will be posted in the Kali, internet and on facebook. I look forward to keeping the dialogue going and hope to bring the draft concept to GTC in July.

As always, please feel free to share your thoughts and ideas by emailing me at mdanforj@oneidanation.org or by calling my office at 920-869-4461. You can also contact my assistant Lisa Summers at lsummer2@oneidanation.org or 920-869-4478.

NCAI Announces 2012 Indian Country Leadership Awards

Washington, D.C. – The National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) has announced the recipients of the organization's prestigious Indian Country Leadership Awards. Congressman Don Young (R – AK) Chair of the House Subcommittee on Indian and Alaska Native Affairs, Larry Echo Hawk - Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, the American University's Washington Internships for Native Students (WINS) program, and the accomplished Dr. Eddie F. Brown, Professor, Arizona State University will be honored at the organization's Indian Country Leadership Award Banquet held during 2012 NCAI Executive Council Winter Session.

The organization's Indian Country Leadership Awards celebrate the outstanding contributions of individuals and organizations to Indian Country in four categories: Congressional Leadership Award, Native American Leadership Award, Governmental Leadership Award, and Public Sector Leadership Award.

NCAI, the nation's oldest, largest, and most representative American Indian and Alaska Native organization, will present the awards during a Tuesday evening award reception held in conjunction with its Executive Council Winter Session in Washington, D.C.

Congressional Leadership Award – Congressman Don Young

Representative Young has been a champion for Indian Country for 20 terms in the United States House of Representatives. Representative Young knows tribes are fully capable of self-determination and he supports sovereignty in his legislative efforts on tribal priorities from energy to healthcare. In the 112th Congress, Representative Young became the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Indian and Alaska Native Affairs and his leadership has been critical to enabling tribes to fully pursue economic development.

Native American Leadership Award – Dr. Eddie F. Brown, Professor, Arizona State University

Dr. Brown's career has spanned the highest levels of tribal, state, and federal administration and universities. He has developed key bipartisan policy, conducted research, and informed social work practice to benefit Native families, communities, and governments. His endeavors ensure tribal sovereignty and strengthen the sustainability of tribal nations. He has served as the Co-Chair of the NCAI Policy Research Center's Advisory Board since it was founded in 2003 and he continues to be a powerful advocate for Indian Country.

Governmental Leadership Award - Larry Echo Hawk - Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs

As the longest serving Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs in over a decade, Larry Echo Hawk's commitment to restructuring federal relations with Native nations has resulted in considerable improvements in the nation-to-nation relationship. Highlights of Mr. Echo Hawk's accomplishments include the historic $3.4 billion Cobell Settlement; $1 billion in water settlements; passage of the Tribal Law & Order Act and implementation of a pilot program that reduced crime on four reservations by a combined 35 percent; and, sweeping trust reform.

Public Sector Leadership Award – American University - Washington Internships for Native Students (WINS) Program

The Washington Internships for Native Students (WINS) program offers Native students an invaluable opportunity to develop professionally while living, studying, and interning in Washington, DC. WINS plays a critical role in building a pipeline of young Native leaders who are prepared to lead Indian Country in the new era of nation-to-nation relations. Since 1994, over 900 students representing over 80 tribes have participated in WINS, and WINS alumni now hold key positions in the federal government and myriad national Native organizations, including NCAI.

About The National Congress of American Indians:

Founded in 1944, the National Congress of American Indians is the oldest, largest and most representative American Indian and Alaska Native organization in the country. NCAI advocates on behalf of tribal governments and communities, promoting strong tribal-federal government-to-government policies, and promoting a better understanding among the general public regarding American Indian and Alaska Native governments, people and rights. # American Indian tribes' casinos see turnaround

By Stephen Singer
AP Business Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. - Gambling revenue at casinos run by American Indian tribes edged up slightly in 2010, reversing a first-ever drop in revenue the previous year and showing renewed strength as the economy improves, according to an annual report released Tuesday.

The study, ``Casino City's Indian Gaming Industry Report,'' said revenue at Indian casinos was $26.7 billion in 2010, up from $26.4 billion in 2009. In contrast, revenue at commercial casinos declined 0.1 percent and the businesses are expected to soon be overtaken by Indian casinos.

Tribes' casinos made up less than 20 percent of casino gambling in 1993, but now account for nearly 44 percent, just slightly less than commercial casinos' share of 45 percent, the study said. Racinos, which combine race tracks with casinos, account for 11 percent of market share.

Indian casinos appeal to gamblers because they're newer and operate in markets with less competition, said Alan Meister, an economist at Nathan Associates Inc. and author of the report.

``They're in areas where there wasn't gaming before,'' he said in an interview. ``It's closer to the people. It can be a day trip. It does not need to be a weekend in Vegas or Atlantic City.''

Despite its turnaround in 2010, growth that year was ``significantly below'' pre-recession increases of 10 percent in 2006 and about 15 percent from 2002 through 2005.

The recession took a toll, with lower consumer confidence and higher unemployment cutting into casino business and restricted lending and costlier financing reducing casino development and major expansions and renovations, the study said.

As many as 239 Indian tribes operate 448 gambling businesses with gambling revenue concentrated in certain states. In 2010, California was the largest state in Indian casino gambling revenue, accounting for $6.8 billion, or more than 25 percent of revenue nationwide.

The top five states added Connecticut, Florida and Washington to California and Oklahoma, accounting for about 61 percent of revenue.

Growth in revenue was uneven across the states, varying from a 61 percent increase in Alabama to a 7 percent drop in North Carolina. Revenue rose in 19 of the 28 states where Indian-run casinos operate.

After Alabama, the fastest growing states were Texas, Alaska, Louisiana, Washington, Michigan, Mississippi and New York.

``Indian gaming could be growing faster if it were not prohibited to do so,'' Meister said.

For example, state legislatures often restrict gambling, such as bans on slot machines.

``There's no doubt the tribes would be better off with full slot machines,'' Meister said. ``It's what people have come to expect.''

The report also said that racinos showed strong revenue growth in 2010, posting a 5 percent increase, to $6.7 billion from $6.4 billion. Racinos operate in 12 states, accounting for just 11 percent of the casino gambling market, but up significantly from a fraction of a percent in 1993.

The report said racinos are popular because they are relatively new, face limited local competition and are popular sources of revenue for government.

The report said the near term for Indian casino gambling is promising, even as the longer outlook is uncertain due to legal challenges, legislation and regulations that restrict gambling and limit its expansion.

``Even with only a slow recovery, 2010 was certainly something positive to build on,'' it said.

Public Hearing Notice

11:30AM Norbert Hill Center (BCCR)

March 22, 2012

Purpose:
Amendments to the Per Capita Ordinance

The intent of these Amendments is to:

- Adopt a process to penalize those individuals who submit fraudulent proof of a diploma when claiming their trust account funds. The fine for submitting fraudulent proof of a diploma will be one-third (1/3) of the balance of the trust account.
- Prohibit someone who is dually enrolled in the Oneida Tribe and another Tribe from receiving a per capita payment.
- Authorize the attachment of per capita payments to satisfy federal tax levies.
- Outline how a Tribal member may refuse a per capita payment or trust account payment and direct where those funds are deposited.
- Clarify how prior payments may be claimed and how they are distributed.
- Prohibit a per capita payment to a Tribal member whose date of death occurs before the payment is distributed.
- Authorize the Trust Committee to establish additional payment dates, as needed.
- Equally divide the per capita funds between the attachments for child support arrears based on the number of court orders, instead of the number of children.
- Require that attachments for child support arrears be submitted to the Oneida Nation Child Support Agency, who will give a one-time notice to the Tribal member that his or her per capita payment will be attached for child support arrears until they are satisfied, as long as attachment requests are properly submitted before each per capita payment.
- Create a separate voluntary federal income tax withholding deadline for individuals whose per capita will be attached to pay child support arrears. Require those individuals to notify the Oneida Nation Child Support Agency in writing if they want to change their withholding from year to year.
- Authorize Tribal members to defer payment of a trust account.
- Clarify that a former Tribal member would become ineligible to claim prior or future per capita payments as of the date he or she relinquishes membership.
- Clarify that if a legally incompetent adult relinquishes membership in the Tribe, the funds held in that person's trust account are to be disbursed to his or her guardian.

The Amendments were requested by the Trust Committee, Enrollment Department, Child Support Agency and the Tribal Judicial System. Emergency amendments were passed on June 8, 2011, extended on November 9, 2011 and will expire on June 8, 2012.

April 4, 2012

- Requires an application for a license or a permit be accompanied by a $50 nonrefundable fee.
- Sets a 90-day deadline for the Commission to grant or deny a license or permit, which starts once the complete application is received.
- Lists specific reasons for which an application could be denied.
- Authorizes the Commission to impose conditions on licenses and permits.

A similar regulation was adopted on an emergency basis on May 25, 2011; the emergency adoption was extended on November 9, 2011 and this regulation will expire on May 25, 2012.

Spring thaw and Class II road restrictions in effect for most of Wisconsin

Due to warming weather, Spring Thaw and Class II road restrictions are now in effect across most of Wisconsin, except for Zone 1 which includes and is north of US 8. Class II roads include about 1,400 miles of state highways susceptible to damage from overweight trucks during the spring thaw period. More information regarding Class II roadways and roadway postings can be found on the Wisconsin Department of Transportation's web site at www.dot.wisconsin.gov/travel/truck/weightrestrictions.htm<http://www.dot.wisconsin.gov/travel/truck/weightrestrictions.htm>.

Suspension of most divisible load overweight permits is also now in effect in Zones 2 - 5. Information on overweight permits can be found at www.dot.wisconsin.gov/business/carriers/osowgeneral.htm<http://www.dot.wisconsin.gov/business/carriers/osowgeneral.htm>. A recorded message with information on road restrictions is available by calling (608) 266-8417.

Applicants must be older than 16 years, nine months, and younger than 19. Candidates must not have been convicted of a felony and can't be on adult parole or probation at the time of entry.

The next class starts July 19. The academy is located at Fort McCoy, between Sparta and Tomah.

Wis. professor gets grant to study concussions

MILWAUKEE (AP) – The Department of Defense is awarding a professor at the Medical College of Wisconsin a $1.9 million grant to study the best ways to diagnose and assess the recovery times for concussions.

Michael McCrea is a professor of neurosurgery and neurology and director of brain injury research. He's also a neuropsychologist at Froedtert Hospital.

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reports he will examine four computerized cognitive assessment tests – two used often in the sports world. He will then determine how well they detect concussion effects and how well they measure recovery time.

He says there are a number of cognitive assessment tools but little data on the reliability and validity of the tools.

More than 178,000 servicemen and women were diagnosed with traumatic brain injury between 2000 and 2010.

Tribal Payments – source:

Connecticut tribe ends payments to members

By Michael Melia
Associated Press

Hartford, Conn. (AP) – Tribal payments are coming to an end for Mashantucket Pequot Tribe members who once received a monthly share of casino revenue, a person familiar with tribal actions said Friday.

The tribe, which runs the Foxwoods Resort Casino, halted a per-capita distribution of gambling revenue in 2010 amid financial struggles, said the person who spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity over the details of the assistance. The person said transitional payments then started at the reduced amount of $1,500 per month to help members adjust, but they gradually were decreased to $500 with the last payment coming Friday.

A spokesman for the Mashantuckets, Bill Satti, said the tribe does not comment on "personal matters of this nature."

The tribe still provides for members in areas such as education, but the shriveling of the revenue sharing marks the end of one of the premier benefits for the tribe that opened one of the world's largest casinos.

The end of the payments was first reported by The Day of New London.

Foxwoods opened in 1992 and expanded in 2008 with the $700 million MGM Grand, a 30-story property that includes a casino, hotel and a 4,000-seat performing arts theater. But the casino and its neighbor, the Mohegan Sun, have been struggling with weak consumer demand since the economic downturn and growing competition in the Northeast. Foxwoods is in talks to resolve hundreds of millions of dollars in debt.

For several years now, tribal officials have been preparing members for the cutbacks.

In 2009, the then-chairman of the Mashantuckets, Michael J. Thomas, warned in a letter to tribal members that financial difficulties threatened their living standards.

"These are dire financial times for our tribe," Thomas wrote in the letter. "The situation is serious and threatens our tribe."

The Transitional Income Supplemental Payments, which began in January 2011, were paid out to adult tribal members the first Friday of each month, according to the person familiar with tribal actions, who said the payments were far higher than $1,500 a month before the economy soured.

For months, the person said, tribal members have been urged to pursue financial counseling offered through the tribal council chairman's office in correspondence that also included names and numbers of state social service agencies and food pantries. The person said the tribe also created its own assistance program called "Beans and Jeans," a place where families in need can obtain donated food and clothing.

A spokesman for the Connecticut Department of Social Services, David Dearborn, said the office serving southeast Connecticut has not seen any inordinate increase in applications.

New wave of casino proposals surfacing in Michigan

Lansing, Mich. (AP) – Fights are under way between groups proposing at least 22 new casinos in Michigan and opponents who are trying to protect the business of existing gambling halls or simply don't want to see more of them set up in the state.

The Detroit Free Press reported Sunday that it has reviewed confidential documents on proposals for opening new casinos besides the three privately owned casinos now operating in Detroit and 22 others chartered by Indian groups around Michigan.

Four tribes are working to expand off-reservation gambling, while two investor groups are seeking to amend the Michigan Constitution to allow more casinos. There are four proposals for casinos in Romulus and two each in Detroit and Port Huron.

"It's like fantasy land," said Michigan State University law professor Matthew Fletcher, a specialist in tribal law. "I really don't expect people are willing to have that many more casinos in lower Michigan."

Lansing Mayor Virg Bernero supports a casino proposal in Michigan's capital city. He said it is time that cities outside Detroit get a crack at the jobs and economic development potential of casinos.

"That's our money they're luring away," Bernero said. "I want that money reinvested here. Lansing will get a casino. The only question is when and where. I want it downtown as soon as possible."

One of the groups promoting casino expansion is Michigan First, which seeks a state constitutional amendment and the addition of eight casinos in the state.

The Free Press reported that Michigan First has made pitches to potential investors and government officials that include proposals for a new casino in Detroit, four outside the metropolitan Detroit area and one each in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

A competing proposal comes from another private investor group called Michigan Is Yours. There also are proposals from four tribes for off-reservation casinos, according to the newspaper.

Gov. Rick Snyder, Detroit Mayor Dave Bing, Detroit's casino owners and major Indian tribes oppose the proposals.

According to the documents that the newspaper reviewed, Michigan First says it has support from Republican ex-Michigan House Speaker Rick Johnson and Democratic ex-state budget director Mitch Irwin.

Irwin confirmed his role but declined to discuss details of the group's proposal, saying more would be revealed in mid-March.

"We're not ready to announce anything publicly right now," Irwin told the newspaper.

James Nye, spokesman for a coalition of tribes and Detroit casinos opposing the Michigan First effort, said his group is ready to raise $50 million to stop the new casinos.

"They are really unbelievably brazen with their plan to sell off pieces of our constitution to their investors," Nye said. "Worst of all, there is no transparency."

Preventing Bullying Behavior in the Oneida Community

Submitted by Jennifer J. Jordan, M.Ed., CHES, HHS, Injury Prevention Coordinator
Environmental Health and Safety Division

Unfortunately we are hearing a lot about bullying incidents that are happening in other parts of the country. Bullying is a widespread and serious problem that can happen anywhere. It is not a phase children have to go through, it is not "just messing around," and it is not something to grow out of. Bullying can cause serious and lasting harm.

Bullies use their power (physical size, age, social status, computer skills, etc.) to threaten, harass, or hurt others. Bullying can happen over and over to one person or a group of people.

Who is a victim of bullying?

Anyone can become a victim of bullying from young children to adults.

What are the different types of bullying?

There are four types of bullying behaviors, the first is verbal. Verbal bullying happens when there is intentional name calling or teasing that is hurtful to the other person. The second type of bullying behavior is social bullying, which involves the spread of rumors that are not true about a person or the person is left out of a social activity on purpose. Physical bullying, the third type of bullying behavior, involves violent behaviors such as hitting, punching, or shoving. And lastly, the newest type of bullying behavior is cyber bullying. Cyber bullying involves social and verbal bullying behaviors, but the bullying takes place through social media such as Facebook or Twitter, mobile phone text messages, and email.

Utilizing the story of how the bear clan became the keepers of the medicine, each child drew and cut out a paper hand and on each finger wrote what they could do for others in the community. Hands were then displayed on a wall at ONES. At right: Teachers and staff have the opportunity to nominate students – on a weekly basis – who exhibit positive behaviors or are assisting others without being asked to be chosen for the Kind, Caring Communities wall of fame.

What are the warning signs that a person is being bullied?

There are many warning signs to look for if you think a loved one is being bullied:

- Comes home with damaged or missing clothing or other belongings
- Reports losing items such as books, electronics, clothing, or jewelry
- Has unexplained injuries
- Complains frequently of headaches, stomachaches, or feeling sick
- Has trouble sleeping or has frequent bad dreams
- Has changes in eating habits
- Hurts themselves
- Are very hungry after school from not eating their lunch
- Runs away from home
- Loses interest in visiting or talking with friends
- Is afraid of going to school or other activities with peers
- Loses interest in school work or begins to do poorly in school
- Appears sad, moody, angry, anxious or depressed when they come home
- Talks about suicide
- Feels helpless
- Often feels like they are not good enough
- Blames themselves for their problems
- Suddenly has fewer friends
- Avoids certain places
- Acts differently than usual

If your loved one exhibits one or more warning signs, talk to them about what is going on in their lives. Seek out help from others such as school administrators, counselor, or other health professionals.

What is being done about bullying in the community?

At the Oneida Nation Elementary School a team called the Kind, Caring, Communities Team, made up of teachers and administrative staff has taken the initiative to tackle bullying behaviors in the school. An anti-bullying curriculum is taught to students by the guidance counselors, the team regularly does activities with the students to promote positive behaviors, and students have the opportunity to be nominated by teachers and staff for exhibiting positive behaviors in school.

Seventh Annual Young Native Writers Essay Contest Announced

Contest offers Scholarships, encourages Native American Youth to explore their Heritage

Washington, D.C. – The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation is pleased to announce the call for essays in its seventh annual Young Native Writers Essay Contest. The national writing contest focuses on the richness of Native American life and history, and challenges Native American youth to speak out on issues important to their tribal communities.

For 2012, students who participate will be asked to write on the following topic: "Describe a crucial issue confronting your tribal community today. Explain how you hope to help your tribal community respond to this challenge and improve its future."

The contest is designed to encourage young Native American writers to explore their heritage while becoming positive forces in their communities. It is open to Native American high school students from all tribal communities throughout the United States.

Students interested in participating can visit the Holland & Knight Young Native Writers Essay Contest website, nativewriters.hklaw.com, for official contest rules and to view past winning essays. All essays must be submitted electronically by the entry deadline, April 30, 2012, through the contest website.

Five finalists will be named in June and during the week of July 8-14, 2012, all finalists and a teacher nominated by each winning essayist will receive an all-expenses-paid "Scholar Week" trip to Washington, D.C. The group's activities will include an honor ceremony at the National Museum of the American Indian; a tour of the NMAI Cultural Resources Center where tribal objects can be viewed and studied; educational symposiums for students and their teachers; and a tour of the U.S. Capitol. The winners will also receive a $2,500 scholarship to be paid to the college or university of their choice.

The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation partners with the Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of the American Indian to plan and execute activities during Scholar Week. "The Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of the American Indian is proud to be involved in a program that inspires high school students to think innovatively about their Native communities," said Museum Director Kevin Gover (Pawnee). "Each year we look forward to honoring the winners at our building on the National Mall."

The contest debuted in 2006 in Red Lake, Minnesota in response to the March 2005 event where a student of Red Lake High School shot five fellow students, one teacher, one security guard, members of his family and then himself. The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation developed this contest with the hope that the Red Lake community would find healing by promoting its rich culture and traditions. In the years since, the program has evolved to serve all Native American communities.

"Indian youngsters have learned, better than any generation before them, how to 'walk in two worlds,'" said Ben Nighthorse Campbell, a former U.S. Senator and current Senior Policy Advisor with Holland & Knight LLP. "Many have mastered the tools of the technological age while preserving the traditions vital to their culture. I am pleased that Holland & Knight and the National Museum of the American Indian have continued their partnership in providing a forum for these talented and thoughtful young people to offer their perspectives on issues of importance to all in Indian Country."

Updates from the Science Department

By Becky Nutt

Things have been busy in the science department. We are making final preparations for science research presentations at the AISES fair in Albuquerque, New Mexico by Noelle Metoxen, Fred Miller, & LaKota Martinez.

We completed regional science fair completion last Saturday at Lakeland College in Sheboygan. Noelle's project on Niacin in Corn won two special category awards. Other participants included: Jo Jo Santiago presenting on the utility of deer cameras as a tool to estimate deer populations, LaKota with her research in teen online communications, and Rachel Ninham's study of her rabbit, Itty Bitty.

Rachel and LaKota also presented their work at the annual Junior Science Engineering and Humanities Symposium held recently at UW-Madison. The symposium included workshops at UW lab facilities, student panels, poster presentations, and competitive presentations. Attending along with LaKota and Rachel, were Noelle, Evey Ortega, Heather Stevens, and Yasmine Denny.

We are currently recruiting students for summer opportunities including a four day camp at the Morgridge Institute in the new Wisconsin Institutes of Discovery. The topic of the camp will be human stem cell research. It is an exciting opportunity for Oneida students.

The beloved Snow Day finally appears

By Josanna Cornelius and Thunderhawk Times Staff

Finally. After a winter of barely any snow, Oneida elementary and high school students got their first snow day on… of all days, Wednesday, February 29… Leap Day. Most other schools in the area, like Seymour and Pulaski, had off, too. Other schools, like Green Bay, had a two-hour delay.

Will we have any more snow days this year? It's hard to say. Spring can bring some heavy storms.

If you want to find out if you're having a snow day at your school here are some of radio stations you can go to: WDUA-AM….AM 1400, WNAM….AM 1280, WIXX-FM…FM 101.1, WHBY…AM 1150, WNFL-AM…AM1440, and WGEE…AM1360.

Now here are some of the television stations you can go to: WBAY… Channel 2, WFRV…. Channel 5, WLUK…. Channel 11, NBC…. Channel 26, and WACY…. Channel 32.

Usually, we get snow days from very heavy, wet snow. Because then, it will dry up and become ice which makes it very slippery and scary for drivers. Also, the equipment is stressed, and causes breakdowns with the buses, so the bus drivers can't pick up the kids and school gets cancelled or we get a two hour delay if the slippery ice melts away or the buses begin to run.

By the way, Spring Break runs from March 12 through 16. Summer vacation is about two-and-half months away.

Taking a tour of "TC" campus

By Brandon Doxtator
Thunderhawk Times

On Wednesday, February 22, nearly twenty ONHS students accompanied Guidance Counselor Tom Kenote to Northeastern Wisconsin Technical College (NWTC or "TC") as a part of Campus Career Days. The group left at about 8:15 and returned about 11:30.

My impression of "TC" was that it was a great school. It looked to me like there were lots of classrooms where students could have quiet surroundings and really focus on their education.

The school was established in 1912. The current president is Dr. H. Jeffrey Rafn. Currently the school has 41,500 students attending.

The main campus is located on West Mason Street, just coming into Green Bay on the left hand side if you're coming from Oneida. You can find their campuses in Green Bay, Marinette and Sturgeon Bay.

NWTC offers over 100 associate degrees, technical diplomas and apprenticeships, plus 84 certificates. The College also offers employee training and consulting through its Corporate Training and Educational Development department. It's one of the 16 technical colleges in Wisconsin. It has many different courses u can take their like business, accounting and finance, computer applications, design and composition, and health care, etc.

Most of their courses are hands-on work so that the students have a feeling about how it all works and what it will be like if they go down in that type of work.

I'd recommend it to people. There are a lot of good qualities to the campus. When I took a tour of the place everyone seemed nice and helpful to their students that go there. It's a big campus, but it's worth going to.

They said if you go there, you only need one admission fee and if you decide that you want to go to a different school and come back that the admission fee you already paid still stands if you go back to NWTC.

These are just a few of the good things I saw at "TC."

Running a Movie Theater

By Sheldon Skenandore
Thunderhawk Times

Lots of people know our teachers at Oneida Nation High School are teachers, but a lot of them don't know that they've done other things in their lives. For example, teacher Dave Santee, used to run some movie theaters between 1985 and 1991.

One theater was The Thunderbird Twin Theaters in Miami, OK. "That was my flagship," said Dave. He also ran the Center Theater in Vinita, OK, the All Red and the Pryor Drive-In in Pryor, OK, the Monette Drive-In in Monette, Mo, and the Orpheum Twin Theater in Neosho, MO.

"I got into it because I had a fascination with movie theaters and movies since I was a kid," said Dave. ""I got out of it because I wanted to try something different and I got an offer I couldn't refuse."

When you run movie theaters, you get to see a lot of movies. "The worst movie I ever saw was a French adaptation of "Cinderella,'" said Dave. "The best movie I ever saw was 'Dirty Dancing,' by far. We were sold out for three weeks in a row."

When people leave the theater, they sometimes leave things behind. "One time, I found a hundred dollar bill that someone had given us as a one dollar bill. The Thunderbird was a dollar movie house."

One other thing that stands out for Dave is the movie, "Stand By Me." There was a part in that movie when everyone walked out of the theater and I wondered why," said Dave. "Then I watched where it happened and it happened when a kid pulled a leach out of his 'tidy-whities.'"

Dave had a Cesna airplane that he flew across a big lake so he could check on his theaters.

Patsy Cline Reconsidered

By RJ Webster
Thunderhawk Times

On March 5, 1963 Patsy Cline died in a plane crash. Cline was born Virginia Patterson Hensley on September 8, 1932. She was thirty years old when she died.

People may wonder why Patsy Cline matters almost fifty years after she died. According to Wikipedia, Cline "was best-known for her rich tone, emotionally expressive and bold contralto voice, and her role as a pioneer in the country music industry." Contralto is the deepest classical female singing voice.

Cline's hits included "Walking After Midnight," "I Fall to Pieces," "She's Got You," "Sweet Dreams," and "Crazy."

Many people do not know that "Crazy" was written by Willie Nelson. According to my teacher, Denis, "more tears have fallen into more beers while 'Crazy' was playing on the jukebox than probably any other song in history."

After she died, millions of her records were sold and she earned many musical awards.

These days, Patsy Cline memorabilia is worth a lot of money. According to one website, a signed photograph could be worth over $1500 and an autographed 1957 debut album brought just a little over $3000.

Even though her music is over fifty years old, it is still legit because it is still about people, broken hearts, and lost dreams.

Itty Bitty—More Than Just a Rabbit

By Joelle Thomas
Thunderhawk Times

Itty Bitty is a Lion Head, Silver-Fox, Angora-mixed rabbit.

Itty's full name is Itty Bitty Michelle Ninham Arce. She is roughly five-months-old. Bitty was also bought off of Craig's List.

Rachel Ninham takes care of Itty Bitty during the week and the weekends. She takes care of her during the week here a t school. And on the weekends brings Itty Bitty home with her.

Rachel also did her 2012 Science Fair project on Itty Bitty, looking at various risk factors for rabbits in general and Itty Bitty in particular.

I asked Rachel what she thinks of Itty Bitty and this is what she had to say: "I love Itty Bitty. She's my little princess, and she has a bunch of different outfits."

Inside a Lady T-Hawk's Practice

By Tasha Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Lots of people know that the Lady T-Hawks is an astounding team. What they don't know is what goes into that: Practice. Practice. Practice.

Here's a look at a typical practice as the team prepares for an upcoming game:

By 3:30 we've all stretched together as a team. After we've stretched, we get on the line—ten warm-up jogs down and back.

After warming up, we go straight into drills such as three man weave, lay ups, dribbling, passing and outlet drills. These basic drills develop the skills that show up on the court.

From here it all depends on what we need to improve or work on. Say we need to work on closing our defense, in other words not letting the other team inside the paint, then we'll spend as much time as it takes to do that.

When we work on free-throws we usually "run our misses." For example, if we shoot ten free throws and make six we'll run full court four times.

If we need to condition, we'll spend all practice conditioning. We focus on one particular aspect of our game until we get it down.

At the end of each practice, we get on the line and run. We go hard till 5:30 or longer.

Since we are a team of seven, each player gets substantial playing time. Being able to play a full game without getting too tired is one of our top priorities.

That's the practice part. Our family and friends that come support us at our games are also a big part of our success.

T-hawk Boys end season with school record

By Scott Murray
ONHS Boys Basketball Headcoach

The boys basketball team finished their season 17 - 7. The 17 victories were the most wins during a season in the school's history. The total wins included a victory against Division 1 Green Bay West and a First Round Regional win against Niagara. The team finished the season with 8 devoted players. Anthony Cornelius, Kommanche Jordan, Mike Mills, Jojo Santiago, Devonte Pointer, Oscar Schuyler, Diego Metoxen, and Mitchel Cornelius. This team did a great job of buying into the system. They did a great job of playing together and were very unselfish. The comradery amongst the players was definitely the reason for the record breaking season.

ONHS Boys Basketball set a school record winning 17 games.

Kommanche Jordan led all scores with 308 points, followed closely by Anthony Cornelius with 303. Mike Mills was third with 278 points, and was also the team's leading rebounder. Devonte Pointer was fourth with 168 points. Jojo led the team in assists and was the defensive stopper. Diego Metoxen, Oscar Schuyler and Mitchel Cornelius did a great job as the sixth, seventh and eighth men in contributing to the record breaking season.

Pelky portrays powerlifting prowess

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Powerlifting is not a sport most people associate with high school athletics says Junior Emily Pelky who lifts for Seymour High School.

"At first they're shocked because not a lot of schools have powerlifting as an option to do, and then they learn more about it and they get really interested in it, it's something different, you don't see it all the time," she said.

Pelky joined the Seymour team as a freshman, and has been to state competitions for the past two years.

"Last year at state in our area division we took first as a team for girls which was really neat, and the boys took second," she said.

Pelky squats 315 lbs., benches 105 lbs. and deadlifts 350 lbs. She's gearing up for her state meet March 9-10.

"This year I hope to take top three, and I get a trophy," she said.

Pelky enjoys the ability to compete individually, and watching her lifting results improve over time.

"It's really neat to watch your numbers go up and up," she said.

Pelky plans to continue weight lifting throughout college and beyond.

"I see myself working out for the rest of my life. It gets addicting when start, you just never want to not go to the gym," she said.

Pelky appreciates the support her family gives her in her sport.

"I know my dad really likes it, he can relate to it. He enjoys watching the competitions. I know my younger brother (Colton) joined powerlifting with me for two years; he really likes it, too. They all go to all the meets."

One Ombudsman for a Sovereign Nation?

By Dianne McLester-Heim
Oneida Ombudsman

In 2005 Oneida General Tribal Council issued a directive for the establishment of an Ombudsman to "listen to the concerns of the employees of the Health Center and Tribal Community Members." Concerns can surface related to anything and everything. The Oneida Tribe is a sovereign nation with the various functions and specializations of government and business. The structure of an Ombudsman creates an independent, confidential, and neutral way for people to have their concerns identified and addressed while offering the possibility for a form of public regulatory function. Since an Ombudsman functions independently of the system structure and is a neutral body representing 'fair process', it offers a for of checks and balances for the areas/entities with which it works/interacts by reporting out to the people of the community.

The Oneida Tribe of Indians, as a sovereign nation, provides and performs a variety of functions and services both to and for the people of the community across many specialty areas. This type of action requires the collaboration and interaction of individuals from many professions and specialized areas of knowledge, training, and expertise. Identifying and addressing concerns, as well as maintaining communication and transparency within such a variety of areas is critical for the positive development of the entire community. These are worked into some of the responsibilities of the Ombudsman. So how does one Ombudsman do it all?

The various areas of expertise that exist within an organization, business, and government such as the Oneida Tribe of Indians, are far beyond what one person can master. So how then does an Ombudsman efficiently and effectively live up to the duties, roles, responsibilities, and expectations of the position for the betterment of the entire organization and community?

One answer to this question is to say that it can never be done and one simply does the best that they can. Another answer it to say that the directive of General Tribal Council does not specifically limit Oneida to the establishment of one and only one Ombudsman, but rather provides the directive that such a function must exist. Even one more answer is to look to others who have been successfully using such a function for a much longer period of time as a guide. The functions of an Ombudsman were originally established as far back as 1809 as an external/independent regulatory measure for the protection of the people, the community. The Ombudsman was set up to be a sort of 'watch dog' on behalf of the people to provide them with a means of having their issues heard and valued while respecting the roles and responsibilities of the 'professionals'. Under such a practice one can easily look to some other countries; such as Sweden, Canada, and Australia; to see how this has successfully been accomplished.

Within these countries the functions of the Ombudsman are applied by the use of Organizational, Classical, and Hybrid forms of Ombudsmen. The requirement of an Ombudsman exists under their legislation and laws much like the directive given by Oneida General Tribal Council. These countries have gone a step further to provide legislation that outlines the Ombudsman, typically in an Ombudsman Act, and identifies that the Ombudsman is more so an Office of the Ombudsman with the ability to employ other Ombudsmen to specialize in specific areas. This creates the effectiveness of having 'specialist' of content areas that interact within the many functions of the government, public sector, and corporate sector. These 'specialist' areas then apply the functions, ethics, and standards of practice of the Ombudsman across the board providing service to and of the people and community in all aspects. Each of the 'specialist' Ombudsman areas is in turn independent of the standard operation yet under the direction of the primary Ombudsman and responsible to the people and community.

So is one Ombudsman for the Oneida Tribe of Indians the only answer, or the most effective answer, to the directive of establishing an Ombudsman to 'listen to the concerns of the employees of the Health Center and Tribal Community Members'? Is one Ombudsman the most practical or effective way to address the concerns of the Tribal Community Members that may arise in such a variety of areas? These are questions that only the Oneida Tribal Community can truly answer. No matter what the answer, decision, or desire of the Oneida Tribal Community with respect to the Ombudsman, it is important to remember that it is ultimately you the people of the Oneida Community who will need to and who have the power to decide.

The Office of the Oneida Ombudsman is a directive of the people of the Oneida Community and it is an office that is expected to report out to the people. The Oneida Ombudsman represents no specific person but rather 'fair process', the administration of 'fair process', and equality from a position that is independent of the standard structure so that it can be impartial and neutral in its interactions. It has been the intent of this recent series of articles about the Ombudsman to provide information to the Oneida Community to open the door for discussion, conversation, and understanding of the Ombudsman. It has also been the intent to inform the Oneida Community about what has been done with the directive given by General Tribal Council regarding the establishment of an Ombudsman. If you have any questions, concerns, comments or would like further information you are welcome to contact the Oneida Ombudsman at 920-490-3713. Thank you for sharing in this information and I look forward to continuing to provide the community with updates from the Office of the Ombudsman and the work that is being done.

Webster to tee off at Nationwide event

By Nate Wisneski

Gene Webster Jr. is aiming high and his blend of talent and confidence makes you believe he will someday be the best golfer in the world.

The Cal State – San Bernardino student is one quarter away from his degree in Business Marketing and has finished his successful golf career at the school.

He was a four-time Ping All-American, four-time All-California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) Team, CCAA Player of the Year, four-time All West Region Team, along with two-time Cal State – San Bernardino Male Athlete of the Year along with many other awards and recognitions.

Webster had an unusual start to the game with no real mentor leading his way and with a set of woman's clubs.

"It's kind of strange, nobody in family really plays. Usually when someone starts a game like golf they usually have a family member that introduces them to the game," Webster said. "I started when I was eight and saw it on T.V. and told my mom I wanted to play golf. She had a female friend that had clubs she wasn't using and let me borrow them for a while."

Once the golf bug bit it was hard to get Webster off the course.

"I went to a junior program for about an hour and they showed me a few things and started going more and more on my own," Webster said. "I found myself as an eight-year-old asking if they could drop me off at the golf course so I could practice. She would leave me there, I would put, chip, hit a bucket of balls and golf a few holes if it wasn't busy."

It didn't take long for the self-taught golfer to realize there may be a future in the game for him.

"When I was in high school, my sophomore, junior, and senior seasons I played pretty well. In the California State Playoffs I won our league's individual championship as a sophomore, junior, and

Oneida attorney takes on chair position

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Tribe Judicial System (OTJS) Attorney Paul Stenzel has been appointed to the position of Chair on the Wisconsin Indian Law Section Board. The Indian Law section acts as a forum for government and private attorneys with interests in Indian Law.

Attorney Stenzel elaborates on the structure of the system.

"The State Bar of Wisconsin is the organization that essentially acts like the trade association for lawyers. We're all licensed in Wisconsin through them if you want to practice law. Within the bar there are groups of lawyers, they call the groups 'sections', for every area of the law. There is an Indian Law section. That section's job is to promote the interests of lawyers that work within that section. So we have about 175 members in the Indian Law section. For each section there is a board."

In addition to serving as Chairman, Stenzel also is in private practice and has his own law firm. Stenzel now works part time with the OTJS.

"I'm the Staff Attorney so I do a wide variety of tasks, anything from the development of rules, give training sessions, and I help out with cases that come in. I can consult with the judges. That's actually very common in state, federal, and tribal courts to have lawyers on staff to assist the judges," Stenzel said.

Indian Law is a relatively small field compared to other law sections; it's a niche practice so cases and rulings usually aren't as high profile. However, Stenzel was fortunate enough to get value work experience in the field of Indian Law making it an attractive direction to take his skills.

"When I was in law school I was an intern here, in Oneida, in the summer of

Work to reconstruct US 41/Main Avenue interchange underway

Brown County project expands 3.5 miles of highway from Orange Lane to Glory Road

Green Bay - The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region is announcing work began Monday, March 5 in Brown County on a $57 million project that reconstructs the US 41/Main Avenue interchange and expands US 41 to six lanes of traffic between Orange Lane and Glory Road. The project requires the full closure of the Main Avenue interchange for 60 days between August 2012 and November 2012. All work should be completed by June 21, 2013.

The contractor for the project is Michaels Corporation, Brownsville, Wisconsin.

The Main Avenue interchange project incorporates multiple features to enhance safety and traffic flow. Improvements consist of the reconstruction of the Main Avenue interchange and installation of two roundabouts on Main Avenue at the US 41 ramp terminals; reconstruction of Main Avenue from Ashwaubenon Creek to just west of Lawrence Drive; installation of bicycle and pedestrian accommodations; and reconstruction of the park and ride lot on Lawrence Drive.

While preliminary work on the project is underway, motorists should expect significant traffic impacts the week of March 12:

- Overnight lane closures on US 41 from Orange Lane to Glory Road for placement of concrete barrier and shifting of traffic to outer existing lanes and temporary pavement
- US 41 lane widths restricted to 11 feet and speed limits reduced from 65 mph to 55 mph
- Long-term closure of the southbound US 41 on-ramp on Main Avenue beginning Wednesday, March 14

During construction on US 41, two lanes of traffic will be maintained in both directions except during off-peak hours. Work on US 41 starts with the expansion of the inside lanes and bridges, while traffic is shifted to the outer existing lanes and temporary pavement. Once the interior construction is complete, traffic will be switched to the new inside lanes while the outer lanes are being rebuilt.

Starting March 26, until the complete closure of the Main Avenue interchange in August 2012, Main Avenue under US 41 will be restricted to one lane in each direction. Once the interchange closes for 60 days, all ramps and Main Avenue from Ashwaubenon Creek to Lawrence Drive will be shut to traffic. Access from Mid Valley Drive to Main Avenue is closed during this time. Access from Lawrence Drive to Main Avenue will remain throughout construction.

Motorists should remain alert and use caution when driving through this or any work zone.

All lane restrictions, road openings and work operations are weather dependent and subject to change.

who passed away 10 years ago March 16th

Death is lonely…
It's lonely not for you, but for me, I miss you so much!
It may be 10 years but for me it's like yesterday.
When you left that day, I can only imagine your happiness.

I only know loneliness still to this day.
I wish you were within hugging distance.
I wish you were right here face to face, how great it would be to see your bright eyes and that wonderful smile that made my heart melt.

I know there are many ways to keep you close and I am thankful for those spirits that keep us in touch.

But, what I wouldn't give to have you in the same room with me!
I can imagine it, and that's what I do so many days.
I'm smiling to think about how much you still mean to me.
How lucky I was to have had you in my life!
I hug you every day in my heart.

Loretta Says... The Air Force and Me

Loretta Metoxen • *Oneida Tribal Historian

Ongoing Kalihwisaks Column • *Providing a connection to the past

From Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas to Keesler AFB in Biloxi, Mississippi was the next big step. Five other WAFs (Womens Air Force) and myself were transported by train to Biloxi. Air Police were also transporting a couple of prisoners on our train. That was quite interesting.

The other women were selected for training in Radio School learning Morse code and Air Traffic Control school. I was the only woman designated for Airborne Radar Technician school.

We had a break in New Orleans between changing trains. I went to the Court of Two Sisters Restaurant (Famous, I believe it is still there) for lunch and ordered a chicken taco. I didn't know what that was and it was cheap, so I thought I would try it. I also ordered pink lemonade. We walked about the town to see the sights and boarded a ship to see what that was like before getting on our next train.

We were quartered in one of two one-story wooden barracks adjoined to the hospital by wooden corridors. Forty WAFs were in open bay (one large room) in each barracks. We each had an area with a bed, a foot locker and a shelf. The latrine was in the middle on one side of the building. We shared our quarters with fire ants (by the millions), giant cockroaches and mosquitoes. A jeep came between the buildings in the evening with a fogger. The result was that it drove all the mosquitoes inside.

It turned out that there were three shifts for school: A, B, and C. My shift (A) started at 6 A.M. and lasted until noon, six days a week or 36 hours of electronic school per week. This was a nine month course, equivalent to four years of college. Schedule was rise at 4:30 A. M., dress and clean your area, go to the mess hall for breakfast, fall out into ranks, march two miles to the flight line to school, study for six hours and march back for noon chow. The afternoon was dedicated to study or policing the area (picking up rocks or cigarette butts). I guess I didn't get enough marching because I joined the drill team. I also was a right fielder on the softball team. We often flew from base to base on the weekend—Pensacola or Memphis—to play the WAVES and sometimes to various towns to play high school girls teams.

There was no air conditioning and the summer weather in Mississippi was hot, hot, hot. The days could be 100 degrees with 90% humidity. My uniform was TW or tropical worsted wool. It was necessary to wear a T-shirt under the shirt to keep from constantly itching. Long stockings were also required with wool socks and brogans or boots and, of course, a wool skirt.

Bed check was every night at 9:30 P.M. Saturday night was the only night we had free for the full nine months. But we did go picnicking on the rivers or the islands in the area. There were cotton mouth snakes and tarantulas to watch out for, but nevertheless, we got a few cars together and investigated the surroundings.

I was the only woman in my class, or the only woman in the airborne technician course of study and I graduated in November, 1951, at the top of the class.

One day our CO (Commanding Officer) called us out in front of the barracks and had this message: Even though you live in these barracks with some Black girls, you are not to be seen or walking together on the streets of Biloxi, or you will both be arrested and given Article 15s. A Black Man was one of my teachers, but if I saw him off Base, I had to act like I didn't know him. Inside the fence was one World, outside the fence was segregation.

The county that Keesler AFB was in was supposed to be dry—no alcohol, but that wasn't the case. There was liquor everywhere and there was also a lot of gambling—in the back room of some places, off the Base. The rumor was that the businesses, in town, were taking advantage of the 25,000 Airmen stationed there. This called for another Congressional investigation. During the two weeks the Congressmen were present, all personnel had to wear their uniforms on and off Base, on duty or off.

Biloxi is a major shrimping port. That is where I learned a lot about seafood. A large bucket of cooked seasoned shrimp cost $1.00.

senior division. I think at that point I really started to think about doing what I needed to do to set myself apart from others," Webster said.

"I started putting in more practice, exercising more and doing things that I thought an athlete is supposed to be doing to be among the elite in their sport."

Webster has continued putting in the work to someday obtain is ultimate goal of being the top-ranked player in the world.

"I have had some success in college and won numerous awards. I am one of a very few All-Americans from Cal State Bernardino. It's really a confidence booster. Player of Year award, Freshman of the Year award is positive reinforcement that yeah, I really can play," Webster said. "For me, I haven't met my ultimate goal to become the number one player and in the world and be the first Native American to win a professional major."

Webster is now prepping for his chance to measure his game against some of the world's best as he received a sponsor exemption from the Soboba Band of Luiseno Indians to take part in the Nationwide Tour's Soboba Golf Classic in California. The tournament runs April 5-8.

"I am really grateful for the opportunity and thank the Soboba Band of Luiseno Indians for giving me the opportunity to not only represent their tribe but my tribes, myself and family," Webster said. "I'm really excited for this challenge."

Don't expect Webster to fold under the pressure but he is the first to admit he may feel some tournament jitters.

"It's going to be the biggest tournament I have played in. On the first day of the tournament I will be a little nervous but if your not nervous your not ready. If you're not nervous you must not care, I think having nerves is a good thing," he said.

$8.4 million in Tribal Historic Preservation Grants announced

WASHINGTON -- Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar today announced $8.4 million in grants to 131 American Indian tribes to support Tribal Historic Preservation Offices under the National Historic Preservation Act. The National Park Service awards grants to these tribes to assist in carrying out national historic preservation program responsibilities on tribal lands.

"The participation of American Indians in the national historic preservation program is a major step forward in how we tell the story of our land and its people," Secretary Salazar said. "These grants will help tribes recount their histories that date back centuries before Europeans set foot on this continent. As they tell the story, all Americans can gain a greater appreciation of their rich traditions and cultures."

Tribes can use the grants to fund projects such as nominations to the National Register of Historic Places, preservation education, architectural planning, historic structure reports, community preservation plans, and bricks-and-mortar repair to buildings. The grants are derived from revenues from federal oil leases on the Outer Continental Shelf and can help catalyze private and non-federal investment in historic preservation efforts nationwide.

"Increased attention to the preservation of significant tribal places, as well as tribal culture and tradition, is important to all Americans," said National Park Service Director Jonathan B. Jarvis. "This grant program provides important funding to protect the cultures of the first Americans."

Letters & Opinions...

Cultural Change

Acculturation and assimilation by means of education by the Anglo system has taken a drastic toll on the Oneida Tribal members. When they return to the Reservation, they have the degree in their hand NOT in their heart. They didn't keep in touch with their values, their culture, nor their spirituality. Thus a portion, only a portion of the objective to being educated has been achieved. They come back to the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, where they will in most instances, obtain a high paying position. They bring forth projects that make little sense and their reasoning behind what they say and do is from a BOOK that they were educated from. Common sense and any thing that is rational is now obsolete which includes safety factors and all that are for the good of their own people. 400 years past we accused the Anglo people of not listening as our words fell on TIN ears, the tables have turned and our own so called educated Tribal members are the ones with TIN ears. They can hear no one accept for the others with similar BOOK learning or what has stuck in there head, Heaven forbid if it would come from their heart. Look around the Reservation at the types of structures we have. One resembles a Alpine ski resort, another looks like aspace station,the only one culturally designed is the Turtle School. We are the Architect best friend and they are not Tribal members. Another illustration internal is the Environmental/Conservation Department. CONSERVATION or is it CONSERVE-INVASION? It is Certainly not CONSERVE-OUR- NATION. It is evident MOTHER EARTH is no longer SACRED.

Black top, concrete, bricks and mortar have become the acceptable culture and the only thing GREEN is the "green back" $1 that is paying for and replacing what we have with extravagant senseless construction in stead of maintaining and preserving what already exists. We allow buildings to remain unoccupied until they have safety and health factors. The next thing you know there is a wrecking ball and down it goes. An old adage is WASTE NOT-WANT NOT. a WHOLE LOT OF WANTING will happen if this line of thinking continues to exist. It is long past time to recognize our failings and take ownership of the thinking, which took place hundreds of years ago and that generation of thinking needs to take place NOW. The " White Roots" (if you are up on your culture) continue to represent a tradition of thinking and responsibility to use our minds so that we continue to survive and create a good world for our children seven generations and into the future.

Benefits of vegan diet

To The Editor:

I was extremely disappointed and saddened by your front page, above-the-fold lead story in the February 23, 2012 edition of Kalihwisaks. To quote a Native American prayer: "Great Spirit, whose creatures are being destroyed, give us hearts to understand; help us to learn never to destroy wantonly; help us to find the way to restore our humanity."

The point of the article would appear to be that eating buffalo meat is a path to better health. However, the TRUE way to excellent health is through a plant-based diet. The reasons to employ a plant-based diet number three: health, spiritual, and ethical/moral. Let me help you with some literary suggestions: If improving physical health is your main goal, I would suggest you read "The Food Revolution" - (How Your Diet Can Save Your Life And Our World), by John Robbins. If you are a very spiritual person, the book for you is "The World Peace Diet" - (Eating for Spiritual Health and Social Harmony), by Will Tuttle, Ph.D. And, if you consider yourself a very compassionate, moral, ethical person.... read "Eating Animals" by Jonathan Safran Foer. These three wonderful books make strong, logical, irrefutable arguments for a plant-based diet for whichever of the three reasons suits you best. I initially stopped eating meat in 1975 for spiritual reasons, but after further investigating the concept of vegetarianism, it was the ethical/moral dilemma about which I became most passionate. Your article states that the Oneida Farm would like to "...get to the point where we can 'HARVEST' 30 to 35..." of these magnificent creatures, as if they were a stalk of corn! These are beautiful animals, with souls, that the Great Spirit has put on Mother Earth, to live and roam and enjoy their natural lives in peace. But you want to "harvest" them? To eat their flesh for your wanton, selfish reasons?!! The Oneida buffalo herd that you describe in your article, is just a slight step above the factory farming that is taking place all over this country every day, in which cows, pigs, sheep, poultry and fish are forced to lead miserable existences for their unnaturally short lives, and then die a painful, torturous death so that their flesh can make its way to our dinner tables. I implore your readers to educate themselves on the incredible benefits of a plant-based diet, for whichever reason, or reasons, tugs at their heart...be it spiritual, health issues, or moral/ethical, compassionate concerns. If, like me, you learn to embrace the concept of eating "nothing with a face on it"...you will be able to go to sleep at night with a clear conscience, knowing that the Great Spirit is smiling down upon you. And these beautiful creatures...the bison of the Oneida Nation will live their lives in peace and tranquility, as was intended when the Great Spirit placed them on Mother Earth, to share in it's beauty with us.

Sincerely,

Corbett Manywounds-Brattin

Future of our land

I'd first like to say saku to all of our Oneida people. I'm writing this letter in regards to something that was mentioned at our last GTC meeting. I'm not sure of the exact words but remember 40,000 would be settlers moving within the reservation boundaries of the rez over the next 20 years. I for one am no fan of that idea or notion that all them people encroaching on our great Oneida Nation. Now some of our Oneida people are going to dislike my letter and some will like it, but it will make an impact on the future to come. So Mr. Chairman what's our move as a people strategically? One idea I have is to quit buying land here and there, for instance the Schegle property. Start buying the land that's for sale in Hobart, meaning land that would stop the mass development of houses in the future. Look at areas from a military view and choose carefully the important properties that would protect the image of the Oneida reservation for years to come. One day, probably 20 years from now I'd like to be able to drive from the city of the many buildings and into the rez and see a vast thriving environment of green landscape that represents the care takers of mother earth. So, brother who leads us in a great many directions, what's the plan to protect the interest of the Oneida people in the years to come? Hopefully, it's not to roll over and have our belly's rubbed.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Tribal Treasurer

The start of the FY 2013 Budget process has begun and my office has been working hard to reduce the stress of the $18 million dollar deficit we are facing this coming fiscal year. With a gap that large, we have some very tough decisions to make. Where the cuts can be made is the biggest question. Employee benefits would be the easiest answer but that is not an option. The recently implemented hiring freeze should assist us but has been met with a lot of criticism. To those that question our decision the answer is simple, we cannot continue to create additional expense through wages and benefits. Instead of adding more employees we need to evaluate our current staff and ensure they are being utilized to their full potential. Many times I have heard employees say they are under-utilized or bored with the jobs. If this truly is the case, that could be identified in the restructuring process. The $18 million dollar deficit is a huge wake-up call that now is the time to restructure. Without combining like departments, holding employees responsible, and developing our current staff to their fullest potential would be fiscally irresponsible and something I cannot support. The GTC relies on my office to make appropriate decisions regarding our money and even though I have to ask various supervisors the tough questions on a regular basis, it is a part of my job that I must complete in order to confidently stand in front of the GTC and answer the questions.

In years past we have had the luxury of having surplus money. This is no longer the case. While some choose not to believe that we do not have an endless pile of money, the facts cannot be denied. Many Tribal members have contacted my office with various ideas on how to increase revenue and decrease expenses. I appreciate all the suggestions I have received and have passed the ideas on in various meetings. Having community input is invaluable to me and my position. Without it, we cannot grow as a Tribe. We have been complacent for a long time and now is the time for positive change. I am optimistic the restructure will help us think outside the box and move us into a prosperous future.

I am dedicated to restructuring the Tribal organization and would like the process to be farther along than it is. Unfortunately a consensus has not been reached and we still have no clear vision to that end. The lack of this information makes this budget cycle increasingly more difficult. Not only do we have a large deficit to balance but we also have no idea if we should increase or decrease certain areas, which is frustrating. How to balance a budget with a growing number of unknown variables is the task my office has been given for FY 2013. Luckily for me, I have a Finance staff that understands this quandary and is more than willing and able to take on the challenge.

OBC Forum...

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

The last few weeks have been very busy for our office. My Executive Assistant Mrs. Cathy Bachhuber and I have been very busy dealing with many tough and pressing issues since I arrived on the Council in August of last year.

One such issue has been the GTC meeting location subject which has been undecided for a long time; I will speak to that in this article. We have been also looking at fiscal policy issues (sign-off), legislative procedure issues, various internal policy matters, along with a restructuring approach which I think makes perfect sense. We have also been active in trying to be catalyst around the discussion involving the need to get new a per capita plan in place.

GTC Meeting Location

The most reasoned approach for all governments is to try and create opportunities for the most people to attend meetings and to have the best opportunity to participate; that is the action we took at the February 8, 2012, OBC meeting when the Shopko Hall site was approved for an April GTC meeting. Although at a subsequent meeting the April GTC meeting was canceled, I still wanted to reiterate my thoughts on the matter.

There has been an overwhelming amount of tribal members who have said they would prefer to have meetings on the weekends. I have heard from people all over the state and on the reservation, asking that we hold meetings on the weekends. In Milwaukee, the Oneida's have expressed concerns with meetings being set on Monday evenings, because they cannot attend, they would like to attend the GTC meetings. Further, there was a general disapproval of Sunday meetings for a variety of reasons. Workday meetings were not supported due to work schedules and the drive time involved. It is assumed this is the case for many tribal members who live some distance from the meeting site, whether or not in the Milwaukee area. Therefore, recognizing that there are likely many local tribal members who would not have an issue with weekend meetings; it is not the best approach to set up a meeting schedule in which potentially hundreds of tribal members cannot attend because they have to work during the week or have some distance to travel. I hope we can resolve this issue to the satisfaction of everyone real soon; we have business to get done.

Options for solving the meeting location issues and scheduling conflicts have been in the air for quite some time. The Tribal Secretary has been raising the issue of Radisson's limited availability since the OBC took office in August 2011. In addition, she has been raising these issues going back some two plus years. The Secretary has worked diligently on identifying and notifying the OBC of the upcoming scheduling issues with the Radisson, this spans back to the last term of the OBC.

Saturdays accommodate the broadest cross-sections of schedules of the tribal members, both personal and professional schedules. Therefore, I will continue to support the notion that Saturday GTC meetings should be held because they continue to be the preferred day of the week to meet.

CCR – Tribal Renovation Project – "Oneida Beautification"

There are tribal facilities which are in disrepair. There are holes in walls, painting is needed at various locations including Redstone, and various levels of upkeep are in order on an array of facilities. Not to mention, just general Reservation upkeep needs to be kicked into high gear. We have done as well as we can with the limited resources at hand, but it is now to time to re-commit to a higher level of upkeep of our properties and facilities.

To this end, I offering up an idea to create a core work force of dedicated craftsman and women who can lead various repair teams to sweep the Reservation and engage in various on-going maintenance and repair projects, something akin to the CCR program from the 1930's. These teams could engage in significant public work projects, like erecting monuments and walking bridges, just to name a few ideas.

The goal behind this project would be to offer jobs to unemployed people who desire to work hard and help beautify the Oneida Reservation.

Unemployment & Poverty in Oneida

Recently, the Tribe's statistician released a report with some staggering information. Here is a summary of the poverty rates for Oneida member households in Brown and Outagamie Counties based on estimates from the 2008 and 2010 Quality of Life survey and the 2009 Housing survey,:

Based on the Federal poverty guidelines, it is estimated that the following percentages of Oneida families are below poverty level:

- 2008 - 16%
- 2009 - 21%
- 2010 - 23%

For the same three years, the following are the unemployment rates for Oneidas living in Brown and Outagamie Counties:

- 2008 - 10%
- 2009 - 14%
- 2010 - 13%

Comparatively, for all residents in Brown and Outagamie Counties, 9.7% of all people were below poverty and 7.6% were unemployed in 2010. This information is a wake-up call and highlights how important it is for us to get our internal governing house in order so we can do more for our people.

We have to start generating more revenue somehow, we have to get our business house in order also. Any area where we can make more money, we should be pushing the throttle down trying to bring more resources home for the Oneida people.

Legislative Procedures Act (LPA)

The purpose of the LPA is to provide an updated and more accurate process for the adoption of legislation. A repeal of sections which currently address law-making in the APA will be necessary. The LPA is in its final stages of updating and completion. A draft was previously reviewed by the GTC and amendments have been made based on the GTC motion. An amended draft of the LPA has been submitted to the Legislative Operating Committee. The next step will be to hold a public hearing.

Lunch with Elders

Recently, my assistant and I participated in the Take an Elder to Lunch event. We had the privilege of enjoying a great conversation and lunch with three elders. In addition, I have had breakfast and lunch with various elders and other tribal members, and we can all stand to learn something from all of them. One of the most important things I have heard from many of the elders is the reoccurring theme that it's time to do things differently, to make changes and to chart new courses for our Tribe. One elder even mentioned when it comes to restructuring, she asked, "Why would anyone want to live under older and antiquated policies? We need new ways of governing and doing things."

Housing

In an effort to fulfill my duties as the assigned liaison for the Oneida Housing Task Force (HTF) and through the OBC Initiatives in which I was assigned responsibilities by the OBC, I have worked to formulate a unique proposal to create jobs, cut costs and build brand new state of the art homes on the Oneida Reservation. Specifically, I was assigned service improvement responsibilities for the following housing related initiatives: housing policy reform, identifying money for home improvement and repair, ensuring housing is available, ensuring rents/mortgages are affordable, and assessing the mixed housing needs (Green Bay, existing, rural v. urban).

As you're aware, we have officially endorsed, as the OBC, strong movements towards positively creating new housing opportunities for the Oneida people. In fact, we've endorsed bringing 1,000 people back to the Oneida Reservation and this is a great movement. This is a much needed pursuit and I applaud the OBC for recognizing the outstanding housing needs here and creating a vision for accomplishing such a monumental goal. I am on the final leg of this business proposal and look forward to completing it in the very near future for presentation.

I encourage you to join my email list. Through my email list I will send out updates and other forms of policy information. Thank you for your time, and as always, if you need assistance or are interested in any released memos, reports, or additional plan information, please feel free to contact my office at 920-869-4426 or through my personal email at oneida2011@yahoo.com

Respectively,

Public Hearing Notice

11:30 a.m. • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor - (BCCR)

April 17, 2012

Purpose:
Legislative Procedures Act

The intent of the Legislative Procedures Act (the Law) is to provide an improved lawmaking process to replace the lawmaking provisions currently found in the Administrative Procedures Act (APA). The Law also re-charters the Legislative Operating Committee's (LOC) role in the lawmaking process. The Law provides a streamlined lawmaking process, which includes:

- Fiscal Estimates. A fiscal estimate would be required for each legislative proposal, which would estimate the total fiscal year costs associated with the legislation. This would include items such as: startup costs, personnel, office, documentation costs, legislative mandates, as well as an estimate of the amount of time necessary for an individual or agency to comply with the law after implementation.
- Legislative Analysis. An analysis describing the important features of the legislation, impact to the Tribal operations, as well as the general public would also be required for each legislative proposal.
- Holding a public comment period and requiring an actual public meeting only be held when determined necessary by the LOC or OBC. Currently, public hearings are required to be held before any legislation is adopted on a permanent basis. Public meetings would now only be required to held if the LOC or OBC determines a public meeting is in the best interests of the Tribal membership. A public comment period will be noticed before any legislation is considered for adoption on a permanent basis and written comments received during this time will be considered before moving forward with the legislation.
- Creation of an Oneida Register. The LOC would be required to post agency regulations, proposed legislation and notices, and the Oneida Code of Laws in the Oneida Register.
- Notice requirements would be the responsibility of the LOC (and no longer the Tribal Secretary). TheLOCwould be required to give specific notice of all public hearings to the Tribe's managers and directors, who would be responsible for informing Tribal employees of the public hearings. The managers and directors would direct that written or oral testimony be provided by Tribal employees who have special knowledge or expertise on the subject of the public hearing. Under the current APA, notice of public hearings is the responsibility of the Tribal Secretary.
- Adoption of emergency legislation. Emergency legislation would still be able to be adopted for six months, with the option of renewing the adoption for an additional six months. A legislative analysis of the emergency legislation would now be required before it is adopted.
- Repeal of the Format for Laws. The Format for Laws would be repealed and the relevant portions of that law would be incorporated into the Legislative Procedures Act.

Public Hearing Process

I. Testimony:

A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or to the Legislative Reference Office Paralegal, Tonya Boucher, at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

If you would like to obtain a copy of the above proposed law or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Tonya Boucher at the Legislative Reference Office, via GroupWise tboucher@oneidanation.org Or call 1-800-236-2214 or 920-869-4240. # Operation Greatest Generation announced

(GREEN BAY) – Lt. Governor Rebecca Kleefisch and Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs (WDVA) Secretary John Scocos today announced Operation Greatest Generation, a day long celebration honoring Wisconsin's World War II veterans as part of the Year of the Veteran. The event, open to all World War II veterans and their guests, will take place on Friday, May 4, 2012, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the National Railroad Museum in Green Bay.

"Wisconsin has always been proud of its hometown heroes," Secretary Scocos said. "Year of the Veteran is an opportunity to reaffirm our commitment to providing the highest level of support while also honoring and recognizing the contributions of our nation's heroes. Let's join together to honor our World War II veterans at Operation Greatest Generation and make this a memorable event for everyone."

Operation Greatest Generation is free and open to all veterans, their guests and the public. RSVP is strongly encouraged. For more information and to RSVP, go to: www.wisvetsmuseum.com.

At 1:30 p.m. on May 4, there will be a recognition ceremony honoring the World War II veterans that will include keynote speaker Hugh Ambrose, author of "The Pacific," a book that he wrote with his father Stephen Ambrose, the renowned historian author of "Band of Brothers." Additional speakers will include Governor Scott Walker, WDVA Secretary Scocos, and Lieutenant Colonel James Megellas, the most-decorated officer in the history of the 82nd Airborne Division and author of "All the Way to Berlin."

Day long activities will include a performance by the 132nd Band, living history demonstrations, exhibits from the Wisconsin Veterans Museum, displays of World War II vehicles as well as WWII-themed programming throughout the day provided by the National Railroad Museum. There will be guided tours of General Eisenhower's European Command train, which calls the National Railroad Museum in Green Bay home.

"The preservation of World War II-era rolling stock, like Eisenhower's command train, has been an ongoing way for National Railroad Museum to celebrate and continue the memory of these heroic men and their accomplishments during an important era of our history," Museum Director Frank said. "We are pleased to be a partner in honoring our World War II veterans, and hope we are just one part of our greater Wisconsin community gathered on this very special day."

Operation Greatest Generation, being presented by the WDVA in partnership with the National Railroad Museum and the Wisconsin Funeral Directors Association, is part of Year of the Veteran. Governor Walker declared 2012 the Year of the Veteran to honor the deeds of Wisconsin's veterans and provide them with the tools they need to reintegrate into civilian society such as education, health care and employment assistance. Lt. Governor Kleefisch and Secretary Scocos are overseeing the year-long Year of the Veteran initiative.

In 2012, the nation is marking the 150th anniversary of the Civil War and welcomes home service members who served in Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom, as these U.S. combat operations are drawing to a close. The Year of the Veteran will celebrate the past, emulate the example set by Wisconsin's forefathers, and honor all the state's veterans by reaffirming the State of Wisconsin's commitment to providing the highest level of support to the nation's heroes.

A full listing of events and resources can be viewed at www.YearoftheVeteran.com.

There are more than 400,000 veterans living in Wisconsin and nearly 300,000 are wartime veterans. About 32,000 are World War II veterans.

The veteran's unemployment rate in Wisconsin is estimated to be higher than the general population and for veterans recently returning from wars overseas even higher. To that end, a particular emphasis of Year of the Veteran will be put on employing Wisconsin's veterans.

"These initiatives are an important step toward helping our military veterans find jobs when they return to civilian life," said Lt Governor Rebecca Kleefisch. "Our Administration is committed to encouraging employers to place a priority on hiring our veterans."

From 1A/Attorney Paul Stenzel

1993. I was actually an intern at the Appeals Commission when Joanne House, who is the Head Counsel now, was the lawyer for the Appeals Commission. That was my first experience with tribes and I really enjoyed and had a really good experience," Stenzel said.

Stenzel also worked for the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribe out of college for eight years.

The positive growth that has taken place in the OTJS has allowed the Oneida Tribe to strengthen its sovereignty.

"My experience is that in a tribe's own time and their own way they want to handle more and more of their own business because it is better for sovereignty, better for self determination, and better for the government to say to tribal members 'We are self-sufficient. Were doing things ourselves, we don't need to go to the outside world if we don't want to.' I think that is the path Oneida is on," said Stenzel.

In addition to Oneida having the ability to handle a large variety of legal issues utilizing it's judicial system comes willingness from the community to use the OTJS instead of a county court system.

"A big part of the law is values; it reflects the values of the community. If the tribe wants to have it s own values reflected back, better to have its own laws and its own courts."

Ho-Chunk leader delivers tribes speech

Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) _ A Wisconsin tribal leader said on Tuesday he is optimistic state lawmakers and tribal governments can move forward on mining legislation but the environment must be preserved.

Ho-Chunk President Jon Greendeer made the remarks during the annual State of the Tribes address before a joint session of the Assembly and Senate. He touched on the Legislature's recent failed attempt at passing a law that would make it easier to get a permit for a proposed iron ore mine in northern Wisconsin. He said there is a way to preserve the environment and create economic opportunities, but he didn't specify any solutions.

``It should be no wonder the eye will always be on any mining and permitting legislation in our state and its potential effect on this sacred land,'' he said.

Greendeer said it's critical that tribes educate the public on the effects of mining. He also said they must urge a sense of value.

``The challenge staring us in the face is bringing this value with such little time in the political game,'' he said.

Mining is a divisive issue for several tribal governments, which claim treaty rights were violated because lawmakers did not consult them when drafting the legislation. Greendeer called the issue multifaceted.

``Regardless of the outcome in the short or long term of this issue, I'm optimistic there's a way to preserve the health and beauty of our pristine waterways and create opportunity for the citizens of this state as we champion our challenges together,'' he said.

Greendeer also emphasized the need for state lawmakers to be more inclusive of the state's 11 tribes, especially on policy and spending. He mentioned budget cuts, taxes and gambling.

``There's a little heat coming off these issues and there should be. We've ignored them for long enough and accepted certain double standards to compose the fabric of our state's government. If we act like they're not there, then who are we serving?''

Greendeer also touched on funding cuts to programs that serve children, elderly and health care needs.

Tuesday's speech was the eighth State of the Tribes address, which updates the Legislature on the most important issues for the state's tribal reservations.

Spirit Lake 'Sioux' nickname opponents speak out

By Chuck Haga
Grand Forks Herald

FORT TOTTEN, N.D. (AP) _ They cringe each time they see or hear a news report about the University of North Dakota's Fighting Sioux nickname and how their tribe, the Spirit Lake Sioux, has taken the lead in defending it.

Francine McDonald, 53, holds a master's degree in public administration from UND. Her husband, Russell, 49, earned two degrees in sociology before earning his Ph.D. in teaching and learning research methodologies.

Arlene de la Paz, 44, graduated from UND's nursing program in 2001. Erich Longie, 58, received a doctorate from UND in 2005 in educational leadership.

Tim Demarce, 59, didn't attend UND. ``I don't have any college, but I'm a sports guy,'' he said. So he watches university athletics, usually on TV, at home on the reservation. He watches the Fighting Sioux despite the name.

``The derogatory signs, I've seen them on TV,'' he said. ``I don't think the name is honoring us.''

``The looks and comments I received: `Why don't you go back to the reservation then? What are you doing here?'''

These five Sioux Indians represent a minority view at Spirit Lake, if one judges by results of a 2009 tribal referendum and a Tribal Council resolution last year authorizing the pro-nickname Committee for Understanding and Respect to speak and act for the tribe on the nickname issue.

They question the sources of funding for the 2009 vote, which nickname supporters carried by a 2-1 margin, and they challenge the validity of the committee's position representing the tribe.

They have not been as outspoken as nickname supporters. It's not their way, they say.

But they want the nickname and associated Indian-head logo to go away. They want their tribe to focus on what they say are more important reservation issues: poverty, crime, drugs, health care. They want an end to the divisiveness.

It will be difficult for some to let go, they acknowledge, but time will heal.

Next stop for the nickname debate: North Dakota's Supreme Court, which has scheduled a hearing in Bismarck on Thursday. ``If the Supreme Court is going to listen to arguments, they could start by hearing us out on all those treaties, honoring those treaties and giving us back our land,'' Longie said.

Longie, president of a consulting company on the reservation, has been the most outspoken Spirit Lake critic of the nickname. He has written and published viewpoint articles on the subject, and in November he testified at the Legislature in favor of repealing a law requiring UND to keep the name despite NCAA sanctions.

``We know tribal councils come and go,'' he testified, referring to the current council's support for the name. ``We are going to stay and we are going to stay at it. We are going to get that law changed.''

He objects to the pro-nickname committee's claim to speak for the Sioux, noting that all Sioux nations except for Spirit Lake are on record opposing UND's use of the name.

He disputes the notion that the fight to preserve the nickname has brought the two cultures closer together. He and other Spirit Lakers who've attended UND encountered a ``hostile and abusive environment, an environment caused by use of the nickname.''

The debate, carried out in one-on-one conversations and confrontations, in the media and on Internet blogs and comment boards, has sometimes turned ``vile and racist,'' he said. ``It has pushed race relations back 40 years.''

Each tells of slights and insults, of ugly and threatening incidents. Nickname supporters, including Sioux Indians, have discounted such stories, calling them isolated exceptions and often not backed by police reports or other evidence.

But the signs and derogatory shouts and worse happened, critics of the nickname say, and they are too easily dismissed by defenders who haven't spent much time at UND except as visitors brought in to see a hockey game from box seats.

``They're treated like celebrities,'' Longie said. ``They don't see the little things, the rejection, the sneers, the people who don't want to wait on you at the counters, or if they wait on you they are not courteous.''

If the name goes, ``we're still going to have powwows,'' Longie said. ``We're still going to have our ceremonies. We're still going to eat fry bread. We are still going to be a people.''

The Double-Crested Cormorant; Q & A

What is a Double-crested Cormorant and where to they live?

The cormorant is a large (almost goose sized) migratory bird that nests in colonies on islands. They breed on the Great Lakes and other inland lakes throughout the northern states and southern Canada. They winter along the Atlantic, Pacific, and Gulf Coasts.

What do cormorants eat?

Cormorants feed almost exclusively on live fish that they dive for. They are opportunistic, meaning they will eat whatever is available for them to catch. Food sources can change throughout the year, depending on fish concentrations and movements.

What impact do cormorants have on local fish populations?

Cormorants eat nearly a pound of fish flesh a day. They are a part of the natural ecosystem but can reduce fish stocks under certain circumstances, especially in artificial ponds, reservoirs, and in ponds and lakes stocked with non-native fish that reside close to the surface.

Are cormorants protected in the U.S.?

The cormorant is one of over 1000 bird species protected under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1918. This treaty between the U.S. and Canada, with later amendments covering Mexico, Russia, and Japan, was initiated to reduce market hunting and the large-scale killing of migratory birds. Cormorants may not be injured or killed, and nests with eggs or chicks may not be taken according to Federal and most State laws, unless specifically authorized.

What is the history of cormorant management?

Cormorant populations fell dramatically throughout the 60's to where the species was listed as threatened in Wisconsin and several other states. The decline was largely attributed to the uptake of toxic chemicals from the use of pesticides such as DDT. After the DDT ban in the early 1970's, cormorant populations began to dramatically increase. North American populations had increased by at least 20 fold by the 1990's. The birds have become a threat to fish farms and reservoirs in the southern U.S. and to artificial ponds and those stocked with vulnerable fish species on the breeding grounds. Various means are being employed to reduce fish losses. These include harassment as well as egg oiling and the killing of adult birds. In recent years, federal employees have been killing birds on specific breeding colonies. The goal is to reduce the overall numbers of birds that are considered to be negatively impacting local fish stocks and island vegetation.

What is the issue here on the Oneida Indian Reservation?

Cormorants traditionally pass over this area on regular migrations to and from their nesting colonies. A few birds may stay here for a few days/weeks, especially in the spring before moving on to their traditional breeding grounds. Fish stocks in artificial ponds, restoration wetlands, and reservoirs are vulnerable to cormorant depredation, especially if these shallow ponds are stocked with fish species vulnerable to cormorants. The problem here is considered to have been made worse by control programs on nearby colonies (The Bay of Green Bay, Lake Winnebago, etc.). Birds disturbed from breeding colonies are looking for food and safe places to breed. The concern is that disturbing birds on colonies may result in cormorants staying in this area for much of the summer and possibly attempting to establish breeding colonies here on the reservation.

What is being done to protect local ponds and restoration sites from fish predation?

Tribal representatives have met with federal agents regarding methods to protect local fish stocks. Agents have visited the area, observed the situation, and have made recommendations on how to deal with the problem. It is thought that the problem is a relatively small number of birds that travel from one pond to the other. The Oneida Conservation Department has been given authority to use various scare tactics in an attempt to move birds from the area. These techniques may include (bangers, rockets, cracker shells, etc.). It is hoped that these scare techniques will be successful. If not, lethal control measures may be sanctioned through the Federal permit process. All measures implemented here on the reservation will be handled by staff from the Oneida Conservation Department.

For more information on the Oneida Reservation's cormorant control issue, contact Shad Webster at Oneida Conservation (920-869-6506; swebste2@oneidanation.org). For species information, contact Bill Koonz (920-869-4569; bkoonz@oneidanation.org).

EHSD Hosts Third Canine Obedience Class

The goal of the Oneida Pet Safety Program is to prevent dog bites and the spread of rabies in humans. There are three components to the program; 1) Vaccines, spaying, and neutering pets, 2) animal care- food, water, and shelter, and 3) Canine behavior.

Canine Obedience Class Starts in April

Last year, EHSD held two very successful Canine Obedience Classes. Participants were very happy with the classes, and the pets did great. We will have another class in April.

Some of the comments from past class participants include;

"My dog listens better and gets along with other dogs better."

"Both our dogs are doing better. But I think it's because I learned what to do."

"I know how to handle certain situations better now. I know what to do if we get a different dog too."

"I have learned a more effective way to train my dog and to continue training him."

The Instructor

The Instructor for this class will be Nikki Coopman, Owner and Operator of K-9 Creations Country Resort, located in Oconto Falls, WI. Ms. Coopman is certified as a Canine Trainer by the Animal Behavior College. She also serves as an Animal Control Officer for the Towns of Morgan and Oconto Falls. The instructor will use positive reinforcement as the primary strategy with the dogs in class.

WHEN: April 9, 2012- May 3, 2012, meets twice weekly

TO REGISTER: Contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571.

ADULT CLASS: 1 hour, $25.00

PUPPY CLASS: 30 minutes, $10.00

Oneida Tribal members that attend every class will be eligible for a $10 or $25 Oneida retail card.

Some Things to Consider;

1. ABSOLUTELY NO FEMALE DOGS IN HEAT or AGGRESSIVE dogs will be accepted in the class. This determination will be made by the certified trainer.
2. All dogs must be current on their vaccines. Bringing copies of vaccination records to the pre meeting will be required. Bordetella (kennel cough) innoculation will also be required before any dog is permitted into the obedience class.
3. Participants MUST attend a PRE MEETING and pay the registration fee at that time (cash only) to save their spot in the class. Details for this pre-meeting will be determined soon.

ONEIDA PET SAFETY Program

The goal of the Oneida Pet Safety Program is to prevent animal bites and the spread of Rabies in humans.

For more information or to sign up, contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571. Depending on the interest level, more classes could be added this spring. EHSD looks forward to working with you and your pet.

Support group offered for parents of college students

Do you have a student in college, or getting ready to enter college in the next year? Parents of college and university students are invited to participate in a mutual support group!

Have you ever wondered…

- What expenses might I need to assist my student with?
- What do I do when my student is homesick?
- How can I support my student without "parenting" them too much while they are away in college?
- Mitch and his staff could probably fill in many commonly asked questions PARENTS have.

The transition to college can be confusing, and full of anxiety for parents as well as students. Our children are starting true independence when they leave home for their higher education experience. It's hard to tell your student, "I don't know what you should do".

Come to this inaugural meeting on March 22, at the Oneida Community Education Center on Packerland Drive at 6:00 P.M. to share ups and downs, joys and trials, and patterns of college life.

The Parents of College Student Support Group will identify common questions and issues that parents encounter, who can then help prepare the next group of parents of students who will be venturing into college life next fall! Join us as we share light refreshments, exchange stories and better prepare our Oneida students for higher education!

Getting students to college is a major undertaking. Getting students through college is another. The inaugural meeting will be held at 7:00 P.M. on Thursday, March 22 at the Oneida Community Support Center on 2632 South Packerland Drive. Refreshments will be served.

Let's unscramble the transition, confusing and anxiety producing experience of launching a child into the world of higher education. You will also receive valuable information concerning complex landscape of higher education and knowledge that every parent should know. The Higher Education staff will be available for consultation.

For more information contact Barb Kolitsch at (920) 496 7900 or Norbert Hill at (920) 869 4037.

Seventh Annual Young Native Writers Essay Contest Announced

Contest offers Scholarships, encourages Native American Youth to explore their Heritage

Washington, D.C. – The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation is pleased to announce the call for essays in its seventh annual Young Native Writers Essay Contest. The national writing contest focuses on the richness of Native American life and history, and challenges Native American youth to speak out on issues important to their tribal communities.

For 2012, students who participate will be asked to write on the following topic: "Describe a crucial issue confronting your tribal community today. Explain how you hope to help your tribal community respond to this challenge and improve its future."

The contest is designed to encourage young Native American writers to explore their heritage while becoming positive forces in their communities. It is open to Native American high school students from all tribal communities throughout the United States.

Students interested in participating can visit the Holland & Knight Young Native Writers Essay Contest website, nativewriters.hklaw.com, for official contest rules and to view past winning essays. All essays must be submitted electronically by the entry deadline, April 30, 2012, through the contest website.

Five finalists will be named in June and during the week of July 8-14, 2012, all finalists and a teacher nominated by each winning essayist will receive an all-expenses-paid "Scholar Week" trip to Washington, D.C. The group's activities will include an honor ceremony at the National Museum of the American Indian; a tour of the NMAI Cultural Resources Center where tribal objects can be viewed and studied; educational symposiums for students and their teachers; and a tour of the U.S. Capitol. The winners will also receive a $2,500 scholarship to be paid to the college or university of their choice.

The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation partners with the Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of the American Indian to plan and execute activities during Scholar Week. "The Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of the American Indian is proud to be involved in a program that inspires high school students to think innovatively about their Native communities," said Museum Director Kevin Gover (Pawnee). "Each year we look forward to honoring the winners at our building on the National Mall."

The contest debuted in 2006 in Red Lake, Minnesota in response to the March 2005 event where a student of Red Lake High School shot five fellow students, one teacher, one security guard, members of his family and then himself. The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation developed this contest with the hope that the Red Lake community would find healing by promoting its rich culture and traditions. In the years since, the program has evolved to serve all Native American communities.

"Indian youngsters have learned, better than any generation before them, how to 'walk in two worlds,'" said Ben Nighthorse Campbell, a former U.S. Senator and current Senior Policy Advisor with Holland & Knight LLP. "Many have mastered the tools of the technological age while preserving the traditions vital to their culture. I am pleased that Holland & Knight and the National Museum of the American Indian have continued their partnership in providing a forum for these talented and thoughtful young people to offer their perspectives on issues of importance to all in Indian Country."

Understanding Credit: Saves Money & Creates Opportunities

There are a number of ways to save your money and put it back into your pocket book. One way is to have a better understanding of how to create good financial credit, manage that credit, and maintaining a good credit history. Having a better understanding of financial credit will result in you saving hundreds if not thousands as you borrow money to meet life's needs and wants.

Places like "buy here/pay here" car lots, payday loans, title loans, and high interest credit card accounts is costing Oneida tribal member hundreds and thousands of dollars each year. As money is being spent on high interest rates the result is Oneida members having less money available to pay rent, feed families, and meet the overall expenses of life.

Trying to understand credit can feel intimidating and confusing. Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) has put together a two part informational workshop in effort to help Oneida members improve their understanding of financial credit. Participating in a workshop such as this can provide members with the information necessary to start saving money and having more money available for other aspects of their lives.

Financial credit is not just about borrowing money from a bank. Financial credit impacts opportunities and costs related to; car loans, home loans, home repair loans, rental housing, employment, insurance, etc. Having an improved understanding of financial credit is a valuable investment into your family's future. Your gained knowledge is something you can hand down to your children, as financial credit will one day impact their opportunities as well.

If you are interested in developing a better understanding of financial credit, how to put money back in your pocket, and create better credit related opportunities for you and your family, please contact Comprehensive Housing Coordinator, Scott Denny at 920-869-6193, and take part in the Understanding Credit Workshop offered by OHA.

Space is limited. Please sign up today.

Here to assist all employees and their families – The Oneida Nation Employee Assistance Program

By Carol B. Bauman
Counselor

There will be a series of articles over the next few weeks about the Oneida Nation Employee Assistance Program that I hope you as readers will find helpful and informative. This week's installment will provide a little history and some of the myths that have developed over the years and the facts that dispel these myths.

For over twenty-three years, the Oneida Nation has had its own Employee Assistance Program. It was established in January 1989 followed by the EAP Policy which was passed by OBC Resolution 6-23-89B for the following reasons: (1) "the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is extremely concerned and supportive of the health and welfare of its members, and (2) recognizes the severity of Alcohol and Drug Abuse on the (Oneida Reservation and within the Tribal workforce, and (3) recognized the need for an Employee Assistance Program to reduce problems in workforce and to retain valuable employees."

"To reduce problems in the workforce and to retain valuable employees" along with the current mission statement of the Oneida Nation Employee Assistance Program which expands upon that need to include "strengthening the family by supporting the work force" shows the foresight of the governing body at that time to establish an internal EAP. This is further supported by the National EAPA organization to establish services especially meeting the needs of tribes throughout the country. It is quite an act of sovereignty.

Services available through ONEAP (Oneida Nation Employee Assistance Program) are available to ALL Oneida Nation employees AND their family members. These services include but are not limited to confidential assessments, short term counseling, referral services and wellness coaching. Help with budgeting on a one-to-one basis is offered as well as consultations for supervisors.

The current staff consists of Bob Fresen, Director and Carol B. Bauman, EAP Counselor. Bob Fresen, Oneida Nation EAP Director, started working for the Oneida Tribe as a psychotherapist in 1988. He was the first coordinator of the program when the EAP was established by the OCB in 1989. Bob has a master's degree in social work from Boston University and previously worked at the Family Service Association of Brown County.

Carol Bauman, Oneida Nation EAP Counselor started working in 1995 for ONEAP. In 1997, she transferred to the Oneida Language Revitalization Program and returned in to ONEAP in 2003. Carol has a master's degree in social work from University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee and previously worked for the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians as a psychotherapist.

Both are licensed by the State of Wisconsin as Clinical Social Workers as well as qualified SAP's, Substance Abuse Professionals under the Federal Department of Transportation.

By the time when I started in 1995, I was the third counselor. Terry Mapes, MSW, was already working with Bob and the three of us were kept pretty busy. One of the myths that still exist about the 'power and abilities' of the ONEAP began to circulate about that time and that is….

MYTH: Come to Oneida Nation Employee Assistant Program (ONEAP) and the counselors can put you on a stress leave immediately for anywhere from 30 to 90 days.

FACT: Oneida Nation Employee Assistance counselors DO NOT hand out 'stress leaves'. Never in the 23 years since the OBC established ONEAP in June 1989 has there ever been anything known as a 'stress leave'. Any type of medical leave be it for physical reasons or behavioral health reasons, has always required a doctor's signature and is handled through the Human Resources Department as short term disability. An employee has to have signed up for and be paying for short term and or long term disability insurance in order to get paid (60% of gross pay) while off work. The Benefits department at HRD can answer your questions regarding the details of that.

MYTH: Only your supervisor can refer you to ONEAP.

FACT: An employee can contact ONEAP on their own at any time without first contacting their supervisor. The hours ONEAP counselors are available are Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. If an employee is short on vacation/personal time, arrangements have been made to accommodate those needs. Additionally, sometimes, some supervisors will allow work time if an employee's job performance is compromised. This is NOT a given though, and nothing that ONEAP can grant. This is between the employee and the supervisor ONLY.

MYTH: When your supervisor refers you to ONEAP, you have to make an appointment and go.

FACT: A referral to ONEAP does not require mandatory action on the part of the employee to make an appointment. This is a choice, as to whether or not to come. It's a tool that a supervisor has to help the employee improve work performance. If an employee's work performance doesn't improve, s/he risks disciplinary action. An EAP referral gives an employee thirty days to meet with the supervisor, during which time, hopefully, job performance improves. Following through and seeing a counselor can provide an employee with a different perspective, some objectivity, someone who will listen to them, something that may help the employee to resolve whatever issue is getting in the way of normal job performance.

MYTH: ONEAP is a part of the disciplinary process of the Oneida Nation.

FACT: Never was, never will be. This perception came as a result of a decision to terminate an employee that was overturned by the Appeals Commission when an employee was asked if they were ever referred to ONEAP. As a result of the 'no' answer, the employee was reinstated. To prevent such reversals in the future, there were some supervisors that included a referral to ONEAP along with the disciplinary action as a sort of 'covering all bases'. A few years later, the Appeals Commission reversed its own decision and stated that a referral to ONEAP was a tool to be used at the discretion of a supervisor and that termination was upheld. If an employee needed EAP services, all they have to do is call and sign a release form to notify their supervisor that they are being seen. Even with that, if job performance doesn't improve, markedly, the supervisor must follow the disciplinary functions of their jobs.

If you have any questions about the article or wish to contact ONEAP, you may call or email Bob Fresen, 920-490-3706, bfresen@oneidanation.org or Carol B. Bauman at 920-490-3716, cbauman@oneidanation.org

Information for patients who utilize OCHC On Call Nurse

Registered Nurses (RN) are available for patient phone calls – 24 hours a day/ 7days a week. When the clinic is closed the RN is home. They do not have access to medical records or pharmacy information.

When to call and speak with the RN after clinic hours:

- You / your child have an urgent health care need / question that cannot wait until the next open day of the clinic.

Don't call the RN when you are having a life threatening issue. For example, chest pain, difficulty breathing, or bleeding profusely from wound. Access the nearest emergency department to get medical attention as soon as possible. Call 911 as needed for intervention. Call the Contract Health Services Department to report the visit within 72 hours to ensure coverage.

The RN's on call also work 40 + hours per week at the OCHC medical clinic, in addition to providing on call services. Calling in the middle of the night with a concern that is not urgent is not appropriate.

On call staff does not determine Contract Health eligibility. You need to contact the Contract Health Department when the clinic reopens to check on eligibility.

Would You Like Them at Your Library?

Dr. Seuss once said, "You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself in any direction you choose." We were happy that over 75 people chose to steer themselves into the Oneida Community Library on March 3, 2012, for our State Award Winning, 10th Annual Seussabration. We had so much fun learning, playing games on our whiteboard, making Cat in the Hat hats, and eating green eggs and ham, pancakes with sustainably-picked Truffula fruit syrup, and other healthy fruits. Eliza Skenandore baked our very first green eggs and ham, making decorated sugar cookies for the "green eggs" and a wonderful cake for the "green ham." Yawʌ́ko, Eliza!

Dr. Seuss was a popular author whose real name was Theodor Seuss Geisel. He loved to write books for children, share a few thoughts, and learn a few things along the way. The Oneida Community Library commemorates Dr. Seuss' work every year, the first Saturday of March, with a Seussabration. The library serves green eggs and ham, has activities, games, and stories to increase awareness of his books and of the library and the services and materials the library provides for the Oneida Nation and community. March 7, 2008, the Oneida Community Library was awarded the "State Superintendent's Standing Up for Rural Wisconsin Schools, Libraries, and Communities Award" for their Seussabration.

One sugar or two? It's up to you! Nutrition is a component of the library's Seussabration, but a small piece of "Green Ham" or a green egg cookie was one carbohydrate serving and part of a balanced green eggs and ham breakfast!

This Week In History

On Sunday, March 15, 1931, Guy and Naomi John welcomed a new baby boy into their lives. They named him Valder John and raised him at their home in Oneida, WI.

Although they had no idea at the time, their new baby boy would be captured during war, survive a massacre and left for dead in ditch half way around the world, all before his 20th birthday.

Valder John enlisted in United States Army and deployed to the Korean peninsula to fight against North Korea and communist aggression.

In 1950, Valder was captured by North Korean forces with many other American soldiers. On October 30th, 1950 they arrived at Sunchon Tunnel. Small groups of about 40 men each were taken individually into nearby ravines and shot and killed. This horrific event has been named the Sunchon Tunnel Massacre. Of the 180 U.S. prisoners, Valder John and seven others were the only survivors. When his group was attacked, Valder was injured and fell to the ground and then covered by another men who died and fell on top of him. North Korean soldiers checked to make sure people were dead by bayonetting or kicking them. During the process Valder was stabbed in his back right side with a Bayonet. He did not make any noise and was not discovered by the North Koreans. He was later rescued by American troops.

Group making effort to stop OSGC's waste to energy plant

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A group called the Clean Water Action Council along with other community members rallied in the streets outside the Green Bay City Hall on Tuesday, March 20 in efforts to stop the Oneida Seven Generations Corporations (OSGC) renewable energy facility on the city's north side.

Dean Hoegger, President of the Clean Water Action Council, led the rally and states that OSGC mislead the public and Green Bay City Council to obtain the proper permits for construction of the plant.

"We all feel like we have been mislead. We all attended meetings where they told us there would be no smoke stacks, no emissions," Hoegger said. "I felt like I was lied to. Not only was the public misrepresented, so was the city council."

The group has collected 1,020 signatures for a petition that calls for opposition of the plant along with calling for a boycott of all tribal businesses. The petition was submitted to the City Council Tuesday evening with plans on turning it in to the Tribal Secretary's office Wednesday, March 28.

With no known policies in place within the tribal structure regarding non-tribal members submitting petitions, Hoegger is looking to create awareness.

"We've heard the other side say its just a small vocal group of people that oppose this. We don't think this is true

Sharon House receives national leadership award

SPEARFISH ~ Black Hills State University social science graduate Sharon House, Class of '71, was one of 10 who were nationally recognized with the 2010 Great Women of Gaming Proven Leader Award by Casino Enterprise Management magazine.

Candidates for the award are nominated by their bosses, co-workers, and peers. The awards are broken down into two categories: Proven Leaders and Rising Stars. To qualify as a Proven Leader, individuals must have worked in the gaming industry for a minimum of 10 years, have been in their current position for at least one year, and hold a position of director of higher. # Gannett names publisher, editor for 2 La. papers

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) ~ Gannett Co. has named a new president and publisher, and a new executive editor, for The Daily Advertiser in Lafayette and The Daily World in Opelousas.

Karen Lincoln, formerly president and owner of Lincoln Media and Consulting Services, Inc., was named president and publisher of both papers on Monday. She succeeds Ali Zoibi, who retired on March 15.

Gannett said Karen Lincoln Michel will begin March 26 as executive editor for both papers. Lincoln Michel is currently assistant managing editor at the Green Bay Press-Gazette. She succeeds Brian Tolley, now executive editor at The Clarion-Ledger in Jackson, Miss.

Before creating Lincoln Media Consulting, Lincoln was director of national sales and vice president/general manager of Comcast Spotlight, the advertising sales division of Comcast Cable. She held that position from 2003-2008.

"Karen has a strong background as a sales leader in both cable and digital, and a proven track record helping businesses succeed," Robert Dickey, president of U.S. Community Publishing for Gannett, said in a statement. "She is a great fit to lead the Advertiser Media Group's efforts to become a full multimedia and digitally-focused organization."

Lincoln, a graduate of the University of Texas, is a member of the Atlanta Web Executives Round Table, Women in Interactive Marketing, and Atlanta Interactive Marketing Association.

Lincoln Michel was the Green Bay Press-Gazette's Madison, Wis., bureau chief before becoming executive editor. She also has worked at The Dallas Morning News and the La Crosse, Wis., Tribune.

She is a board member of the Wisconsin Center for Investigative Journalism and American Indian Science & Engineering Society Publishing, Inc. She also is a past president of UNITY: Journalists of Color, and is a member of the Gannett Leadership and Diversity Council.

Gannett's other newspapers in Louisiana are The News-Star in Monroe, The Town-Talk in Alexandria and The Times in Shreveport.

and we are a large number of people who were misled," said Hoegger. "We want the tribe and tribal members to know there are a lot of people that are alarmed about this project."

After more than a year of review the facility received air and waste permits issued by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, a Finding of No Significant Environmental Impact from both the U.S. Department of Energy and the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, and a conditional use permit from the Green Bay City Council.

"While our corporation certainly respects everyone's right to an opinion, the truth is that our renewable energy facility will be safe and will operate within all applicable rules, regulations and laws. It has been vetted and approved by the government agencies entrusted to protecting public health and safety," said OSGC's CEO Kevin Cornelius.

"It is a shame that there are people who are trying to create an atmosphere of distrust and fear by repeatedly misrepresenting the environmental effects of this project. This is a sustainable, renewable energy project that will be safe, create jobs, increase recycling and reduce landfill waste."

Cornelius addressed the group's claim about the facility utilizing smokestacks.

"OSGC has always stated that there will be no smokestacks such as those associated with power plants or paper mills. There will be exhaust pipes, which are referred to as stacks in WDNR permitting, which are common to almost every industry," Cornelius said.

Hoegger has heard that resistance to the project is solely due to the fact it is an Oneida Tribal initiative. He even points to lawsuits in which Clean Water Action Council and the Oneida Tribe were joined.

"It's not that were against this because it is an Oneida project. We are against it because it has a bad track record of not working and polluting," he said. "In our past we have felt we had a working relationship with the tribe. We have been on the same side on some lawsuits trying to clean up the Fox River. We asked why was the tribe building this if was potentially so bad. We just found that the claims being made are not true."

When asked what type of attention Clean Water Action Council is giving to known polluting facilities Hoegger points to a recent successful litigation.

"We've recently sued a company just south of Oshkosh for their repeated daily pollution violations. We were a party to that lawsuit. We're not signaling out this particular project. It's just that we felt that this is a new major source of air pollution," he said. "There's not a lot we can do to a plant that exists but we can do a lot about a plant about to be built."

The Green Bay City Council agreed to have their attorney review the city's options and will report back at the next meeting on April 10.

The facility will be located on Hurlbut Street in Green Bay. It will take municipal waste through a gasification process that will create power that will be sold to Wisconsin Public Service. OSGC claims the 60,000 square foot plant will decrease waste from going into landfills, increase recycling and create jobs. Construction is set to begin this spring.

According to Casino Enterprise Management magazine, there are numerous examples of the work House has done to advance the industry. She served as an attorney for the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin—her own tribe—for approximately 20 years, specializing in Indian law, gaming, regulation, corporations, financing, and more. One of her many nomination letters says, "despite her many achievements, she has remained a humble person, always putting a strong emphasis on family and community. That is why she is so well loved by her people at home and by Indian people throughout the U.S. For these reasons, she richly deserves to be recognized as a Great Woman of Gaming."

Drunk Driving: Just Don't Do It!

This article is to inform those who don't know what the penalties are for drinking and driving. Hopefully this will be eye opening and something for you to think about. If tempted to drive drunk please consider all the life challenges and changes you will have to face if you get pulled over and arrested for OWI.

What happens if you are pulled over and given a ticket for driving while intoxicated (OWI)? The penalties are many and all bad. The different ranges in the OWI penalties depends on what OWI it is, first, second, etc., the blood alcohol levels (BAC); if there was an accident with or without injuries or death, if you were cooperative with the police; if you refused to take the blood test, if there was a long period of time between arrests; and if you take proactive steps to improve your recognition of the problem by signing up for an AODA assessment and program, among other things. Generally, the higher the BAC the more severe the penalty. If you refuse to take the blood test or if there was a child below the age of 16 in your car when stopped, an additional penalty will be added.

Drunk Driving Penalties

OWI 1

In Wisconsin, a first OWI is not considered a crime. You get a ticket called forfeiture. You will get a fine of between $150-$300 plus court costs which can bring it up to $300.00 - $930.50, and your driver's license (DL) will be revoked for 6-9 months. You may apply for an occupational license at the Department of Transportation (DOT) immediately if you were not involved in an accident.

If you refused to take a blood test, the refusal will bring the revocation of your DL to 1 year and a 30 day waiting period for your occupational.

If you have a child under 16 in the car when you were stopped, the charge will be changed from the forfeiture to a crime as a second offense with the penalties of a second offense OWI applied.

OWI 2

An OWI second offense is a crime. This one is a little more complicated. If you haven't been charged with a first OWI in the past 10 years, this will be considered a first OWI again with the above penalties applied. After this, if you should get another OWI, it will be considered a third OWI, no matter how many years in between. (This 10 year period only applies to a second offense, after that there is no look back period. All prior OWI's will count no matter how old.)

A second OWI within ten years is considered a crime. The penalties range between a fine of $350.00 to $1,100 with costs attached, bringing the fine to between $1,109.00 and $1,639.00. Because it is now a crime, jail time is attached and can be between 5 days to 100 days jail. Revocation of your DL will be 12 to 18 months. You may get an occupational license after a 45 day waiting period and the Ignition Interlock Device (IID) is installed in your car.

If you refused the blood test, the blood will be drawn anyway and for that refusal you will receive a 2 year revocation of your DL and 90 day waiting period for your occupational license. These penalties are all doubled if you had a child under the age of 16 in the car when you were stopped.

OWI 3

The third OWI has similar but, naturally, stiffer penalties than a second OWI. For a third OWI, the penalties are a fine of between $600-$2,000 with costs bringing the final amount from $1,424.00 to $3,198.00, a jail sentence from 45 days to 12 months, and a revocation of your DL from 24 to 36 months. You must wait 45 days before you can apply for an occupational license and have the IID installed. Again minimums and maximums are doubled if there is a child in the car and the charge of OWI second is then updated to a felony with 3 years prison and/or 2 years probation.

OWI 4 and Above

If you have a fourth or greater OWI charge it is an H, G, or F felony depending on the seriousness of the circumstances. The penalties for a fourth or greater OWI are a fine from $600.00 to $25,000 with costs. Incarceration will be from 6 months jail to 6 years prison. Your DL will be revoked for 24 to 36 months. You can apply for an occupational license after 45 days and proof of an Alcohol Assessment.

If you refused to submit to the blood test, the revocation will be 3 years and the waiting period for you to apply for an occupational license will go up to 120 days and have the IID installed. Minimums and maximums are doubled if there was a child in the car when you were arrested.

The court at sentencing will order you to get an Alcohol Assessment and Driver's Plan from your County with an AODA follow through if required, and ordered to attend the Victim Impact Panel.

If you receive jail time, you may request Huber for work, education, AODA meetings or child care. You may also receive good time, which time is credited to your sentence for good behavior in jail, which is usually a quarter of your sentence taken off. These options are not available to prison sentences.

The Interlock Ignition Devices (IID) which will prevent you from driving if you have alcohol on your breath will be required to be installed on any car you own or drive for a period of 1 year to 36 months for any case where your BAC was .15 or above or were involved in an accident causing injury for the first offense. For the second offense and all others to follow, the IID must be installed to get an occupational license. There is a monthly fee for the device, usually around $2.30 per day. So, for one year that would be a yearly charge of $839.50 ($2.30 per day x 365 days in a year). Also, the license fee is $50.00 and the reinstatement fee for the occupational license is another $200.00.

You will have to appear in court several times and, depending on the severity of the case, you will be required to post bond for your release from jail pending your sentence.

Other consequences of having an OWI on your record is the possibility of being dropped by your insurance company or finding out that the rates have gone up significantly, depending on which number your OWI was and if there was an accident. You may need to get the high rated SR22 insurance after revocation to get your license back.

Beside everything else, there will be embarrassment to you and your family and maybe the loss of your job.

When you're drinking and having a good time, you may think you can drive, but remember, you don't have to drink much to reach .08 (the legal limit in Wisconsin). It is not against the law for an adult to drink; it is against the law to drive with too much alcohol in your blood.

So, PLEASE, PLEASE think about all this before getting behind that wheel. Think about the danger you pose to innocent people who are on the road at the same time and how you would feel if you killed someone, think about the jail or prison time, think about paying the huge fine, think about your inability to drive because you are revoked, think about the many AODA meetings you must attend, think about the costly County Alcohol Assessment you must have done, think about the hassle of getting a ride to Huber and back every day, think about having to get expensive auto insurance, and think about the frightening prospect of prison. So think about all these dangers and penalties before you think you're OK to drive, because if you do it enough times, eventually you will get caught.

If you need more information, assistance, or an appointment, please call Attorney Charlene Smith at the Oneida Legal Resource Center. The number is (920) 496-5310.

Big Horn Trucking doesn't mind a little competition; they even embrace it. The company has even helped potential competitors establish themselves. It's all part of their business philosophy to pay it forward.

The quad-axle dump trunk company started in September of 2008 with a 1989 International dump truck and a $6,000 credit card. It has now grown to a thriving 42-leased truck company pulling in $3 million in sales last year.

"I was a master welder. My dad did truck driving. He gave me some insight and went and bought a truck and jumped in it in about 2000," said Big Horn Trucking Owner/Operator Bart Cornelius "I did it a few years and then after 9-11 business dropped."

Cornelius then met his Co-owner/Dispatcher Leida Wesolaski in 2008.

"(Bart) came to work for a company I was dispatching dump trucks for. He had the 1989 quad axle just sitting. I told him I have the contacts; you have the truck. I asked do you want to do this. Ever since then we have been going every day," said Wesolaski.

The trucking company's main business is road construction projects but accepts smaller private jobs.

"Our main focus is the U.S. 41 corridor project. We started on it in 2008 in Oshkosh and have been working our way up to Brown County," said Leida Wesolaski, Owner/Dispatcher. "We currently have five Native American companies working with us. They run under our contract, we lease them out and dispatch them everyday."

According to Wesolaski, Big Horn Trucking helped four of those five trucking companies get their start.

"We're pretty proud that we helped get other Native American trucking companies started," said Wesolaski. "Maybe we should feel threatened but we really don't."

"We really want to help people. If we can't help you we can point you in the right direction," added Cornelius.

One of those companies is Arrowhead Trucking.

"I learned so much, it's so nice to have your own equipment and be proud of your truck. I wouldn't be where I am today if it wasn't for (Big Horn Trucking)," said Arrowhead Trucking owner Jamie House.

Big Horn Trucking gives a lot of credit to the American Indian Chamber of Commerce of Wisconsin (AICCW) for their success.

"We're very active members of the American Indian Chamber of Commerce (of Wisconsin). That's how we got started and established our disadvantage business enterprise," said Wesolaski. "Whatever we need they are there for us. They in turn rely on us. If someone is out there needing work they will contact us."

With their success they are now looking to help those in need.

"We have a fund set up at the beginning of the year and everyone gets credit for it," said Wesolaski. "All of the trucking companies we work with add to that fund."

Big Horn Trucking sponsors an academic scholarship through the AICCW, Indian Summer Festival along with countless other smaller donations to community members in times of need.

Cornelius and Wesolaski are willing to sit down and help anyone looking to start a business and offer their advice.

"Be aggressive, I called, I called, and I called businesses," said Wesolaski. "Don't be scared.

"Keep pushing because there is a lot of disappointment. (Leida) kept getting so disappointed and I would tell her we would show them. There are so many roadblocks, you need to keep pushing forward," said Cornelius.

Oneida Tribe Appoints New Corporation Members

Oneida Seven Generations Corporation gets two new members

(Oneida, WI) -The Oneida Business Committee has appointed two new members to the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC) board. Bill Cornelius, an attorney has served on the board for 3 years and Paul Linzmeyer, General Partner of ISO International LLC, has been appointed as a new member. OSGC is a seven member corporate board entrusted with the oversight of the OSGC.

Paul Linzmeyer is a respected and reputable businessman with considerable years of professional leadership and has been considered an effective activist for environmental sustainability. Linzmeyer will bring a high level of business acumen to OSGC.

William "Bill" Cornelius is an attorney and has served on OSGC previously. Cornelius continues to provide his legal expertise and knowledge of national Native American environmental issues and projects to the board.

OSGC has been most notably leading the industry in this region for their project to build a pyrolysis gasification project in Green Bay. This project has met with some opposition, but OSGC has been very diligent in securing every level of permits and licensing for this project. Kevin Cornelius, OSGC President, said, "This is probably one of the most highly regulated projects we have ever engaged in. The approval of every level of government from the Oneida Tribe, local municipal city and county, state and federal EPA approval has been a long and arduous process, but we are nearly at the end of our process."

Oneida Vice Chairman, Greg Matson, said, "The Oneida Tribe is 100% behind this initiative. The OSGC has followed a very extensive approval process and this project is one of the most highly regulated and licensed project we have ever engaged in outside of Indian gaming. We have done our due diligence and now's the time to celebrate the shovels going into the ground. The Oneida Nation is dedicated to protect, restore, and positively change the environment in and around the Oneida reservation."

Matson added, "The Oneida Tribe works hard to encourage cooperation with our neighbors in surrounding municipalities. We trust that our corporation, OSGC has also done the same in terms of this project. OSGC has done its due diligence and we enthusiastically support them and the project. The Oneida Nation has a responsibility to protect our citizens. We urge the public to educate themselves about the Oneida Nation and the OSGC renewable energy project by visiting our website at www.oneida-nsn.gov or www.osgc.net ."

Chairman's Corner...

2012 Governor's Conference on Tourism

The 2012 Governor's Conference on Tourism was held at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center this year. The conference provided an opportunity to its participants to share information about how to convince tourist that Wisconsin is the place spend their time. The conference brought in approximately 1,000 participants for two to three nights. Many of the participants were new to the Green Bay area and our reservation. The conference was a great way to see and to be seen.

Oneida Vice-Chairman Greg Matson and I were honored with welcoming the participants at the Governor's Dinner. At this dinner, people and organizations were recognized and honored that have made a significant impact on Wisconsin's travel and tourism industry. The awards given were designed to acknowledge those individuals and business that have shown dedication, creativity and excellence.

General Tribal Council Meetings at the Radisson Hotel

I am continuing to pursue and evaluate information regarding the concerns I, and many tribal members, have regarding the health, safety and wellbeing of our membership at our General Tribal Council Meetings held at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. I have long standing concerns regarding the safety of our tribal members due to the limited space, the arrangement of the chairs, and the substantial number of tribal members seated in the main room.

The number of GTC meeting attendees has grown significantly with more than 1,900 members in attendance at some meetings. I foresee a traumatic and disastrous situation should an emergency situation arise that requires us to vacate the room(s) and/or premises immediately.

From where I sit in the meeting (on the stage that oversees the entire ballroom located in the Three Clans Conference Center in the Radisson), we would have a hard time getting everyone out quickly, safely and without injury and/or possible death. My primary job as Chairman is to foresee these types of problems and address them in a manner that significantly reduces or eliminates the problem completely. I am striving to eliminate the problem completely.

Fishing Rights

In August 1996 Brown County Judge Patrick Crooks ruled that the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin retained the right to fish in Duck Creek. This ruling came as a result of five Oneida men who were cited for fishing within 500 feet of the dam. In an assertion of their sovereign rights, the men were fishing in the same traditional manner they had since coming here more than 150 years ago. Our Oneida Tribal Members gathered at Pamperin Park last Friday morning for the traditional fishing ceremony. They were recognizing the operation of the spring fishing season on Duck Creek with a celebration on the west bank of the creek. The ceremony included a tobacco burning, history readings and an honor song to ensure a successful harvest. Thank you to everyone able to participate.

WTAQ News Talk Radio 97.5 FM and 1360 AM

Last year, as a member of the Oneida Finance Committee, expressed my concerns about the dialogue and commentary being done on WTAQ News Talk Radio 97.5 FM and 1360 AM. At that point in time, our tribe ceased doing business with WTAQ. Since that time, there has been conversation of advertising on WTAQ. However, the level of objective intellectual dialogue has diminished and the use of objectionable language and the use of derogatory names toward Indian women by this radio station appears to be the norm. Therefore, I am holding to my original opposition as now is not the time to invest our tribal dollars into that form of advertising.

State of the Tribes Address

It was a great honor for me to attend the 2012 State of the Tribes Address, held in Madison, Wisconsin on March 13, 2012. Jon Greendeer, President of the Ho Chunk Nation, presented the address to both sides of the house in the Wisconsin State Assembly Chamber. President Greendeer is the son of Oneida Tribal Members Sharlene and George Greendeer and the grandson of Oneida elder Mary Edna Greendeer.

Greendeer said he is optimistic state lawmakers and tribal governments can move forward on mining legislation, but the environment must be preserved. Greendeer talked about Native American Indians being the original stewards of the land and stated "Good caretakers of the land will never find the level of contamination or threat to their sovereign authority worth compromising."

Greendeer's comments were followed by Mike Wiggins, Jr., Chairman of the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa Indians, saying that a push to mine for iron ore in northern Wisconsin could have drastic effects on ground water and other aspects of the environment. He went on to say "The tribes are compelled through a unified value system to see beyond ringing endorsements and ultimately well beyond industrialized. Especially industrialization with unquantified and undetermined environmental risk." Wiggins also said job creation must be balanced with environmental preservation to save state treasures for future generations. He urged lawmakers to keep the lines of communication open to ensure cooperation between the tribal and state government on economic development.

Greendeer supported these comments by stating it is critical that tribes educate the public on the effects of mining and must urge a sense of value. Greendeer said "The challenge staring us in the face is bringing this value with such little time in the political game. Greendeer also emphasized the need for state lawmakers to be more inclusive of the state's 11 tribes, with emphasis on policy and spending. He also presented comments regarding budget cuts, taxes and gambling. Greendeer stated "There's a little heat coming off these issues and there should be. We've ignored them for long enough and accepted certain double standards to compose the fabric of our state's government. If we act like they're not there, then who are we serving?" Very eloquently put. Ho-Chunk President Greendeer enthusiastically reminded the Assembly and Senate that the prosperity for all is demonstrated by the tribes through the following major tribal contributions to Wisconsin:

- The tribes are among the largest, if not "the" largest, employers in their counties.
- Tribes employee more than 13,000 people and payout $380 Million in payroll per year.
- Tribes collect and remit $105 Million in state and federal income taxes.
- Tribes purchase in excess of $500 Million, creating a total impact of nearly $1 Billion of economic impact to the state of Wisconsin.
- With the tribes gaming revenue contribution to the state of Wisconsin of $120 Million per year, the tribes are doing their part to help balance the states budget.
- Tribes hold agreements with their counties and municipalities and provide supplemental funding that pays for boards and much needed equipment.
- Donations and In-Kind Contributions are ongoing and continue to grow each year.

The Wisconsin Indian Tribes were also represented by Forest County Potawatomi Indian Community Chairman Harold Guss Frank, Lac Courte Oreilles Band of Lake Superior Chippewa Indians of Wisconsin Chairman Gordon Thayer, Lac du Flambeau Band of Lake Superior Chippewa Indians of Wisconsin President Tom Mulson, Lac Vieux Desert Band of Lake Superior Chippewa Indians Chairman Alan Shively, Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin Chairman Craig Corn, Sokoagon Chippewa (Mole Lake) Community of Wisconsin Garland McGesick, St. Croix Chippewa Indians of Wisconsin President Steward Bear Heart, and Stockbridge Munsee Community of Wisconsin President Robert Chicks.

Ho-Chunk President Jon Greendeer's speech was the eighth State of the Tribes Address, which updates the Wisconsin Legislature on the most important issues of the state's tribal reservations.

Oneida Thunderhawks Basketball Teams

Congratulations to Oneida Nation Lady Thunderhawks Varsity Basketball players Yasmine Denny, Jessica House, Muriel King, Noelle Metoxen, Kanani Nunies, Allie Spruce, Nasha Stevens, and their Coach Jamie Betters and Assistant Coach Margaret Stevens. The Girls Varsity Basketball team closed their season with a very impressive 17-4 record.

Congratulations to Oneida Nation Thunderhawks Boys Varsity Basketball players Anthony Cornelius, Mitchell Cornelius, Kammanche Jordan, Diego Metoxen, Mike Mills, Devonte Pointer, Jojo Santiago, Oscar Schuyler, and their Coach Scott Murray and Assistant Coach Mike King. The Boys Varsity Basketball team also closed their season with a very impressive 17-7 record. The 17 wins established a new school record.

It was a very exciting season and both teams did a great job!

The Denver Post

The Denver Post published an article about First Nations, one of the oldest, and possibly the largest philanthropic organizations dedicated to improving the lives of American Indians. The article featured the work done by this non-profit organization that is dedicated to improving the lives of American Indians.

The article also acknowledged a $25,000 grant provided to the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin by First Nations that provided modern canning equipment and enabled our tribal members to preserve their own foods. The funds also helped our people revive healthy eating.

The article included a great picture showing two of our aspiring young Oneida women, Sophomore Muriel King and Senior Allie Spruce, learning to make our traditional cornbread at the Oneida Nation High School. To read the full article, go to http://www.denverpost.com/search/ci_20148376 .

A Heartfelt Thank You

The family of Donna Domencich would like to thank all those who supported our family during our time of loss. The suddenness of Donna's passing was especially distressing and your kind words and deeds were very comforting. We would like to thank everyone for their thoughts and prayers, and to those who donated plants and flowers. We are very grateful to all of the individuals who made donations to the fund established in Donna's honor. We would especially like to express our appreciation to the Oneida Singers who traveled to Sturgeon Bay to attend the memorial service. The kindness and compassion expressed by everyone in the community comforts us and makes us feel truly blessed. Thank you all.

Issues with Oneida Transit

I am writing because I am mad as hell with the inconsiderate dealings I have presently had with the Oneida Transit System. I am fed up and upset that I have not received a courtesy call back to help assist me with the issues, problems, complications, concerns, and mistakes made by the Oneida Transit Department.

I have tried to explain to dispatch that I live in a two family home and the only entrance to my residence is in the back part of the house with an alley entrance. I have missed the transit because they do not go to the back entrance and I am unaware they were at the front. With my limitations and disability it is already difficult for me to exit out of the back entrance (only entrance) and now I am being forced to walk around the building, go to the front of the house where I have no entrance, and wait for them outside regardless of the weather conditions because they have a 15 minute rule that they can come earlier or later? This makes no sense to me. I cannot see the road from my doorway. This is an impossible request for someone in my health. There has been only one driver Tom Webster, that was courteous enough to pick me up at the alley entrance of my home and he was very respectful and listened.

I received vouchers that are distributed by the Oneida Transit Department, I have no control over how the vouchers are written and had never used transit before these incidents. I called dispatch on December 30, 2011 to schedule my January pick-ups with Oneida Transit. I received my vouchers for medical from Transit, and after standing outside in the cold for 20 minutes I was told by Pete that I had the wrong vouches so he couldn't take me to my appointment so I missed my therapy appointment and corrected the vouchers as needed. Pete offered me a receipt and monthly pass to get me to my appointments in January. So now I have no vouchers to make any of my scheduled appointments because the Supervisor distributed me the incorrect dated vouchers. The lady in dispatch said she heard about my situation and would have a Supervisor call me back and again I did not get a call back. I had to call a family member and ask her if she could leave work to bring me to my appointment.

I have never been treated or made to feel so bad to the point I felt sick and I have been so upset by it all being unresolved that I don't know what to do anymore. How do I as a tribal member get help with my transportation to and from all my appointments if our own Oneida Transit Department won't help me? I don't know where to go or who to turn to in order to get the assistance I need from someone professional and willing to help.

Sincerely,
Leanissa (Hill) Webb

Opposed: Tina Danforth
Motion by Vince DelaRosa to end discussion and call for the question, seconded by David Jordan. Motion passed three oppositions:
Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft
Motion by Patty Hoeft to cancel plans to conduct a special GTC meeting on April 21, 2012 at Shopko Hall and instead assign to the July 2, 2012 Semi-annual meeting to be held at the Radisson, the items pending GTC action, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried with two oppositions:
Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth opposed the motion to cancel the April 21, 2012 meeting, one because we have for several years asked the Secretary's office to find alternative accommodations to have a General Tribal Council meeting because we are outgrowing our meeting space. We have given her that directive, she has followed it, and we took action on it. I think it's important that we accommodate the body versus individual preferences and our sovereignty is not at stake. The Business Committee has made precedence where we have had business committee meetings off reservation, so long as we've had a quorum. We exercise our sovereignty throughout the country at different times, by sending representatives to speak on behalf of the Tribe. That is an exercise of sovereignty which our Chairman and elected officials do all the time.
For the record: Melinda J. Danforth I do support not having the meeting at Shopko Hall, however I think you're right that the business needs of the Tribe need to be met and that our agenda for July is going to be very full, but therefore I was hoping that we would be able to meet at the Radisson on Monday April 30, 2012 as indicated within the Secretary's memo here as one of the open dates, but motion failed.
For the record: Ed Delgado stated what we did today is a disservice to General Tribal Council. We're creating a huge agenda for the July meeting, in a very uncomfortable atmosphere. Thank you.
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated for the record I support moving in this fashion because I do not want to have a special GTC at a $198,000 called on this and if we don't address it, there is a petition submitted and they have a right to be heard. I support petitions moving forward so I respect the fact that there is a petition submitted. I understand what the councilwoman said, that we could throw this on another agenda. I'd like to throw this on the very next GTC meeting and I think we should have MIS bring a plan forward, on technology issues. I don't understand why there's no technology component even available to us. That's very confusing to me. I support for that reason because I don't want a special meeting held and they have a right to have that petition heard.
For the record: Greg Matson stated it was my understanding that there was a proposal from MIS or IT specialists to help promote that?
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated he would like to thank the committee for reconsidering this issue and allowing the General Tribal Council to have a say in this overall. We represent the General Tribal Council, but this is a major move for the Nation on how we proceed and how we proceed with our meetings and how we have that discussion with them and how we have a voice. Are we are a voice of the 16,000 right now or do we go back to when there's a big question like this, how do we gather that question? I believe sovereignty is always at stake, always at stake. The moment you think its stable, the moment you think you're comfortable with it, that's when somebody's always trying to chip away at it. So I think anything we do or don't do and stand by and watch, that's just distinguishing the sovereignty portion and I think this is what democracy is today. It is allowing voices to be heard, allowing a bigger voice, an audience to happen and I think that's what we'll be doing on the next meeting on having this discussion. Thank you.
For the record: Patty Hoeft stated she also wanted to express her thanks to the committee. I think the last meeting we had to decide to go to Shopko Hall was very courageous to take that up and want to try to do that but it appears that the community just isn't ready yet for that kind of a change. So we just need some more time and again as I said we're evolving, but I want to say thank you to all of the committee members because this was a very good discussion today.

Public Hearing Notice

11:30 a.m. • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor - (BCCR)

April 17, 2012

Purpose:
Legislative Procedures Act

The intent of the Legislative Procedures Act (the Law) is to provide an improved lawmaking process to replace the lawmaking provisions currently found in the Administrative Procedures Act (APA). The Law also re-charters the Legislative Operating Committee's (LOC) role in the lawmaking process. The Law provides a streamlined lawmaking process, which includes:
- Fiscal Estimates. A fiscal estimate would be required for each legislative proposal, which would estimate the total fiscal year costs associated with the legislation. This would include items such as: startup costs, personnel, office, documentation costs, legislative mandates, as well as an estimate of the amount of time necessary for an individual or agency to comply with the law after implementation.
- Legislative Analysis. An analysis describing the important features of the legislation, impact to the Tribal operations, as well as the general public would also be required for each legislative proposal.
- Holding a public comment period and requiring an actual public meeting only be held when determined necessary by the LOC or OBC. Currently, public hearings are required to be held before any legislation is adopted on a permanent basis. Public meetings would now only be required to held if the LOC or OBC determines a public meeting is in the best interests of the Tribal membership. A public comment period will be noticed before any legislation is considered for adoption on a permanent basis and written comments received during this time will be considered before moving forward with the legislation.
- Creation of an Oneida Register. The LOC would be required to post agency regulations, proposed legislation and notices, and the Oneida Code of Laws in the Oneida Register.
- Notice requirements would be the responsibility of the LOC (and no longer the Tribal Secretary). TheLOCwould be required to give specific notice of all public hearings to the Tribe's managers and directors, who would be responsible for informing Tribal employees of the public hearings. The managers and directors would direct that written or oral testimony be provided by Tribal employees who have special knowledge or expertise on the subject of the public hearing. Under the current APA, notice of public hearings is the responsibility of the Tribal Secretary.
- Adoption of emergency legislation. Emergency legislation would still be able to be adopted for six months, with the option of renewing the adoption for an additional six months. A legislative analysis of the emergency legislation would now be required before it is adopted.
- Repeal of the Format for Laws. The Format for Laws would be repealed and the relevant portions of that law would be incorporated into the Legislative Procedures Act.

Public Hearing Process
I. Testimony:

A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or to the Legislative Reference Office Paralegal, Tonya Boucher, at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

Public Hearing Notice

April 26, 2012

Purpose:
Tribal Environmental Response Law

The intent of the Tribal Environmental
Response Law is to direct the Environmental Health and Safety Division (Division) to create a Tribal Environmental Response Program (TERP) which will address situations where the discharge or potential discharge of a hazardous substance has occurred and may have contaminated the environment. In order to regulate the identification, investigation and remediation of discharges of hazardous substances, this law:
- Requires individuals who are responsible for or aware of a discharge of a hazardous substance to notify the Division and, in most cases, to be responsible for the remedial action necessary to restore the environment to the condition it was in before the discharge occurred.
- Makes the Division responsible to:
  - o Adopt standards for environmental quality that are protective of public health and the environment. Business Committee approval of these standards is required, except when the standards are consistent with federal standards.
  - o Conduct investigations of sites and facilities that are, or are suspected of being, contaminated from the discharge of a hazardous substance.
  - o Identify parties that are responsible for the clean-up of contaminated sites and facilities.
  - o Require appropriate remedial actions be taken when contaminated sites and facilities are identified.

Correction: State of the Tribes story

MADISON, Wis. (AP) – In a March 13 story about the annual State of the Tribes address in the Wisconsin Legislature, The Associated Press reported erroneously that Ho-Chunk President Jon Greendeer was referring to mining legislation moving forward when he said he thinks there is a way to preserve the environment and create opportunity for Wisconsin citizens. Greendeer says he was not referring to mining legislation.

Another night of booms in Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE, Wis. (AP) ~ Sleep is interrupted again for some residents in the eastern Wisconsin city of Clintonville where a series of mysterious booms continued for a second night in a row.

City Administrator Lisa Kuss (KOOS) says it was mostly quiet Monday after a series of rumbles the night before until they started again around 8 p.m. She says they continued throughout night until about 5:00 a.m. Tuesday.

The noises had been concentrated in the northeast part of the city and overnight Tuesday the reports moved slightly south and west but still within city limits.

Local officials have checked gas lines, sewers, water pressure and consulted seismologists, but have come up empty-handed.

She says it's still coming from underground. They next plan to check the well pumps to make sure they are functioning.

Marinette Marine hiring hundreds

MARINETTE, Wis. (AP) ~ Marinette Marine Corp. says it plans to hire several hundred workers this year to help build U.S. Navy ships.

The northeastern Wisconsin company has $715 million in new Navy contracts. Marinette Marine already has 1,350 shipyard workers building the Navy's littoral combat ships in Marinette.

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel says the Navy wants a fleet of ships that can operate in waters as shallow as 20 feet and exceed 46 mph. The 377-foot ships could be used to track down submarines and pirates and to support ground troops and launch unmanned aerial drones. Versatility and the ability to change missions quickly are key.

American Indian Science & Engineering Fair and EXPO (NAISEF) takes place March 22-24, 2012 in Albuquerque, NM. This annual event provides an opportunity for American Indian/Alaskan Native students to actively participate in a science-based learning environment and create science projects that can be shared with peers, teachers, and educators.

This educational activity allows students to teach themselves and to take from the established information what they need to discover something new, to learn and execute the steps of the scientific method, and to identify the tools necessary to conduct and conclude their project. NAISEF provides a forum for students to have their research recognized and critiqued in the disciplines of science, mathematics, engineering, technology, and cultural preservation.

Participants have opportunities to win scholarships, cash awards, and traditional prizes. NAISEF Grand Award winners advance to compete at the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair (ISEF) where they compete with students from across the world.

Six students from the Oneida Nation School System will be competing in the National American Indian Science & Engineering Fair and EXPO. Representing the Elementary School is Emerson John, (5th Grade), Louisa Mehojah (8th Grade), and Yohne Danforth (8th Grade). Representing the High School is Lakota Martinez (10th Grade), Noelle Metoxen (11th Grade), and Fredrick Miller (11th Grade). The students will be accompanied by Chaperones; Yvette Peguero and Dale Hallam from the Elementary, Becky Nutt from the High School, and a parent chaperone Carolyn Miller. We are very proud of their commitment and wish success and safe travel to all of them!

States marking bicentennial of War of 1812

By Janet Romaker
The (Toledo) Blade

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP) ~ At a state park near Defiance, sunny spring days beckon bright, bringing life to the banks of the mighty Maumee River.

Families gather, tossing hot dogs, brats, and burgers onto smoky grills. They feast on potato salad, sliced melon, chips, and perhaps some pickles.

Dramatic is the difference 200 years after the War of 1812 brought death to the river area.

Scads of soldiers died not from clashes of cannonballs but rather from the lack of food. It's called Fort Starvation for a reason.

At the area now known as Independence Dam State Park, about six miles below where Fort Winchester once stood, a historical marker tells the tragic tale of Winchester's Camp No. 3, where militiamen from Kentucky, part of forces led by War of 1812 Brig. Gen. James Winchester, occupied the camp from November through December in 1812.

Kentuckians had marched off to war in summer wearing their linen clothing, unaware they would end up slogging and shivering through Black Swamp snow drifts in midwinter.

Historian Richard Rozevink, in battle regalia, pauses near the Fort Starvation marker at Independence Dam State Park in Defiance. Remains were found during construction of the Miami and Erie Canal, which opened in 1845.

Their suffering was intense.

In his diary, Pvt. Elias Darnell of Lewis' Regiment of Kentucky volunteers, who referred to Camp No. 3 aptly as Fort Starvation, wrote about receiving skimpy provisions of salt, flour, and whiskey.

On some days, the men went without any salt and flour, mainstays of meals at the time. Weak from hunger, many soldiers were felled by disease and failure to thrive.

In his words, Nov. 4, 1812: "Four of this army have gone to the silent tomb today never more to visit their friends in Kentucky; the fever is very prevalent in camp; nearly every day there is one or more buried."

The horrors of Fort Starvation were unearthed during construction of the Miami and Erie Canal, which opened in 1845. Canal workers dug through the burial grounds of Winchester's Camp No. 3 and uncovered thousands of bones of soldiers who drew their last breaths, never again to return to their old Kentucky homes. They were buried in Ohio, honored by military rites with muffled drums.

In Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, and beyond, Americans are marking the bicentennial of the War of 1812 with a blend of star-spangled celebratory salutes and solemn remembrances of what is known as the Forgotten War or the Second War of Independence.

No matter the name, it was and always will be our war.

It happened here - frontier skirmishes, fort battles, fierce massacres -- in and near such communities as modern-day Maumee, Perrysburg, Fremont, and Marblehead in Ohio, and, in Michigan, the city of Monroe.

When duty called, scrappy rag-tag soldiers bravely battled back the enemy. Their history is our history. Their victories, our victories. Blood was shed where today, two centuries later, we work, we live, we play.

During the War of 1812 bicentennial, scores of international, federal, state, and local special events will take place: memorial services and museum displays, fife and drum parades, battle re-enactments and beer tastings, fireworks, tall-ship and lantern tours, lectures and library displays, conferences and workshops, living-history encampments, cannon and musket demonstrations, monument and marker dedications, and much, much more. Events already are being held; some others, because the bicentennial extends beyond this year, remain in planning stages.

The Defiance County Chapter of the Ohio Genealogical Society prepared for the bicentennial by placing historical markers at five historically significant sites in the county, including at Fort Starvation. The intent is to honor veterans who served at those sites and those who died there in defense of our country, said local historian Richard Rozevink, co-author of a tour guide, Campaigns of the Army of the Northwest 1812-1813, A Brief History.

The guide provides maps and driving routes for those who wish to follow the footsteps of 1812 soldiers, described by Mr. Rozevink as "a bunch of backwoods men" who beat the best army the world knew at that time. And in doing so, patriotic pioneers gained respect for our country and boosted our national pride, he said.

Officially, the bicentennial begins with a flourish on June 18 this year - 200 years after President James Madison declared war on Great Britain.

Plans call for the Declaration of War to be read in each of Ohio's 88 counties, followed by tolling bells and the raising of 15-star flags, similar to those flown during the war.

All that pomp and circumstance befits the bicentennial of a war that mattered then and now.

"The War of 1812 was the last major war fought on Ohio ground. There were significant battles fought in our own backyard, in our own state," said Rick Finch, director of Fort Meigs along the Maumee River in Perrysburg. "It was the first major war America fought as a nation. It was a psychological war for independence in the new and sovereign nation, and we showed we would stand up and fight for what is ours."

Typically, when folks are asked what they know about the war, the answer is "precious little," said Mr. Finch who is button-poppingly pleased to hear about growing interest in the bicentennial. "Since January we have seen an uptick in people who want to learn more about the war," he said. "The bicentennial is really an opportunity to pique interest in a war that was fought here with real fighting and real battles."

Fort Meigs was the front line of American military operations in the Northwest Territory, Mr. Finch said. There, the British suffered their first setback of the Northwest Campaign when a detachment of American troops stood firm against the combined forces of British and Canadian soldiers and Tecumseh's warriors.

The War of 1812, remembered by some for the burning by the British of the White House and the battle that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the "Star-Spangled Banner," was fought for several reasons, including unresolved issues related to free trade, sailors' rights, and control of the "western country."

Although called the Forgotten War, it should be remembered as a critically important war that secured America's future, said Joseph H. Zerbey IV, chairman of the Ohio War of 1812 Bicentennial Commission.

"It was a horrendous war. A lot of men were killed and gave their life for their beliefs. In the end, America won, besting what were considered as far superior naval and armed forces, and the amazing victory on land and sea sent a clear message: 'This country means business, and don't mess with Americans.'" he said.

The Ohio War of 1812 Bicentennial Commission, established by the 128th Ohio General Assembly, is planning, as fund-raising efforts continue, several activities to honor Americans who served in the war and to educate and raise awareness of residents of Ohio and of the nation about Ohio's role in the war.

Plans include development of a portable, educational exhibit featuring artifacts and a timeline of the war in Ohio that would tour the state, Mr. Zerbey said.

"Our main mission is to promote understanding of the importance of the war to the history of Ohio," said Mr. Zerbey, who is president and general manager of The Blade.

Americans, Canadians, British, and Native Americans died right here where we walk, right here in the Great Black Swamp, he said. "There is a lot of history in Ohio, and we want to make sure folks get to understand that."

Family Fun Night event promotes healthy habits

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Either jumping rope or jumping in the bouncy castle, Oneida youth and their families had a chance to move, learn and have fun at the annual Family Fun Night held Wednesday, March 21 at the Oneida Nation Elementary School.

Consultant Dietitian Jill Caelwaerts said the event sponsored by the Special Diabetes Grant is held to promote health and well being.

"Each booth has a different theme to either get the kids moving or to teach them a little bit about nutrition," she said.

Diane Hernandez watched her three grandchildren zip from jump roping to the Chicken Dance at the event.

"I like this event because the kids can get out, they can do a lot of different things," she said. "It helps them get that energy out and keep them moving."

Granddaughter Angie Hernandez enjoyed the many activities.

"It's great," she said stating her favorite part is the dancing.

Caelwaerts said one of the goals of the event was to make community members aware of opportunities such as scholarships for low income individuals and families for the Oneida Family Fitness Center.

"We hold this event to really bring awareness to the families that you can be active and not have a lot of things, like we do jump roping, we do musical lily pads, just having music in your house, you can still be active," she said. "Bringing awareness to the community that being active and being healthy is good for your body and good for your family."

Custodial Staff at the Norbert Hill Center

By Custodial Staff

The Norbert Hill Center (NHC) comprises of the High School, the Business Committee, Preschool, Audit Department and nine other entities. It is the third largest inhabited building owned by the Tribe at 144,132 square footage of floor space, which is cleaned by 11 Custodians including the Supervisor. This comes out to approximately 13.102.9 square feet per Custodian to clean.

Our day Custodian takes care of the accidental spills to cover our clients, students and visitors while conducting daily checks on bathrooms and entryways. Our Supervisor and other members come in for the second shift to clean the entire building. This also includes any carpet cleaning, stripping, waxing of floors and burnishing as needed. The cafeteria, bathrooms, showers, child care areas are all disinfected daily. Offices are cleaned 2-3 times a week depending on traffic and all hallways are dust mopped, mopped, and carpets vacuumed.

Rosa John is the Supervisor for the Custodial staff at the Norbert Hill Center Custodial work center. She can be reached for help through work orders, telephone, email, and on the Custodial Turtle Channel over the radio. Most of the crew can be contacted by radio over the Custodial Turtle Channel during working hours. During day hours, even the main Custodial Office is also on the Custodial Turtle Channel for cleaning emergencies.

Rosa conducts regular meetings with her crew to keep them updated on building concerns, changes and to gather information and do professional training. Some of her people have been with her since she started her job. She maintains the supplies for the custodial closets, reports any equipment problems, and submits work orders on what the Custodians find to coordinate building repairs.

The Norbert Hill Custodial crew does an excellent job in maintaining a clean, sanitized, and professional environment for the people who work and visit the building. Considering the age of the building, it still is one of the better looking ones here in Oneida.

Working at The Norbert Hill Center is a unique experience in itself working with all the entities and the High School all in the same building. It really empties out quickly after four in the evening just before it gets darker and quieter. But between the moving lights in the auditorium and the strange sounds everywhere else, there is never a dull moment.

First Nations featured in The Denver Post

Oneida Nation High School (ONHS) students Murial King, left, and Aliie Spruce are learning to make Oneida cornbread wheels. This photo was featured in the Denver Post article on First Nations Development Institute.

On March 11, writer Karen Augé of The Denver Post featured the work of First Nations Development Institute on traditional Native food issues. The article noted our $25,000 grant to help the Oglala Sioux get bison into a school, Arizona's Tohono O'odham's $25,000 grant to help it revive production of traditional foods, the $25,000 grant to South Dakota's Harvest Initiative that helped agricultural entrepreneurs on the Crew Creek Sioux Reservation, and another $25,000 grant that helped the Oneida Nation in Wisconsin provide modern canning equipment that enables members to preserve their own food, and which also supports a program that teaches teenage girls how to grow and process food.

The article also said: "First Nations, based in Longmont, is one of the oldest, and possibly the largest, philanthropic organization dedicated to improving the lives of American Indians."

For legal reasons, we cannot reprint the entire article within this message, so please visit The Denver Post's website for the complete article: Longmont nonprofit gives American Indians a helping hand.

Wooden and bone rattle lead (Pb) hazard

Rattles made of wood and bone and sold by the Oneida Museum have been found to contain lead shot. Lead is a well-known hazard that was banned in 1978 from paint, products marketed to children, and in dishes or cookware (CDC).

Product: Wood and bone rattles
Sold by: Oneida Nation Museum
Hazard: "Rattle" is produced by loose lead shot in the bone section.
Incidents/Injuries: Report of fine black dust from lead shot, leaking from the bone rattle section onto the wooden handle
Remedy: In the short term, immediately take the rattles away from children and place in a zip lock bag. Store the bag in safe place until further recall notice.

Statement from the Oneida Nation Museum

It has come to our attention that a rattle that the Oneida Nation Museum has been purchasing and reselling for six years has been tested positive for lead. Our main concern is for the health and safety of our community. These rattles are engraved with the initials MK. The rattles were tested by the Oneida Environmental Health and Safety Department and confirmed. The harmful portion of the rattle is the buck shot balls inside the actual rattle.

Please discontinue use of the rattles and place in a zip-loc type bag.

A return/exchange policy has not yet been determined. Further recall information will become available as soon as possible.

For more information please call the Oneida Law Office at 869-4372.

The Ultimate Homemade Solution for Mold

This anti-mold solution has a number of devotees who claim it is the most effective product of all for killing mold. Though the quantities of the ingredients vary slightly from recipe to recipe, most agree this combination produces good results:

- 1 gallon of water
- 1 cup of rubbing alcohol
- 1 cup of white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons of baking soda
- 1 cup hydrogen peroxide

Mix all the ingredients in a bucket and either sponge the solution onto the mold, or use a spray bottle. Again, use only in a well-ventilated area, wear rubber gloves and eye protection. Scrub the affected area with soap and water after the mold has been killed.

Prevention is the Best Solution

Mold needs moisture and warmth to grow. The EPA recommends fixing any leaks or drips, and adding ventilation to increase airflow in moist areas. Dehumidifiers can also help reduce moisture in humid climates. But, if prevention doesn't work, get out the household chemicals, put on the rubber gloves and eradicate that mold.

Seventh Annual Young Native Writers Essay Contest Announced

Contest offers Scholarships, encourages Native American Youth to explore their Heritage

Washington, D.C. – The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation is pleased to announce the call for essays in its seventh annual Young Native Writers Essay Contest. The national writing contest focuses on the richness of Native American life and history, and challenges Native American youth to speak out on issues important to their tribal communities.

For 2012, students who participate will be asked to write on the following topic: "Describe a crucial issue confronting your tribal community today. Explain how you hope to help your tribal community respond to this challenge and improve its future."

The contest is designed to encourage young Native American writers to explore their heritage while becoming positive forces in their communities. It is open to Native American high school students from all tribal communities throughout the United States.

Students interested in participating can visit the Holland & Knight Young Native Writers Essay Contest website, nativewriters.hklaw.com, for official contest rules and to view past winning essays. All essays must be submitted electronically by the entry deadline, April 30, 2012, through the contest website.

Five finalists will be named in June and during the week of July 8-14, 2012, all finalists and a teacher nominated by each winning essayist will receive an all-expenses-paid "Scholar Week" trip to Washington, D.C. The group's activities will include an honor ceremony at the National Museum of the American Indian; a tour of the NMAI Cultural Resources Center where tribal objects can be viewed and studied; educational symposiums for students and their teachers; and a tour of the U.S. Capitol. The winners will also receive a $2,500 scholarship to be paid to the college or university of their choice.

The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation partners with the Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of the American Indian to plan and execute activities during Scholar Week. "The Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of the American Indian is proud to be involved in a program that inspires high school students to think innovatively about their Native communities," said Museum Director Kevin Gover (Pawnee). "Each year we look forward to honoring the winners at our building on the National Mall."

The contest debuted in 2006 in Red Lake, Minnesota in response to the March 2005 event where a student of Red Lake High School shot five fellow students, one teacher, one security guard, members of his family and then himself. The Holland & Knight Charitable Foundation developed this contest with the hope that the Red Lake community would find healing by promoting its rich culture and traditions. In the years since, the program has evolved to serve all Native American communities.

"Indian youngsters have learned, better than any generation before them, how to 'walk in two worlds,'" said Ben Nighthorse Campbell, a former U.S. Senator and current Senior Policy Advisor with Holland & Knight LLP. "Many have mastered the tools of the technological age while preserving the traditions vital to their culture. I am pleased that Holland & Knight and the National Museum of the American Indian have continued their partnership in providing a forum for these talented and thoughtful young people to offer their perspectives on issues of importance to all in Indian Country."

Spring Break is Prime Time for "Grandparents Scam"

MADISON – Spring break is underway, and many students from around Wisconsin have headed to the beach – either here in the States or abroad. While these students are soaking up the sun, scammers could be using their absence as a way to take advantage of Grandma and Grandpa back in Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) is asking families to be on the lookout for "Grandparents Scams" during spring break. These scams take on a number of forms, but always involve a request for cash tied to a story about a hardship a grandchild is facing. The scammer, posing as the grandchild, will call asking for money to pay for tuition or textbooks, fix a car, get out of jail or leave a foreign country. The grandparent is asked not to tell anyone else about the situation.

"This scam is as low as they come," said Sandy Chalmers, Division Administrator for Trade and Consumer Protection. "These criminals take advantage of a grandparent's love and concern and the trust they have established with their grandchildren."

"According to the Federal Trade Commission, reports of imposter scams were up 22 percent in 2011," Chalmers added. "Since most grandparents would not hesitate to help out their grandchildren, these scams are lucrative for criminals and often net thousands of dollars at a time."

With many college students using Facebook to share updates and future plans with friends and family members, it is not difficult for a scammer to seek out a student planning a vacation, learn about their plans, follow their travel, and study up on the student's family members and personal details. When a scammer calls the grandparent, he is likely to be able to spin a convincing story. To further sell the scam, a second person may also call the grandparent, claiming to be a police officer or a bondsman.

The Bureau of Consumer Protection offers these tips for handling a potentially fraudulent call for help:

- No matter how dramatic the story sounds, do not wire money. The chances of recovery are slim to none. Also, do not send a check or money order by overnight delivery or courier. Con artists recommend these services so they can get your money before you realize you have been cheated.
- Never provide your bank or credit card account numbers – regardless of the reason.
- Resist the pressure to act immediately. Try to contact the grandchild at a number that you know is accurate such as a home or cell phone number before transferring money. If you do not have your grandchild's phone numbers, get in touch with their parent, spouse or another close family member to check out the story before you send any money – even if you have been asked to keep the call a secret.
- Remember that some impostors research the people they are posing as and can answer basic questions about them. Try to verify the caller's identity by asking personal questions a stranger could not answer.
- Do not fill in the blanks. Refrain from mentioning other family members' names or personal information. If the caller says, "It's your granddaughter," respond with "Which one?" Most likely, the caller will hang up.
- If you cannot reach a family member and still are not sure what to do, call the Bureau of Consumer Protection or your local police on the non-emergency line. They can help you sort things out.
- If you receive repeated fraudulent calls, contact your local telephone company for assistance and file a complaint with the police immediately.

"If you receive a call for financial help while a family member is on travel, it may be difficult to fight an urge to react immediately," noted Chalmers. "Collect your thoughts, be skeptical of the situation and take appropriate steps to verify the call."

ONHS takes to the hills at Pine Mountain

By La Kota Martinez and Thunderhawk Times Staff

On Thursday, March 1, 17 ONHS students who were eligible to participate took a trip to Pine Mountain Resort which is located in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan near Iron Mountain, MI.

Eligibility was based on first semester grades, attendance, and behavior. Some students who were eligible to go on the trip decided not to, including a number of the players on the boys and girls basketball teams who were about to begin post-season play and did not want to run the risk of injury.

Students on the trip Alyesha Barton, Paul Christjohn, Colleen Cornelius, Mitchel Cornelius, Byran Holona, Billie John, Ruby John, LaKota Martinez, Diego Metoxen, Matias Metoxen, Kaylynn Powless, Mason Powless, Matthew Powless, Talon Skenadore, Sheila Stevens, Shawntel Skenadore, and Vincent Webster.

We left at 8 a.m. and returned about 6 p.m. that same day.

Pine Mountain had received about 16" of snow the day before we got there.

After we got to the hill, we got to pick if we wanted to ski down the snowy hills or snowboard and eventually wipe out. After we picked which activity we wanted to participate in, we had great instructors there to help us learn and show us around.

Thanks to our teachers Lynn Adrian and Denis Gullickson for taking us to this fun trip to Pine Mountain Resort.

Billie's Online Course

By Shawntel Skenadore
Thunderhawk Times

Billie John is a sophomore at Oneida Nation High School. She is taking an online course through the Wisconsin Virtual School called "Careers." When asked how the class was going, she replied "pretty straight."

She said one good thing about the course is that you can learn different ways to learn. One thing that's not so good, she said, is that you can fall behind easily!

Billie said she will be continuing to take online courses. I asked her if she would advise other students to do this and she said yes!

When asked "What is one thing you learned in this class," she said, "what to expect in job interviews."

Online courses are growing in popularity. In 2009, 5.6 million students had taken at least one online course. More than 25% if all college students have taken at least one online course.

Colorstrology Revisited

By Matthew Powless
Thunderhawk Times

Last issue, I talked about an interesting book that I checked out of the Brown County Library. In fact, I've checked it out three times already.

The book is "Colorstrology" and it gives each person's birthdate a color and a description of their personality based on that color.

I asked the students at ONHS what their birthdate was and it turns out that the color and description was pretty accurate. I even looked at Barack Obama's birthdate and that was pretty accurate.

This time, I wanted to look at some other famous people's birthdays and see how close it was.

It turned out that three of the celebrities I picked all have the same birthday, randomly. Betty White, Michelle Obama, and Muhammad Ali were all born on January 17. Their color was "Tandori Spice" and it said that they were all, "dynamic, intricate, and colorful."

Derek Rose who is a popular basketball player for the Chicago Bulls was born on October 4. His color was "Heather" and is supposed to be "realistic, serious, and funny."

Scott Walker, Wisconsin's Governor, was born on November 2. His color was "Raspberry Wine" and he is said to be "empathetic, transforming, and responsible."

Ru Paul was born in November 17. His color was ""ompeain Red" and he is said to be strong, innovative, and transforming.

Lady Gaga was born on March 28. Her color was "Sierra" and it says that she is a thinker, hard-working, and activist.

Bruce Lee's birthday is on November 27.His color is "Thistledown" and he is said to be exciting, prophetic, and dynamic.

Enjoying Chicago

By RJ Webster
Thunderhawk Times

For me, spring break started a couple of days early.

We went to Chicago and met up with my aunt Tina. Then, we went to the Shedd Aquarium which is one of the world's most-famous indoor aquariums. It was opened in 1930.

The Shedd Aquarium has over 25,000 fish and 5,000,000 gallons of water. It also contains 1500 species of fish, marine mammals, birds, snakes, amphibians, and insects.

We also went to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago, which I found pretty boring. I got lost for three and a half hours in that museum. They have a lot of stuff there—airplanes, tornadoes, and a submarine that you can go into.

We did a little shopping and enjoyed the warm weather.

The Beatles

By Sheldon Skenandore
Thunderhawk Times

I think The Beatles are the best band in the history of rock and roll.

They are so good at music making and people love their music.

They are a legend.

It's sad that two members of the band, John Lennon and George Harrison, died. Lennon was shot and Harrison died of throat cancer. The other two members, Paul McCartney and Ringo Starr, are still alive.

If you haven't listened to the Beatles lately, you might want to pull out your old albums or download some music.

If you Google "The Beatles," you get 142,000,000 hits.

The Bean

By La Kota Martinez
Thunderhawk Times

There's a public sculpture in Chicago at Millennium Park. This sculpture is known as "The Bean" to mostly just locals. Maybe you have seen it in pictures, or on the big screen but didn't know what it was.

The Bean's environment has cool architecture and landscape around it and people can enjoy tours, concerts, and family activities in Millennium Park.

To see the bean there is no charge; it has free admission. I think that it`s a pretty cool scenery and I would suggest you see the Windy City's Bean, especially if you've never seen it before.

It's The Stevie Show

By Josanna Cornelius
Thunderhawk Times

Monday, March 19 was "Let's Laugh Day."

There is this girl who has her own show, but I forget the channel it was on.

She makes fun of all of my favorite reality shows. But it's still funny, even though she's making fun of the shows I watch, like: Pretty Little Liars, Switched at Birth, The Lying Game, and the show with Kim, Kourtney, and Khloe Kardashian, and plenty more.

Stevie dresses up and pretends to be a Karsdashian and just criticizes their acting.

And there's this board game these little girls are playing that include the Kardashian's. It's like their own game that makes fun of their lives and body features. It was really mean but it made me laugh. You may want to check it out, so you can have a laugh.

Katt Williams

By Luis Webster
Thunderhawk Times

It was "Let's Laugh Day" on March 19 and one of the funniest "katts" I know is rapper/actor/comedian Katt Willimas who is from Cincinnati, OH.

Williams he is known for making people laugh because of his energy and sense humor on stage.

He is probably best known ad Money Mike in "Friday After Next" and for appearances on the MTV show "Wild 'n Out" and parts like Bobby Shaw on "My Wife and Kids." One of his funnier movies is "American Hustle."

Katt Williams talks about African American culture.

Furnace Repairs

The Home Repair Program has been receiving a large amount of furnace calls. It is important to make sure that your furnace filters are changed regularly. When a filter is dirty, the motor works harder to blow the air. I would recommend changing at least every 2 months. That will help your furnace last longer and will help with your energy bill.

Equal access to Plan B emergency contraception called for

In a new report released today, The Native American Women's Health Education Resource Center (NAWHERC) in Lake Andes, South Dakota, once again calls upon the Indian Health Service to provide equal access to safe, emergency contraception in the form of Plan B, especially for survivors of sexual assault. The report also requests the I.H.S. to immediately enforce the application of Standardized Sexual Assault Policies for all hospitals and clinics in its purview and to work with Tribal Nations to understand and implement standardized emergency room services for all Native American women.

This latest report from NAWHERC titled, "Indigenous Women's Dialogue – Roundtable Report on the Accessibility of Plan B as an Over the Counter (OTC) Within Indian Health Service" makes a strong case for examining the human rights violations demonstrated in the substandard care given to Native American women, especially victims of sexual assault. "The potential for Native American women to need reproductive choice or emergency contraception (EC) because of a violent incident statistically far exceeds that of the general population. Native Americans are raped at a rate nearly double that of rapes reported by all races annually – 34.1%, more than 1 in 3, Native American women will be raped in their lifetime. Three-fourths of Native American women have experienced some type of sexual assault in their lives[1]." Although, Plan B is available over the counter to all women seventeen years and older, Native American women are not provided access to Plan B over the counter by their primary health care provider- the Indian Health Service. Native American women are being discriminated against due to their race, which is a violation of basic human rights.

In light of these appalling statistics, NAWHERC gathered over fifty women during the summer and fall of 2011 to listen to the voices of advocates, workers and victims in the health care and support systems for Native American women. The report explores and illustrates the inequities, even within one service unit area, where a few service units provide EC, but most do not; two provide Plan B, but the others still utilize an old formula of several high dose birth control pills, which can be dangerous for women.

As the report states, "Human Rights are created and adopted to be applicable across the board, but we continue to hear Native American women's stories of restrictive and inconsistent policies, un-funded health care needs, difficulty in accessing preventive and emergency services – whether the institutions are ran by the Indian Health Service, a treaty tribe or non treaty tribe, a PL 638 situation, or a "self-governed" tribe. The complexities of sovereignty and the collision of the Indian Health Services with Tribal Nations provision of some or part of those services is a labyrinth too hard to navigate, especially during a crises such as assault, violence and fear."

Roundtable participants have responded to the report with statements such as, "I can't tell you how moved I was by the report. My hat is off to everyone involved. It is a great report- compelling, truthful, and informative. Thank you again for letting our voices be heard." The full report is available for download and distribution at http://www.nativeshop.org/images/pdf/Plan-B-Report.pdf

Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute - Team Oneida

The time for change is now!

By Michelle Myers
Community Health Nursing Department

The Community Readiness Model used to guide Team Oneida through the Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute project was developed by the Tri-Ethnic Center for Prevention. The Community Readiness Model is an efficient, inexpensive and easy to use tool. This model integrates a community's culture, resources, and level of readiness to more effectively address an issue.

The process of community change can be complex and challenging, but this model breaks down the process into a series of manageable steps.

Step 1: Identify the issue
Summer 2011 - Team Oneida identified the issue of wellness in the community

Step 2: Define "community"
October 2011 - Native Americans living in Brown and Outagamie County

Step 3: Conduct Key Respondent Interviews
January 2012 - Community readiness surveys were completed

Step 4: Score the Determine Readiness Level
February 2012 - Community readiness surveys were scored

Step 5: Develop Strategies/ Conduct Workshops
April 2012 - Wellness Event Saturday April 14, 2012

Step 6: Community Change
Evaluation and comparison of community readiness scores

The interview questions from step 3 above came from the Community Readiness Model as well. The questions on the readiness survey were developed using the six dimensions of readiness. The dimensions are key factors that influence a community's preparedness to take action on an issue. They are excellent tools for diagnosing a community's needs and for developing strategies that meet those needs.

Ten community members were selected to participate in the readiness survey.

Results of the survey show that the Oneida Community, scores at a preplanning stage of change, when it comes to the issue of community wellness. This means there is clear recognition that something must be done and there are groups addressing the issue now.

There are many examples of wellness initiatives happening right now. On April 14, 2012, Team Oneida from the Healthy Wisconsin Leadership Institute will be teaming up with Just Move It Oneida. In addition to the Just Move It Oneida activities, we will also be hosting a "Family" Wellness Event. Activities begin at Oneida Family Fitness Center at 9am and go until 12pm. Come join us for some fun!

Part of Team Oneida's communication plan, includes presenting the results of this project with the newly developed Wellness Council in Oneida, to bring the "voices of our community and further enhance the Wellness planning in the future.

| Dimensions of Readiness | Oneida's scores |
|---|---|
| A. Community Efforts | 6.25 |
| B. Community Knowledge of the efforts | 4 |
| C. Leadership | 4 |
| D. Community Climate | 2.5 |
| E. Community Knowledge about the issue | 4.25 |
| F. Resources related to the issue | 3.75 |
| Overall Score | 4.125 |

Information for patients who utilize OCHC On Call Nurse

Registered Nurses (RN) are available for patient phone calls – 24 hours a day/ 7days a week. When the clinic is closed the RN is home. They do not have access to medical records or pharmacy information.

When to call and speak with the RN after clinic hours:

- You/your child have an urgent health care need/question that cannot wait until the next open day of the clinic.

Don't call the RN when you are having a life threatening issue. For example, chest pain, difficulty breathing, or bleeding profusely from wound. Access the nearest emergency department to get medical attention as soon as possible. Call 911 as needed for intervention. Call the Contract Health Services Department to report the visit within 72 hours to ensure coverage.

The RN's on call also work 40 + hours per week at the OCHC medical clinic, in addition to providing on call services. Calling in the middle of the night with a concern that is not urgent is not appropriate.

On call staff does not determine Contract Health eligibility. You need to contact the Contract Health Department when the clinic reopens to check on eligibility.

Keil inducted into Bouchet Honor Society in Madison

MADISON, WI ~ The Madison (Wisconsin) Chapter of the Edward Alexander Bouchet Graduate Student Honor Society has inducted member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, Doug Kiel, as one of its 2012 members. Named for the first African American doctoral recipient in the United States (Physics, Yale University, 1876), the Bouchet Society was established in 2005 by Yale University and Howard University to recognize outstanding scholarly achievement and to promote diversity and excellence in doctoral education and the professoriate. Three 2012 members were inducted into the Madison Chapter by Wendy Crone, Associate Dean of the Graduate School, Graduate Education, on March 9, 2012 at The Pyle Center in Madison. Induction into the National Bouchet Society will take place at the Ninth-Annual Yale Bouchet Conference on Diversity in Graduate Education March 30-31, 2012 at Yale University.

Local chapters may be formed by invitation only, and must be doctoral-granting institutions with a sustained record of training scholars who are traditionally underrepresented in the academy. The University of Wisconsin-Madison Graduate School was invited to form a local chapter of the Bouchet Society in 2010, thanks to the efforts of Assistant Dean Dorothy Sanchez, Office of Graduate Student Diversity Resources in the UW-Madison Graduate School.

Doug Kiel, an enrolled member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, is currently a Dissertation Fellow at Middlebury College in Vermont and a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of History at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He holds a B.A. from UW-Whitewater and an M.A. from UW-Madison. He studies American Indian history, federal Indian policy, and the history of the American West. He is currently completing a dissertation about the cultural, economic, and political resurgence of the Oneida Nation since the 1920s.

Kiel has been the recipient of grants and fellowships from the Ford Foundation, the Lyndon Baines Johnson Foundation, the American Philosophical Society, the School for Advanced Research (SAR) in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in Geneva, Switzerland.

This outstanding record of achievement qualified Doug Kiel to be chosen as one of the first members of the Madison Chapter of the Bouchet Society, along with Edward Cole and Abiola Keller, for exemplifying the spirit of Dr. Edward Alexander Bouchet.

Dr. Bouchet earned his baccalaureate degree from Yale in 1874 and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa because of his scholarly achievements. He taught chemistry and physics for twenty-six years at the Institute for Colored Youth in Philadelphia, PA, a Quaker institution known for high academic standards. He resigned in 1902 when the Institute discontinued its college preparatory program, and went on to serve as business manager of the Provident Hospital in St. Louis (1903-04), U.S. Inspector of Customs at the Louisiana Purchase Expedition (1904-05), and director of academics at St. Paul's Normal and Industrial School in Lawrenceville, Virginia (1905-08). In 1908 he was appointed principal of the Lincoln High School, Gallipolis, Ohio, and in 1913 he moved on to join the faculty of Bishop College in Marshall, Texas. Dr. Bouchet retired from college teaching in 1916 due to illness, and returned to New Haven, Connecticut where he had spent his childhood years.

The Mission of the Edward Alexander Bouchet Graduate Honor Society is "to develop a network of preeminent scholars who exemplify academic and personal excellence, foster environments of support, and serve as examples of scholarship, leadership, character, service, and advocacy for students who have been traditionally underrepresented in the academy. In the spirit of Edward Alexander Bouchet and the scholarship, character, leadership, service and advocacy he exhibited both inside and outside academic realms, inductees into the honor society bearing his name must also exhibit these same outstanding qualities."

Doug and the other UW-Madison members will have opportunities to present their research at special events sponsored by the Multicultural Graduate Network (MGN); to act as mentors for McNair Scholars and others; and to attend a one-day conference for Bouchet Society members and undergraduate under-represented minority students. Other proposed projects include community outreach efforts, such as speaking with younger students at Wisconsin schools and organizations. Membership in the Bouchet Society is a lifelong commitment. By connecting outstanding leaders and leaders-to-be of all ages, Bouchet Society members hope to promote diversity and excellence for generations to come.

Lions – Here's a "Roar" for a new Hobart-Oneida Lions Club

Local community organizations truly strengthen the spirit and resources available to their neighbors. Non-profits and service organizations provide activities that create great community social gatherings, deliver health, safety and educational programs and resources, and supplement park and recreational activities that cannot be accomplished with local tax dollars.

Ted Handrick is a 40-year member of the Lions International, and a 35-year member of the Howard-Suamico Lions. Ted and some of his fellow Lions have communicated an interest in assisting residents of the Hobart and Oneida area to form a new Hobart-Oneida Lions organization

Lions Clubs across the country are known for their high quality service missions that assist young people, vision-impaired, victims of diabetes and provide community park and garden services as well. These are but a few vital areas of interest of the Lions.

Here in Wisconsin, chapters of the Lions Club also facilitate the Wisconsin Lions Summer Camp Programs at a marvelous camp and conference center in Rolshot, northeast of Stevens Point. Summer camps are annually conducted for blind and visually impaired children (ages 6 – 17), for deaf and hard of hearing children (ages 6-17), and for Cognitively Disabled children (ages 9-17). The Summer Camp also includes camp programs for adult with vision and hearing impairments, for those ages 18 and above.

Did you know that the Lions club includes men and women, and often couples join together?

In our Hobart-Oneida area, the need to provide more community-service and productive activities for each other and our youth is one that could use a boost. Once a Hobart-Oneida Lions organization is chartered, it could be that a "Leo's" Club – a Lions Club, for youths age 12-18, could also be formed one day soon. The very active Leos Club in Pulaski is one of the largest in the state. Hobart and Oneida youth might really enjoy being a part of such a positive organization that does great things for their local communities.

If you would like to consider becoming a charter member of a newly forming Hobart-Oneida Lions Club, please mark your calendars for Wednesday, March 28th at 6:00 PM. Interested persons will meet at the Safari Restaurant, Brown County Golf Course on Riverdale. Ted Handrick and his colleagues from the Howard-Suamico Lions will host the meeting, and their organization has agreed to formally sponsor a new Hobart-Oneida Lions Club. We need twenty interested citizens to charter a Lions club for our community.

If you would like more information about the Lions Club in terms of activities or time commitments, etc., check out the Lions Clubs website, www.lionsclubs.org, and feel free to give Ted Handrick a call at 920-434-0209. Hope to see many of you on March 28.

Group creating relationships between Hobart and tribe

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A grass-roots group with Oneida Tribal members and citizens from the Village of Hobart are working to put the perceived riff between community members to bed.

The Good Will Neighbors formed about a year ago after group co-founder Florence Banaszak grew tired of hearing about animosity between tribal members and Hobart residents that she just didn't see.

"It seems they make it look like people are at odds with one another and we wanted to look for positive things, things we could work on, and prove that we do get along, The people get along, it's the governments that have the problems," said Banaszak.

The group gathers the first Wednesday of every month and touches on topics that members of both communities can relate to.

"We try to find areas that most people have a common interest and try to work on the positives instead of things that divide us," Banaszak said.

The group started at the home where preliminary meetings were held to develop the goals and objectives of the group. They then moved to the Oneida Library.

"(We want) to create and develop educational and social opportunities, or interactions, that would promote a better understanding and cooperation between the members of the Oneida Tribe and the citizens of Hobart," Banaszak added.

The noontime meetings usually last about an hour but interaction after is promoted.

"People are encouraged to bring a lunch and socialize after the gathering. Talk and eat with one another. If you get to know someone on a personal level it will be hard to be angry with them or at odds with them," said Banaszak.

The mainly positive leaning group did have a contentious meeting last month when a petition against the Oneida Seven Generation's waste to energy project along with a boycott of tribal businesses was circulated. It was even signed by tribal members thinking it was a sign-in sheet. The meeting featured tribal chairman Ed Delgado and Hobart's Director of Community Development and Tribal Affairs Elaine Willman.

The petition caused many tribal members to call into question the purpose of the group. The petition owner did apologize and stated it wasn't meant to be circulated during the meeting.

Banaszak does realize that some may want to delve into government issues but she feels it's not the groups purpose or duty to address them.

"We are aware that some people want to get into the political issues, we feel that it should be taken care of by the governments," she said. "We want to stay away from the political side of things. When you get to that level things are more separated. We're just looking for anything that people have in common."

The group has two more meetings scheduled before they take a break for the summer and will review if they want to continue. Banaszak

Native American inmates challenging tobacco ban

By Dirk Lamers
Associated Press

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) _ A Lakota traditional healer said Tuesday that tobacco is an integral part of Native American religious ceremonies and denying its use is akin to taking away the Bible from a Christian.

Richard Moves Camp, testifying during a federal trial challenging a South Dakota prison policy banning its use in such ceremonies, said tobacco has been a central part of prayer for thousands of years. It's traditionally mixed with other botanicals in pipes and smoked to bring peace and harmony and connected to cloth in prayer ties that are burned in fires as a symbol of offering, he said.

Inmates Blaine Brings Plenty and Clayton Creek, members of prison-based Native American Council of Tribes, filed the suit in December 2009 against prison warden Doug Weber, corrections secretary Dennis Kaemingk and attorney general Marty Jackley.

James Moore, the officials' attorney, said ceremonial tobacco inside the state penitentiary was becoming increasingly abused and inmates had been caught separating it from their pipe mixtures.

``That hasn't been done," Moore said. ``All that is limited is what can be smoked in it."

The state prison system went tobacco-free in 2000 but made an exception for tobacco used in Native American ceremonies. But in an October 2009 letter eliminating that exemption, Weber said tobacco was being sold or bartered to other inmates.

``Sometimes, the prison gangs are pressuring the inmates to sell their tobacco instead of using it for spiritual reasons," Weber wrote.

Other states, including Nevada and New Mexico, have prison smoking bans but allow Native Americans to use tobacco during religious ceremonies.

Moore said that South Dakota's policy change followed more than 10 years of conversations with tribal elders and traditional healers, some of whom perform pipe ceremonies without tobacco.

He said there was no rush to judgment, and South Dakota's corrections department has fairly liberal policies regarding Native American religious practices that support sweat lodges, pipe ceremonies, drum music, prayer ties and powwows.

``This is something that's ingrained into the culture of the institution," Moore said.

Brings Plenty and Moore in their suit said the policy change violates their U.S. Constitutional rights ensuring that no prisoner be penalized or discriminated against solely on their religious beliefs or practices.

Their attorney Pamela Bollweg, said prison officials have to show there's a compelling interest in limiting access, and even if there is a compelling interest they have to use the least restrictive alternative.

Creek, a Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe member who's been imprisoned since 1990, said he takes his role as a pipe carrier very seriously.

He said tobacco is sometimes mixed with other botanicals in Native American ceremonies, but it is always part of the tradition.

From 1A/Good Will Neighbors

hopes it does but admits commitments are needed before moving ahead with a fall gathering schedule.

"We hope it does continue. There are so many things that could bring us together so we can't stop now," she said.

Banaszak has lived here for the last 34 years and hopes that this group can put a damper on this perceived stressed relationship.

"We have had many neighbors that were Oneida. I didn't even think about it that way, they were just neighbors," she said. "It just has been the last few years that this Oneida-Hobart thing has come up. It causes a break in the relationship."

"We want to build relationships and provide the opportunity for those relationships to grow."

The next Good Will Neighbors gathering is scheduled for April 4 at the Ridgeview Plaza, Suite 4 on West Mason Street at 12 p.m. The next month's meeting is scheduled for May 2.

Neville Public Museum to require proof of Brown County residency

Wednesday evening events free admission

Green Bay, WI — As of April 4, 2012, Neville Public Museum visitors will be required to show proof of Brown County residency in order to receive free admission on Wednesday evenings from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"As a department of Brown County, we're so grateful to receive the financial support of taxpayers who call our county home. This change to our admissions policy gives us the chance to still offer free admission for county taxpayers and their families each Wednesday night while at the same time allowing us to continue generating important operating dollars from patrons visiting the museum from other parts of the state and beyond," said Museum Director Rolf Johnson.

Brown County tax levy helps support general museum operations. The Neville Public Museum Foundation, through fundraising and sponsorship activities, funds all of the museum's exhibits and educational programs.

Memorial for 'Patty' held at Airport Rd Child Care

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

On Monday, March 26 family, friends, students, and co-workers of Patty Lilly gathered at the Oneida Child Care Center on Airport Road to remember the center's teacher.

Lilly recently passed away and served as a teacher at the child care for many years.

Attendees gathered for a prayer outside the building and then released balloons that had personal messages made out to Lilly written on them.

The Sacred Nama'o return to the Menominee Nation

Keshena, WI – On Wednesday, March 21, 2012, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources delivered 32 Sturgeon, as part of the ongoing effort to return the sacred Sturgeon to their ancestral spawning grounds located on the Wolf River at Keshena Falls, Keshena WI. The Sturgeon were harvested from on the Wolf River, near Shawano area and transported to the release site at Chickeney Creek, near the Keshena Falls. The Sturgeon spawning season does not usually occur in Wisconsin until mid-April. However, the unseasonably warm weather has resulted in an earlier spawning season for 2012.

The 2012 Spring transfer is just one of a ten year process, which will return over 100 Sturgeon annually to the Wolf River on the Menominee Indian Reservation. During this transfer, the DNR carefully deposited the diverse population that ranged in size, age, and sex. Of this population, the largest to be delivered was a female measuring 74.1 inches and weighing over 150 lbs. All sturgeon were equipped with identification tags, however six Sturgeon were implanted with ten-year sonic tags. The sonic tags allow fish biologists to track the migration patterns of the sturgeon. Many of the sturgeon will likely pass through the dams to the south, but the goal is to create a sustaining population on the Menominee Reservation.

To that end, the Tribe has fishing regulations established that prohibit any person from harvesting Sturgeon on the Wolf River. Enrolled Menominee's may only harvest sturgeon on Legend Lake, which is separated from the Wolf River by an impoundment. The penalty for illegal harvest of Sturgeon on any water body, with the exception of Legend Lake, is punishable by a $1,000 fine.

The Sturgeon is an aboriginal source of sustenance and spirituality for the Menominee people and a clan symbol of the Tribe. The annual spring return of the sturgeon symbolizes the return to abundance to the Menominee, after the long hard winter. Historically, when the water is high from the ice thaw, the sturgeon are called home by the sound of the drum beat, which is made from a large circular underwater rock formation near Keshena Falls, states Tribal Historian, David "Nahwahquaw" Grignon. These essential elements of Menominee culture were halted for 100 years following the construction of the 1892 dam at Shawano, and later by the 1926 Dam at Balsam Row. In 1992, the Menominee people revived the sturgeon ceremonies with the assistance of the DNR.

Parents Advised to Slow Down, Use Caution in Filing FAFSA

MADISON – Parents looking to file a FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) form through the free federal FAFSA website are advised to double-check that they are actually on the government site before submitting personal information.

The free federal site is www.fafsa.ed.gov.

Searching for "FAFSA" through a search engine like Google may lead parents to a third-party website rather than the federal domain. There are a number of third-party sites that provide consultation and advice on student aid applications, and their website addresses are similar to the federal site's address. While you may be able to file the form through those websites, their services are not free and you may not be able to confirm the safety of your submitted information.

For safety tips and advice from Wisconsin's Office of Privacy Protection on filing out FAFSA forms online, read the full story on the Consumer Alert page: http://datcp.wi.gov/Consumer/Consumer_Alerts/

The Many Sides of Oneida

The Renewal Side

As we move into our spring time of the year I ask everyone to recognize the opportunity to renew. Renew our roles and responsibilities to Mother Earth and all she offers us. We are of the Earth and need to balance what we use with what we give. If we take from our surroundings, we need to give back. This includes our relationship with each other as people.

Once again on March 16th we gave recognition to our Roles and Responsibilities as many participated in the Tobacco burning for the fish returning to Duck Creek. The event at Pamperin Park was well attended and as always very heartfelt. Leander Danforth spoke to us all about our roles in maintaining our culture, language,and responsibilities to nature. Jerry Hill gave us a understanding of the events that led to us having the fishing rights we now enjoy, Councilwomen Melinda Danforth and her family blessed us with a song and the weather was absolutely beautiful for the whole event. Yawʌ́ko to everyone that was able to attend as well as Mike Metoxen and Rich Figueroa for your dedication to organizing this event.

The Government Side

On the governmental side of things I would like to update the membership of some activities I have been involved in recently. There was much activity surrounding the mining issues in Wisconsin and I am very pleased to say we have been able to stop the actions of a group that was attempting to change the state mining laws. As a united voice, the tribes of Wisconsin along with many concerned individuals and organized groups we were able to stop the movement of change to mining laws we felt would have a negative impact on the environment throughout the state. We need to keep our resources of water, air, and land safe. It was good to see such collaboration of the people to stand up and protect our Mother Earth. We should always seek consensus.

I have recently talked with many representatives from the federal, state and local governments as well as tribal representatives from around the region and it seems to be a common factor that is being recognized by most and that is "we must collaborate, if we are to move forward on many of the issues we face." This will require a government to government view by all parties involved. This has been an element we all have known for quite some time and I truly believe it is time for us to have these conversation that are needed to bring us to a better understanding of the changes we are all facing and the need for us to come to one mind. There are many details to the everyday operation of the vice chair's office but I don't want to bore you with them, I do however want to encourage you all to continue your positive efforts of making our future a better place to be, just like you have for generations.

The Community Side

On the topic of the community and the organizational re organization; my office has been able to have 12 community meetings in the last month and we have been able to hear as well as share thoughts and theories on how to improve areas within the corporate side of the organization in order to create efficiencies. A special Yawʌ́ko to Melanie Burkhardt, April Skenandore and Chaz Wheelock for their efforts in organizing and recording details to these meetings. Throughout the gatherings the most commonly voiced opinions were about accountability, communication, leadership, system improvements, and trust. All of these areas can improve. I believe this begins and is improving within the OBC and our responsibility to improve the system we are all part of. Many times the conversations touched on the community side of our organization as well. I say this because I think this is something we need to realize more, we have both a corporate side as well as a community side to our organization. I believe the same areas need to improve, such as accountability to each other, communication to each other, leadership to our youth, and trust amongst community members.

The Economic Side

I was fortunate enough to attend the recent conference on tourism at the KI Convention Center in Green Bay and was very pleased to talk to so many people who have dedicated so much time to focusing on an industry that positively impacts us in so many ways. Yawʌ́ko to our Tourism Department for all your efforts to keep us in the spotlight. Tourism is huge in Wisconsin and we need to be part of that if we want to continue our financial growth. I hope to encourage more collaboration of the tribes through local meetings I will be attending in the near future on this subject as well as Dept of Transportation issues, Skilled Trades Training, and Housing.

The Relationship Side

A note to the young men: Treat the women as a gift

A note to the young women: Recognize yourself as a gift

Oneida Nation School Board and the endorsement of the Oneida Nation Business Committee. The high school projects were sponsored by The Society for Science and the Public. Five of the students placed in their perspective categories, four of the students won second place and one student won first place. Frederick Miller won a special award from the United States Air Force. Our students won a total of six awards! Staff from the Oneida Nation School System volunteered to be chaperones which included: Yvette Peguero, Dale Hallam and Becky Nutt. Parent volunteer chaperones were Jack and Debbie Mehojah, along with their son, Jack Jr. and Carolyn Miller. We had a wonderful time, and are very proud of our students.

The students competed with 232 other Native American Students from all over AIndian Country, which included numerous tribes in 20 states. It was an honor and an accomplishment to be there to compete. It also was a very enjoyable and educational experience for the students to meet other students from different tribal nations and for our students to realize they are capable of competing and winning awards on this national level.

Congratulations to all the students and a special thank you to the staff and administration of the Oneida Nation School System, the ONSS School Board, Oneida Business Committee, and parents and families of our students.

Public Hearing Notice

11:30 a.m. • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor - (BCCR)

April 17, 2012

Purpose:
Legislative Procedures Act

The intent of the Legislative Procedures Act (the Law) is to provide an improved lawmaking process to replace the lawmaking provisions currently found in the Administrative Procedures Act (APA). The Law also re-charters the Legislative Operating Committee's (LOC) role in the lawmaking process. The Law provides a streamlined lawmaking process, which includes:

- Fiscal Estimates. A fiscal estimate would be required for each legislative proposal, which would estimate the total fiscal year costs associated with the legislation. This would include items such as: startup costs, personnel, office, documentation costs, legislative mandates, as well as an estimate of the amount of time necessary for an individual or agency to comply with the law after implementation.
- Legislative Analysis. An analysis describing the important features of the legislation, impact to the Tribal operations, as well as the general public would also be required for each legislative proposal.
- Holding a public comment period and requiring an actual public meeting only be held when determined necessary by the LOC or OBC. Currently, public hearings are required to be held before any legislation is adopted on a permanent basis. Public meetings would now only be required to held if the LOC or OBC determines a public meeting is in the best interests of the Tribal membership. A public comment period will be noticed before any legislation is considered for adoption on a permanent basis and written comments received during this time will be considered before moving forward with the legislation.
- Creation of an Oneida Register. The LOC would be required to post agency regulations, proposed legislation and notices, and the Oneida Code of Laws in the Oneida Register.
- Notice requirements would be the responsibility of the LOC (and no longer the Tribal Secretary). TheLOCwould be required to give specific notice of all public hearings to the Tribe's managers and directors, who would be responsible for informing Tribal employees of the public hearings. The managers and directors would direct that written or oral testimony be provided by Tribal employees who have special knowledge or expertise on the subject of the public hearing. Under the current APA, notice of public hearings is the responsibility of the Tribal Secretary.
- Adoption of emergency legislation. Emergency legislation would still be able to be adopted for six months, with the option of renewing the adoption for an additional six months. A legislative analysis of the emergency legislation would now be required before it is adopted.
- Repeal of the Format for Laws. The Format for Laws would be repealed and the relevant portions of that law would be incorporated into the Legislative Procedures Act.

Public Hearing Process

I. Testimony:

A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or to the Legislative Reference Office Paralegal, Tonya Boucher, at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

Canons of Judicial Conduct Response Law

These Canons are intended to govern the conduct of Judges and Judicial Candidates under the Judiciary Act. These Canons also apply to law clerks, Judiciary staff attorneys, paralegals, court administrators, and others who are in close and constant working relationship with a Judge. The Canons establish overarching principles of judicial ethics; create a base from which all Judges are expected to strive; provide guidance and assist Judges in maintaining the highest standards of judicial and personal conduct; and establish a basis for the regulation of conduct through disciplinary measures. Specifically, the Canons require:

- A Judge to uphold and promote the independence, integrity, competence and impartiality of the Judiciary and avoid impropriety and the appearance of impropriety.
- A Judge's judicial duties to take precedence over all of the Judge's personal and extrajudicial activities, which shall be conducted in such a manner as to minimize the risk of conflicts with the obligations of judicial office.
- A Judge to avoid financial and business dealings that tend to reflect adversely on his or her impartiality or interfere with the performance of his or her judicial responsibilities.
- Judges and Judicial Candidates to affirm and display the respectful integrity and dignity of a person qualified to hold a position on the Judiciary and recommends they refrain from any political activity which might interfere with the performance of his or her judicial duties.

Tribal Environmental Response Law

The intent of the Tribal Environmental Response Law is to direct the Environmental Health and Safety Division (Division) to create a Tribal Environmental Response Program (TERP) which will address situations where the discharge or potential discharge of a hazardous substance has occurred and may have contaminated the environment. In order to regulate the identification, investigation and remediation of discharges of hazardous substances, this law:

- Requires individuals who are responsible for or aware of a discharge of a hazardous substance to notify the Division and, in most cases, to be responsible for the remedial action necessary to restore the environment to the condition it was in before the discharge occurred.
- Makes the Division responsible to:
  - o Adopt standards for environmental quality that are protective of public health and the environment. Business Committee approval of these standards is required, except when the standards are consistent with federal standards.
  - o Conduct investigations of sites and facilities that are, or are suspected of being, contaminated from the discharge of a hazardous substance.
  - o Identify parties that are responsible for the clean-up of contaminated sites and facilities.
  - o Require appropriate remedial actions be taken when contaminated sites and facilities are identified.

Judges: Collaboration needed on voting maps

MADISON, Wis. (AP) _ A federal court is asking the parties in a lawsuit over two Milwaukee voting districts to collaborate in drawing new boundaries.

At issue is two districts that a panel of federal judges ruled last week violates the Voting Rights Act. The judges agreed with plaintiffs who said the newly drawn boundaries split up a Hispanic voting bloc, weakening their power to elect Latino candidates.

The lawsuit was filed against the state elections board.

The judges asked the Legislature to redraw the two districts but lawmakers declined. So the court is asking both parties to the lawsuit to work together and try to reach agreement by April 2. If they can't agree on a new map, they are to submit their own recommendations to the court by April 3.

Quest to preserve Ojibwe goes online

By Mila Koumpilova
St. Paul Pioneer Press

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) ~ Gerri Howard was loath to let a digital recorder capture her voice for a new kind of dictionary.

A fluent speaker of Ojibwe on Minnesota's Leech Lake Reservation, she didn't like how she sounded on playback. But the sense of urgency she and other Ojibwe speakers share about their endangered tongue prevailed.

With help from elders such as Howard, a University of Minnesota professor and students have created the first online talking dictionary of Ojibwe. The effort involved crisscrossing Minnesota and Wisconsin to record the voices of the dictionary and brainstorm entries for new-fangled concepts such as "Internet" and "school dance."

"I was glad they were doing this because our language is getting lost," said Howard. "A lot more people will be able to learn it now."

The Ojibwe People's Dictionary is part of redoubled efforts in recent years to preserve and revitalize Ojibwe, the language of some 200,000 people in the Great Lakes region, the St. Paul Pioneer Press reported.

For some time, John Nichols, a professor in the university's Department of American Indian Studies and co-author of a widely used 1995 Ojibwe dictionary, had thought about compiling an updated version.

In conversations with his department chair, historian Brenda Child, an idea was born: Why not tap digital technology to overcome the limitations of traditional print dictionaries?

In tandem with the Minnesota Historical Society, the university lined up a roughly $375,000 Clean Water, Land and Legacy Amendment grant for the project.

Going digital opened up many possibilities: Users can search definitions using both Ojibwe and English. The authors have so far compiled about 8,000 online entries, with an eventual goal of as many as 30,000. That compares to 7,000 in Nichols' "A Concise Dictionary of Minnesota Ojibwe." Most important, Childs said, "You click on a word, and you hear Ojibwe people actually speaking the language."

The dictionary also is a virtual museum of sorts, with photos, drawings and texts from the Historical Society collection complementing the entries. But the new format was also an adjustment.

Graduate student Michael Sullivan traveled to reservations in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ontario to record elders pronouncing the new entries in some of Ojibwe's nearly dozen regional dialects. He was part of a team collecting audio to complement Nichols' own extensive collection of Ojibwe field recordings. He set up audio equipment in their homes, sometimes using an iPhone to show how the new dictionary worked.

"There is a tremendous effort going on throughout Minnesota and Wisconsin to revitalize the language," said Sullivan, who grew up on a Wisconsin reservation where he says only 10 fluent speakers remain among some 5,000 residents. "We got the real stuff from the finest speakers we have left."

The university team also hosted brainstorming sessions for words to describe newer concepts, which in Ojibwe involves stringing together existing words. The Ojibwe word for Internet, for instance, literally means "electric net." A modern-day school dance is something like "at-school-they-slide-their-feet-while-they-are-dancing."

Meanwhile, Nora Livesay, a doctoral candidate in linguistics with a background in web design, became a liaison between the linguists and the web specialists at university libraries. The digital dictionary drew on a low-tech trove: hundreds of field notebooks Nichols had filled with definitions and sentences since the 1960s and an old database he maintained.

"Part of my job was expectation management and anxiety control," said Livesay.

The dictionary now features some 60,000 audio clips. The authors hope to add more words and features in coming months.

Howard, the Leech Lake elder, said she is glad she relented about lending her voice to the effort, along with friend Leona Wakonabo. The pair work at an Ojibwe immersion school where teachers have shared the new tool with students and parents, said Howard: "We think that's wonderful."

Indian tribe worries pipeline will disturb graves

By Katie Fretland
Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) _ As President Barack Obama pushes to fast-track an oil pipeline from Oklahoma south to the Gulf Coast, an American Indian tribe that calls the oil hub home worries the route might disrupt sacred sites holding the unmarked graves of their ancestors.

Sac and Fox Nation Chief George Thurman plans to voice his concerns this week in Washington. He said he fears workers placing the 485-mile Keystone XL pipeline that would run from Cushing to refineries on Texas' Gulf Coast could disturb holy ground without consideration of the tribe. He and another tribe member say the pipeline's route travels through areas where unmarked graves are likely buried.

Obama announced last week in Oklahoma that he was directing federal agencies to expedite the southern segment of the Keystone XL line, removing a critical bottleneck in the country's oil transportation system.

Shawn Howard, a spokesman for TransCanada, the Calgary-based Keystone pipeline operator, said the company works closely with Indian tribes whenever its operations have a potential impact on their lands. TransCanada has archaeologists and other experts to help identify and avoid areas of concern, he said.

Work stops immediately when artifacts or important materials are discovered, said Terry Cunha, manager of stakeholder relations for Keystone Pipeline System.

``We would then work with the tribe to ensure that the materials are handled properly and that we agree on a plan to move forward before work resumes," Cunha said.

According to a report released by TransCanada, a survey of the project found 70 archaeological sites, 18 individual artifacts and 34 historic structures in the area where the pipeline will be built in Oklahoma. The numbers were first reported by The Oklahoma Daily.

Seven of the sites met criteria to be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places, and TransCanada agreed to bypass six of them, said Oklahoma Historical Society Director Bob Blackburn. The site that will be partially destroyed is a Works Progress Administration drainage ditch built around the 1930s, he said. Details about the other sites and whether any Indian graves were included were not immediately known.

Blackburn said the federal government identified tribes, including the Sac and Fox Nation, that may be affected by the pipeline and asked for input. None of the tribes in Oklahoma corresponded with the Historical Society or indicated there were potential problems, he said.

Thurman said he met Obama briefly Thursday near Cushing but he was not given enough time to raise the issue of unmarked graves. He said he was disappointed the pipeline was put on a fast-track without knowing whether sacred sites would lie in its way.

White House regional spokeswoman Caroline Hughes declined to comment and referred questions to the Interior Department.

In a statement, department spokesman Adam Fetcher said all permitting activity on the project will fully comply with the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act.

``If any construction is determined likely to result in the excavation of Native American human remains, the permitting agency will consult with potentially affiliated tribes and tribes recognized as having lands in the project area and complete a plan of action that the agency will take should an encounter with a tribal grave take place," the statement read.

During a recent tour of the nation, Massey said a number of tribal ancestors are buried in marked cemeteries but there are many other unmarked sites. At times, tribal members were buried along creek beds and generations later, it's possible that there are no longer remains at a particular location.

``Even if nothing is left, it's still a sacred site," she said.

The concern over whether the pipeline route could run through sacred Indian grounds has prompted some activists to protest its construction.

``We will walk the whole route, Cushing to the Red River, to make sure they don't destroy an Indian grave," said Fannie Bates, who is of Cherokee descent and from Oklahoma City.

How the March of Dimes helped the Ford-Gustafson family

Helping Simon

From the Parents Perspective

Special to Kalihwisaks

It all began with a 911 call. On Sunday, February 28th 2010 our son Simon was born, prematurely at 26 weeks and weighing at 1 pound 15 ounces and a mere 13 inches long. He had difficulty from the beginning with feeding issues. He couldn't coordinate his eating with swallowing and breathing at the same time. This caused Simon to stop breathing and stop his oxygen flow to his intestines and other organs. When he was four days old he needed an emergency surgery to repair a hole in his bowel/intestinal area. The surgery was a success. We thought that was the last of surgeries for Simon. But as days and weeks went on he still had issues with feeding and digesting his food and breathing. After 7 weeks at Aurora Hospital in Green Bay we were transferred to Children's Hospital of Milwaukee. From there Simon was put on TPN, a protein in his IV to help get nutrients. Many children never get off of TPN, but luckily Simon eventually did. Simon had many more surgeries in Milwaukee for his stomach, intestines and hernia's.

At Children's Hospital we met the March of Dimes representative, Melissa Hages, who was very kind and listened to us and checked up on Simon. Through the 88 days we were in Milwaukee the March Of Dimes helped us get through the challenging days by having activities to take our mind off of what was going on with Simon. They provided us materials for tummy blankets, onesies, and all the supplies for scrapbooking. They had informational videos to watch and just to talk with other families. They even provided a lunch for mother's day and for father's day and made us personal cards with our child's footprint. Melissa along with nursing staff would also take random photos of Simon and place them at his bedside for us. The March of Dimes really helps families get through this challenging time.

So in return we decided to become a March of Dimes ambassador family. We are strongly committed in being a part of any event that involves this organization. We want to get the word out that the money raised for the March of Dimes goes to fund the latest technology and hopefully one day there won't be the word "premature". All babies deserve a chance in life. With the support of the March of Dimes Simon is now a Children's Hospital Champion and a healthy 2 year old boy.

We can't thank the March of Dimes enough for the dedication to help every baby be a champion.

A march for babies event is set for Saturday, April 28, 2012 in Green Bay.

NY Mohawk: Move toxic GM dump from tribal lands

By Michael Virtanenl
Associated Press

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) _ Larry Thompson sits high in his tractor cab and drives to a chain-link fence along his family property on the Mohawk Indians' Akwesasne Reservation, where they fished, grew vegetables and played as children. He points to a toxic landfill about 30 feet away, stretching toward the St. Lawrence River.

``The whole hill,'' he says evenly. ``Our gardens were right here, where that sign is.''

Thompson's family put up the sign 20 years ago, warning: ``PCBs, danger area.''

The rural landscape, with houses scattered among fields and trees and along the river, is part of ancestral tribal homelands that once extended 125 miles south to the Mohawk River. The reservation, about 21 square miles on the U.S. and Canadian sides of the St. Lawrence, is home to about 16,000 people.

Immediately upstream is a shuttered General Motors factory, now a federal Superfund site where tons of toxic waste have been removed. Tons more remain, including the 12-acre landfill that has been capped with a layer of clay and grass and declared safe, no longer a threat.

PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls _ considered probable carcinogens _ are the main contaminant, dumped as sludge after use as electrical equipment coolants. Studies 20 years ago documented higher than normal PCB levels in the breast milk of Akwesasne nursing mothers and more recently in adolescents; the toxins persist in human tissue for years. High levels have been found in St. Lawrence River turtles and fish, which the state cautions against eating.

``There's no question there's a legacy of PCB contamination in this area,'' said Judith Enck, regional administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency and a former top environmental official for New York. ``And the Mohawks have raised legitimate concerns for decades.''

Despite government assurances that immediate health and environmental hazards are gone, anger and fear persist over what some people here see as a long-running attack on their land, their lives and even their sovereignty. Thompson's wife, Dana Leigh, calls it environmental genocide and a continuation of George Washington's 1779 order to colonial troops to lay waste to their settlements.

Among 89 polluted ex-GM industrial locations around the country, the 270-acre site at Massena is getting the largest single share, about $121 million, of the $773 million cleanup budget established in bankruptcy court last year. The new, post-bankruptcy General Motors is no longer legally liable, but Thompson says the company, which posted 2011 net income of $7.6 billion, should pay for a full cleanup and remove the landfill.

``The fact that it's still there, people are frustrated about it,'' said Ken Jock, director of the St. Regis Mohawk Tribe's environmental division. ``It seemed like it's a commonsense thing. When you dump your waste in the back, you clean up your mess.''

Thompson, 57, drove his backhoe last summer through the fence and began digging up the landfill himself. The former steelworker, who was arrested and spent four days in jail, claims the Superfund site is actually on Mohawk land that was never legally ceded. His initial court appearances drew crowds of supporters.

``I hold the federal government responsible, New York state responsible, Chevrolet responsible,'' Thompson said. ``As it is, they made a deal. They think that's over with? I don't think so.''

He and his wife, who have three children and 13 grandchildren, said they have a responsibility to look ahead for the welfare of future generations.

Thompson is free on bond and faces trial, probably this fall, on a felony count of criminal mischief and misdemeanor charges of reckless endangerment.

Prosecutors declined to comment.

``The real crime that's been committed here is by General Motors,'' said James Ransom, former St. Regis Mohawk chief. He said the issue is money _ and everyone at Akwesasne agrees with Thompson. ``The United States basically let them shed their toxic assets. Communities like ours pay the price for that.''

The tribal council said it doesn't condone what Thompson did but understands his aggravation.

Altogether 82, or almost 5 percent, of federal Superfund sites designated for priority treatment nationally are classified as ``Native American Interest,'' including Massena and four others in New York.

GM made aluminum cylinder heads here starting in 1958, polluting the land and water with PCBs, heavy metals and other toxics. It closed in 2009. The site was designated a federal Superfund priority in 1984, with contamination in two disposal areas, the industrial landfill and four lagoons.

The federal government says it has eliminated the ``immediate exposure pathways'' of contaminants leaking into the river and groundwater. After river dredging, groundwater containment and waste removal, the cleanup agreement calls for leaving the landfill as it is. Monitoring and other cleanup work continue.

``We believe that the 12-acre landfill has been contained and that it does not pose a threat to public health and the environment,'' said EPA's Enck.

But Dr. David Carpenter, director of the Institute for Health and Environment at the State University at Albany, said the landfill poses a health threat because of PCB air contamination.

``In fact landfills are not secure,'' Carpenter said. ``PCBs volatilize and escape into the air. I'd be very much in favor of digging it up. It should be moved totally away from the reservation.''

Lawrence and its tributaries this summer for PCBs and other contaminants, duplicating a major study in 1988 that found high levels of PCBs in fish.

``We expect that levels will be lower,'' Jock said. ``But we aren't sure about how much or whether we're going to get to safe levels for Mohawks to consume.''

EHSD Hosts Third Canine Obedience Class

The goal of the Oneida Pet Safety Program is to prevent dog bites and the spread of rabies in humans. There are three components to the program; 1) Vaccines, spaying, and neutering pets, 2) animal care- food, water, and shelter, and 3) Canine behavior.

Canine Obedience Class Starts in April

Last year, EHSD held two very successful Canine Obedience Classes. Participants were very happy with the classes, and the pets did great. We will have another class in April.

Some of the comments from past class participants include;

"My dog listens better and gets along with other dogs better."

"Both our dogs are doing better. But I think it's because I learned what to do."

"I know how to handle certain situations better now. I know what to do if we get a different dog too."

"I have learned a more effective way to train my dog and to continue training him."

The Instructor

The Instructor for this class will be Nikki Coopman, Owner and Operator of K-9 Creations Country Resort, located in Oconto Falls, WI. Ms. Coopman is certified as a Canine Trainer by the Animal Behavior College. She also serves as an Animal Control Officer for the Towns of Morgan and Oconto Falls. The instructor will use positive reinforcement as the primary strategy with the dogs in class.

WHEN: April 9, 2012- May 3, 2012, meets twice weekly

TO REGISTER: Contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571.

ADULT CLASS: 1 hour, $25.00

PUPPY CLASS: 30 minutes, $10.00

Oneida Tribal members that attend every class will be eligible for a $10 or $25 Oneida retail card.

Some Things to Consider;

1. ABSOLUTELY NO FEMALE DOGS IN HEAT or AGGRESSIVE dogs will be accepted in the class. This determination will be made by the certified trainer.
2. All dogs must be current on their vaccines. Bringing copies of vaccination records to the pre meeting will be required. Bordetella (kennel cough) innoculation will also be required before any dog is permitted into the obedience class.
3. Participants MUST attend a PRE MEETING and pay the registration fee at that time (cash only) to save their spot in the class. Details for this pre-meeting will be determined soon.

For more information or to sign up, contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571. Depending on the interest level, more classes could be added this spring. EHSD looks forward to working with you and your pet.

Wooden and bone rattle lead (Pb) hazard

Rattles made of wood and bone and sold by the Oneida Museum have been found to contain lead shot. Lead is a well-known hazard that was banned in 1978 from paint, products marketed to children, and in dishes or cookware (CDC).

Product: Wood and bone rattles

Sold by: Oneida Nation Museum

Hazard: "Rattle" is produced by loose lead shot in the bone section.

Incidents/Injuries: Report of fine black dust from lead shot, leaking from the bone rattle section onto the wooden handle

Remedy: In the short term, immediately take the rattles away from children and place in a zip lock bag. Store the bag in safe place until further recall notice.

Controlling Stress Though Diet

By Meredith Duchaine
UWGB Dietetic Intern

April is Stress Awareness month. Everyone experiences a certain amount of stress on a regular basis. The amount and type of stress a person goes through on a daily basis can vary greatly from person to person. Regardless, it is important to learn how to deal with daily stress in order to keep ourselves healthy. Letting stress build up routinely can put a person at greater risk for issues such as heart disease, stroke, diabetes, a weakened immune system, digestive problems, and/or sleep disturbances. One way of dealing with stress is through exercise. Just thirty minutes or more of exercise a day can provide some stress relief. Besides exercise, diet can play an important role in both stress prevention and management.

There are a few general dietary guidelines that can help to prevent stress from spiraling out of control. The first recommendation is to eat five to six small frequent meals throughout the day. Eating frequently is a way to maintain energy levels in the body and support mental functions. Meals should be balanced, with three or more food groups (fruits, vegetables, proteins, grains, dairy) represented at every meal. The next recommendation is to keep the amount of caffeine and alcohol in your diet to a minimum. Too much caffeine can contribute to anxiety, insomnia, and/or restlessness, all of which negatively impact stress levels. Excessive alcohol can also disrupt sleep patterns, leading to increased stress.

Sometimes stress builds up no matter what you do to prevent it. In these highly stressful situations, the body loses excessive amounts of important nutrients. The key nutrients that are lost during stress include B vitamins, Vitamin C, Zinc, and calcium. Failing to replace these lost nutrients can result in worsening of stress symptoms. The optimal way to replenish the body is to consume foods rich in these nutrients. Some people may opt to take vitamin and mineral supplements. However, supplements should not replace foods rich in nutrients, because they are not always absorbed as well in the body. If you do choose to take vitamin and mineral supplements, make sure you take them in addition to consuming food sources of these nutrients.

B vitamins play a major role in keeping the nervous system functioning. Low levels of B vitamins in the body may result in the stress symptoms of depression, anxiety and/or irritability. Excellent sources of B vitamins can be found in yeast, wheat germ, dried fruits, beans, broccoli, sunflower seeds, lentils, peanuts, and nuts.

Vitamin C is neither made nor stored in the body. This means that it must be obtained through the food that we eat. According to WebMd, Vitamin C is beneficial to those who have a weakened immune system caused by stress. Most people probably think of oranges when they think of vitamin C. Oranges are a good source of vitamin C, along with strawberries, papaya, grapefruit, kiwifruit, and cantaloupe. But besides fruits, vegetables including broccoli, bell peppers, and brussel sprouts are vitamin C rich sources.

Zinc is another important mineral in keeping the immune system strong. Additionally, zinc promotes wound healing, assists the pancreas in producing insulin needed to control blood sugars, and helps protect against cancer causing free radicals in the body. The top foods to choose with the highest amounts of zinc include liver, venison, beef, lamb, and spelt. Alternatively, if you are not a meat eater, reach for some sesame seeds, pumpkins seeds, oats, or yogurt.

Calcium plays multiple important roles in the body. Besides building bones and teeth, calcium is required for proper heart and nerve functions. Most people think about dairy (yogurt, milk, and cheese) as being the best calcium sources. But dairy is not the only way to get a good source of calcium. Tofu, sesame seeds, collard greens, spinach, turnip greens, and scallops are all considered to be excellent sources of calcium.

Following a nutritious, well balanced diet can help keep the body healthy and stress levels under control. When stress does build up too much, important nutrients including B vitamins, vitamin C, zinc and calcium are lost. So the next time you are feeling stressed, add a handful of nuts to nonfat yogurt, top a side salad with nuts and berries, or grab a small piece of cheese with your favorite dried fruit

Oneida Nation Employee Assistance Program

Just what is it, anyway?

By Carol Bauman
ONEAP Counselor

Employee Assistance programs are just that, programs to assist employees by helping to identify what issues or challenges an employee may face in performing their duties to the best of their abilities. There is a national EAP organization called EAPA which holds a large conference every year in a major city in the United States and a worldwide organization as well. When I began work for ONEAP in 1995, I was pretty surprised that an Employee Assistance Program was such a big deal…nation and worldwide! Bob Fresen, Director of ONEAP sent me to two conferences – one is Seattle and one in New Orleans before Katrina. I really came to appreciate the foresight of the Oneida Business Committee in 1989 to establish our own internal employee assistance program.

At that time, according to BC Resolution 06-23-89B "the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin recognizes the severity of Alcohol and Drug Abuse on the Oneida Reservation and within the Tribal workforce, and WHEREAS, the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin has recognized the need for an Employee Assistance Program to reduce problems in workforce and to retain valuable employees." (Emphasis added).

So how do we 'retain valuable employees'? First and foremost, we listen. We listen without judgment, with the intent to understand and to discover what sort of solution an employee might be seeking. Some of the issues that employees struggle with have to do with coworkers and supervisors. There are personality conflicts, perceptions of favoritism, struggling with organizational change and just wanting to get along and do one's job. Often times, just getting it off one's chest helps. Bob and I act as sounding boards for employees to bounce possible solutions around to find one appropriate and doable at their worksite.

When an employee comes to ONEAP, we conduct an assessment to determine if there are other deeper issues at play. There can be depression, anxiety, addiction, marital troubles, financial troubles, a family member who is sick, a child having problems at school, personal goals not met like finishing school, and others that can influence one's job performance.

Beyond the assessment, we provide counseling and/or referral to an appropriate agency for additional help. As you learned in last week's article, we do not have the power to grant paid short-term leaves. We can, with the signed consent of release of information, recommend to a supervisor that a few days be given off, shifts changed, location changed. These are, recommendations only. The supervisor must decide what is best for his/her area.

In addition to one-on-one counseling to all employees and their families, ONEAP also offers training. There is a quarterly training led by Bob Fresen for supervisors on handling the difficult employee. Any department, (and several have) can ask for training on a specific subject and have Bob or I attend a staff meeting or any time amount required by the supervisor. These have included How to Handle Difficult Customers, Reflective Listening, How Different Personalities Get Along, Stress Reduction, even Oneida Culture and Language. (Carol does this C & L.)

Under the Drug and Alcohol Free Workplace policy, ONEAP has been designated to meet with every employee with a positive test and develop a Return to Work Agreement that is signed by the employee, their supervisor and the EAP Counselor. ONEAP staff helped to develop the DAFWP again, with the INTENT TO RETAIN VALUABLE EMPLOYEES. I have heard that the general impression among the workforce that the DAFWP exists as a way to fire someone. If you have read it, it is at this time, a 3 strike policy meaning that only if an employee has been referred twice already and comes up with a positive result the third time is termination possible. Oneida Nation has taken a different course from most businesses and other tribal casinos in that the DAFWP IS a 3 strike policy. Every other entity fires the person on the spot the first time. Alcoholism and drug addiction are diseases for which there is help. Job performance is not only affected, but home life as well. Again, the Nation has the foresight to look at the entire community and not just the workforce.

There are a number of CDL drivers working for the tribe who fall under the federal Department of Transportation policy on substance abuse. Both Bob and I are qualified Substance Abuse Professionals as described by DOT regulations. This means that if one of the drivers test positive, they won't have to pay anywhere from $600 to $1200 for SAP services to retain their job. They can come to ONEAP.

Whether it is on a one-to-one basis, trainings, or in meetings, both Bob and I advocate for a healthy workforce, reduced stress in the workplace, humane policies and procedures designed to recognize and appreciate our human resource as spoken in The Thanksgiving Address that "Our Ways" hold up. First, we recognize The People and in acknowledging the people, we acknowledge our family, the strengths and gifts that each person has been given to share with one another and how we as a community grow together.

You can contact Bob Fresen, Director at 490-3706 or bfresen@oneidanation.org and Carol Bauman, EAP Counselor at 490-3716 or cbauman@oneidanation.org.

Blackjacks feature Oneida QB

By Sherrole Benton
Special to the Kalihwisaks

Oneida athletes make all the difference to this semi-pro football team, according to Larry Names, head coach of the Green Bay BlackJacks. He expects more out of his team this season in the May-July schedule of the Northern Lights Football League (NLFL).

Assistant Head Coach David Goheen said they have a good roster this year.

"We have some players from small colleges, and players from the Green Bay West High School. They got talent and they're coachable," Goheen said. "I can see this team going far."

Among the Oneida athletes on the team: Jason Laluzerne (QB), Robert Danforth, Roland Christjohn, Tracey Stevens, Dylan Benton, Tyler Laluzerne, and Tony Young. So far, there are 48 players on the Blackjacks roster. Coach Names is still scouting for 6 to 8 offensive line players.

"I really think the Oneida athletes are going to make this team a better team this year," Coach Names said. "We have the talent to have a championship season and take the NLFL title for 2012."

The BlackJacks are entering their fourth season this year. Other teams in the NLFL are the Appleton Knights, UP Artic Blast, Milwaukee County Renegades, and Titletown Muskies.

The first game is Saturday, May 5 against the Green Bay Gladiators at the Lombardi Middle School in Green Bay, WI. Find the "Green Bay BlackJacks Football Club" on Facebook for more information.

The NLFL is a semi-pro football league based out of Appleton/Green Bay with teams from Milwaukee, WI to Powers, MI (Upper). The season starts off the first Saturday in May and runs through July. What makes the NLFL unique is that it's a league run by its teams, for its teams. The league prides itself on creating a cooperative environment between all member teams to promote the great sport of football. For more information about the Northern Lights Football League and its member teams, please visit www.nlfl.homestead.com.

No-name North Dakota? At least for NCAA tournament

By Dave Campbell and Dave Kolpack
Associated Press

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) _ This is the time of the year when a Gopher will take on a Terrier, a Greyhound can get beat by an inanimate object like a Buckeye and there are more Lions, Tigers and Wildcats loose than any local zoo would know what to do with.

One source of the immense national interest in major college sports lies in the identity of the schools themselves, right down to the nickname.

But as the University of North Dakota starts the NCAA Division I men's hockey tournament this weekend, the jerseys will look a little bare. The NCAA ban of the Fighting Sioux nickname and logo _ deemed ``hostile and abusive" by the NCAA _ has officially taken effect despite years of defiance and lingering legal challenges from proud supporters.

That means North Dakota will take the ice in St. Paul, Minn., for its West Regional semifinal game against Western Michigan as, well, North Dakota. The team will don new jerseys without the nickname or the logo for the first time Saturday afternoon. Same for the uniforms of the cheerleaders and band members, too.

``It's sad that we don't get to wear it, but at the same we're trying to win a hockey game against Western Michigan," said captain Mario Lamoureux, the only North Dakota native on the roster. ``If anyone's focus is on the jersey or what we have to wear, they should change that right away."

UND ordered 30 new sets of jerseys and socks in each of their three color schemes _ white, green and black _ at a cost of $21,000, said Patrick Swanson, the team's director of operations.

The NCAA in 2005 told North Dakota and more than a dozen other schools with American Indian nicknames or logos that to avoid sanctions, they needed to change or obtain permission from local tribes to keep them. Most switched, though some like the Florida State Seminoles and the Central Michigan Chippewas received tribal permission.

North Dakota has put up quite a fight.

The state passed a law a year ago requiring the school's sports teams to use the nickname and logo, which depicts the profile of an American Indian warrior. That was repealed eight months later and then revived in a referendum campaign that fetched more than 17,000 signatures. The referendum is scheduled for June, when voters will decide whether the law should be kept or repealed. The law is opposed by the university, the state's board of higher education and local politicians, who are ready to put the Fighting Sioux conflict in the past.

Even with the law's fate still up in the air, the NCAA ban means no use of the nickname or logo in postseason play, or else UND would forfeit those games.

University leaders have expressed concern that the Big Sky Conference, which has accepted North Dakota for its sports other than hockey, will un-invite UND if the nickname controversy lingers. On a smaller scale,

Marc Ryan, the associate athletic director in charge of football scheduling for Minnesota, said it's difficult to speculate about whether the Gophers would have faced North Dakota in recent years had the Fighting Sioux nickname been previously dropped.

So the teams themselves have tried to keep their focus on the ice or the court or the field.

``I just stressed to them the right thing is going to happen in the end. It shouldn't affect us right now," men's basketball coach Brian Jones said earlier this month. ``They are good young people and care about one another. What they care about is staying together and winning basketball games. As I told them, `A mascot or a logo never scored a point or got a rebound, got a steal or won a game.'"

It is a source of sentiment and pride, though, one of the reasons for all the fuss. North Dakota's teams were known as the Flickertails until adopting the Fighting Sioux in 1930 after a student newspaper campaign. There are no plans yet to introduce a new one.

Parise, though, echoed the growing sentiment of many supporters of the Fighting Sioux, that the nickname itself is not more important than the success of the teams.

Just five hours away from the UND campus, the Xcel Energy Center arena is sure to be filled with UND fans this weekend. On the last word of ``Star Spangled Banner," they'll yell ``Sioux!" instead of ``brave," a long-held tradition at UND games. They'll be wearing those Fighting Sioux jerseys, too.

``I will be wearing mine," said Larry Bellerud, from Fargo, the state's largest city. ``I don't want to see it go, but I'm also realistic about it. In the long run, it's just a name."

Sexual abuse is not the victim's fault

April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month

Sexual abuse often begins as a secret; it is often kept a secret due to feelings of fear, guilt or shame. People who have been sexually abused are not to blame; the abuser is always responsible for the abusive behavior.

Grooming

"Grooming" is a term used to describe the way perpetrators of sexual abuse manipulate their victim, the victim's family or community over time.

Grooming is designed to "set up" or "prepare" the victim to be sexually abused. This can be a very sneaky and slow process. Sometimes it is hard to see when someone is being groomed until after they have been sexually abused because some grooming behavior looks like "normal" caring behavior.

Children are often taught to "respect their elders". Sometimes if an adult does something that makes a child feel uncomfortable or upset, the child will ignore how they feel and go along with the behavior because they believe that the adult is always right.

Examples of grooming include:

- Giving gifts or attention for inappropriate purposes
- Manipulating a child through threats, force or use of authority
- Openly or pretending to accidentally expose the victim to nudity, sexual material and sexual acts
- Making physical contact sexual, such as inappropriate tickling an wrestling
- Having an inappropriate and intrusive interest into children's physical and sexual development
- Having inappropriate social boundaries (e.g., telling the potential victims about their own personal problems etc.)

Responsibility

Many abusers refuse to accept responsibility for the abuse. Victims of the abuse can believe they are at fault for accepting gifts or trusting them.

Victims can also feel responsible for what might happen to their loved ones if they tell someone about the abuse. This can lead to the child/adult feeling responsible and then guilty, ashamed, full of self-blame and worthless. Abusers count on this to keep victims silent.

Secrecy

The abuser makes the child keep the secret. This abuser can threaten to harm the child or others, tell the child that nobody will believe them, or tell the child that something bad will happen to them if they tell someone. This leads to the child/adult feeling isolated, confused, frightened and having to hide a large part of themselves.

Protection and Loyalty

The abuser demands protection and loyalty from the child. Often the abuser is a trusted adult who the child loves, but they do not like the abuse.

Sometimes the child wants the abuse to stop but doesn't necessarily want the abuser to be out of their life. This can leave a person feeling very confused.

The abuser abuses his/her power over the child. This leads to the child/adult putting others first and self-last. They are afraid to tell anyone and feel hopeless and powerless.

While the term "victim" is used in this article to remind us that sexual abuse is harmful and can happen at any age, people who have experienced sexual abuse are also survivors.

OCHC gets visit from Congressmen Ribble and Price

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

US Representative for Wisconsin's 8th Congressional district Reid Ribble [R] and US Representative for Georgia's 6th Congressional District Dr. Tom Price [R] took a tour of the Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC) and met with administrators and Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Vice Chairman Greg Matson and Councilwoman Melinda Danforth on Friday, March 30.

Rep. Ribble invited Rep. Price on the tour as he serves on the Subcommittee on Health.

The tour led by Comprehensive Health Director Debra Danforth highlighted some of the OCHC strengths such as having the busiest pharmacy in Brown County.

Later, the representatives sat down with the OCHC administrators and OBC members to discuss current issues and concerns facing Native American communities. One of the concerns brought up by Councilwoman Danforth was how an upcoming Supreme Court decision on the Affordable Care Act will affect the Indian Health Care Improvement Act.

"If the repeal of the entire law comes into effect, there's a possibility Indian Health Care Improvement Act is attached to that," she said.

Rep. Price stated that her question was very timely.

"We're actually beginning to put together - if the courts strikes it down - a stop gap bill," he said, stating it should be ready to go mid-June in time

Bonin garners Teacher of the Year award

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

Craig Bonin could of taken his teaching degree to a less challenging district but his choice to educate children in the Milwaukee school district led to an honor dedicated to the city's best.

Bonin was named Teacher of the Year at the 95th Street Elementary School by the Metropolitan Milwaukee Alliance of Black School Educators, Inc (MMABSE).

MMABSE's goal is to establish a coalition of African-American educators to improve educational opportunities for African-American people. Each year they present individuals with recognition consistent with their goals.

Craig Bonin

"It's a nice feeling. It kind of makes you feel that people are recognizing what you're doing and the good you are doing," said Bonin, who teaches fifth grade. "It recognizes my ability to work with kids that may come from a challenged background to be motivated to do things that they may think they can't do. I feel that this award recognizes my ability to not just teach but work with people to do the best they can."

Due to budget cuts in the Milwaukee school system Bonin teachers the core subjects while also being his classes' physical education and art teacher.

Bonin keeps a positive attitude that he thinks translates to his students. He also believes in utilizing the Golden Rule.

"If I'm in a bad mood my students will be in a bad mood," he said. "Do what you can with what you got. I've been able to take my students, turn them into a team. I try to create a family atmosphere. We aren't going to get along every day."

Bonin has been teaching in the Milwaukee school system for the last 10 years. He grew up in Manitowoc, WI and graduated from Carroll University in Waukesha, WI and earned his Master of Education in Curriculum and Instruction from

Top BIA official resigns to take LDS Church post

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) ~ The top official for the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs is resigning to accept a full-time leadership position with The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, ending three years with the department that Interior Secretary Ken Salazar says "opened a new chapter" in U.S. relationships with American Indian tribes.

Larry Echo Hawk, the assistant secretary of the Interior for Indian Affairs, is being appointed to the Quorum of the Seventy, the Mormon Church's third-highest governing body. The announcement from the church came Saturday during its semi-annual general conference in Salt Lake City.

President Barack Obama appointed Echo Hawk, 63, to oversee the BIA in 2009.

"With Larry Echo Hawk's leadership, we have opened a new chapter in our nation to nation relationships with American Indian and Alaska Native tribal governments, accelerated the restoration of tribal homelands, improved safety in tribal communities, resolved century-old water disputes, invested in education, and reached many more milestones that are helping Indian nations pursue the future of their choosing," Salazar said in a statement.

During Echo Hawk's tenure, the Interior Department settled a $3.4 billion class-action lawsuit with Native American landowners over mismanaged royalties. The settlement reached in late 2009 is under appeal.

Salazar said he would work with Echo Hawk to ensure a smooth transition within the BIA. It was not clear who would be appointed to oversee the BIA after Echo Hawk's departure.

Echo Hawk, a member of the Pawnee Nation, was elected Idaho attorney general in 1990, the first Native American to be elected to the position in any state. He ran unsuccessfully in 1994 for Idaho governor as a Democrat.

He was a Brigham

Elder care community continues to take shape

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

As the spring season begins the construction of the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC) continues to make strides toward the facility's completion.

"So far the construction has gone very well, as good as can be expected when you're working on building a facility of this size," said Assistant Project Manager Alan King.

Currently crews are laying down concrete in the interior, forming the parking lot, and securing walls and ceiling trusses.

"There are a lot of workers all working on different areas of the building at the same time. It all comes together in the end," said King.

After the ceiling trusses are in place then the roofing and the siding can be put into place.

OBC debates housing proposal

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Debate over a proposed housing plant flared up during the Wednesday, March 28 Oneida Business Committee (OBC) meeting during the add-on's session.

Present: Chairman Ed Delgado, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council members Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Excused: Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Treasurer Tina Danforth

Councilman Vince DelaRosa asked for the OBC to approve moving ahead with the planning process for a joint venture with Homeway Homes of Peoria, Illinois to build a construction plant in Oneida that will manufacture modular houses. According to DelaRosa, the plant will create 30 jobs and would create houses for Oneida tribal citizens.

"(Homeway Homes) builds at an incredible level. These guys are highly rated," said DelaRosa who stated he's toured the Peoria plant two to three times as the OBC housing liaison.

OBC Chairman Ed Delgado said that the manufactured homes could be used to address a waiting list of 220 requests for Oneida housing, and stem the tide of non-Oneidas moving into the reservation boundaries.

"The local municipalities, Brown County, they have anticipated that by the year 2020 the population growth coming out of Green Bay, Ashwaubenon, Freedom and Seymour, 40,000 additional non-Indians coming into our area. Are we going to do something about it, or are we just going to let it happen?" said Delgado.

Other council members expressed support for the plan; however, they wanted Chief Financial Officer (CFO) Larry Barton to look into the proposal first.

"I have yet to see a project plan, and the contract to be approved at the finance committee level," said Councilman Brandon Stevens. "I don't want to be painted in the corner to have to do this."

"We are getting overrun, we can't even support tribal small businesses on this rez, it's a disgrace," said DelaRosa.

Councilwoman Melinda Danforth also asked for more details about the project.

"You can make arguments for the concept all you want, and I support it, I absolutely do, but when you talk about wanting someone to bring forth a business plan, an operational plan about the project that they're supporting and you bring me two memorandums that are five pages long that doesn't have a project plan … doesn't have a financial forecast for the entire project … there's no plan, where's the plan?" asked Danforth.

Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) Director Dale Wheelock stated that the manufactured homes might not win the bid process required by the US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

"This is HUD money, we're going to have to bid it out," said Wheelock. "This isn't going to happen overnight unless you put a lot of money up front."

"On the sole source issue, if this committee can't agree that we would sole source to a plant that we construct, then we've got a whole bunch of problems," retorted DelaRosa. "In terms of more housing, and where it's going to go and so forth, costs, that's part of your work product that we're waiting for, Dale … you're diverting your work to be up here to oppose this project."

DelaRosa said that the manufactured houses would not necessarily be paid for by federal housing grants but by Oneida funds. He stated a target of 40 houses a year over the next three years.

"We're going to have to in the first time in our history ante up," said DelaRosa.

OBC Secretary Patty Hoeft questioned the role of Oneida's government trying to be all things to all citizens.

"The individual has a responsibility to build their own place, or the individual entrepreneur to build that apartment building," said Hoeft. "The tribe needs to get out of the business of building, and owning and controlling everything. Our job is to develop the infrastructure, identify the places and the vision of those places of what we want it to look like and then recruit the Ed Delgado's and the Melinda Danforth's to come in and build your house there."

The OBC sent the concept to CFO's Barton's office for financial review to come back within 30 days. DelaRosa voted against the measure.

"We have people who need housing now," he said.

At the beginning of the OBC meeting, Hoeft gave oaths of office to Gary Jordan and Michael J. Skenandore for the Oneida Golf Enterprise Corporation, Richard Moss and Kevin Shilka for the Oneida Personnel Commission and to Jeff House, Butch Rentmeester and Jackie Zalim for the Oneida Engineering Science and Construction (ESC) corporate board of directors.

The committee approved the minutes from the March 14, 2012 OBC meeting.

Resolutions

The creation of the Oneida Tribal Health Board was deferred.

The OBC approved a resolution to continue Oneida Tribe Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) Program for 2012-2015.

Directors and Managers quarterly reports

Division of Land Management (DOLM) Director Fred Muscavitch reported his department would be celebrating its 35th anniversary this year with an open house in August.

One of the items Muscavitch highlighted was the change in the interest rate that Dream Homes can be financed at went from 5 to 6 percent to 3.5 to 4 percent, and that current Dream Home owners can refinance at the lower rate within 30 days.

He also called attention to a memo from the Department of the Interior that states houses on trust land could be considered personal property and could be taxable.

"It would be a disaster in Indian country," said Delgado.

The OBC accepted the DOLM report as well as a report from the Development Division.

Boards, Committees and Commissions

The OBC appointed Richard Baird, Judy Cornelius Hawk, Gerald Jordan and Tom Oudenhoven to the Environmental Resource Board. It also appointed Sylvia Cornelius and Nicolas Reynolds to the Oneida Arts Board.

The committee deferred a report from the Oneida Election Board and accepted reports from the Oneida Library Board and the Oneida Police Commission. Oneida Police Commissioner Sandra Reveles was asked by DelaRosa to prepare a statement for the Semi Annual General Tribal Council (GTC)

From 1A/Echo Hawk

Young University law professor for 14 years before leading the BIA.

After his appointment, Echo Hawk said in a speech in Salt Lake City in 2009 that he wrestled with the decision to accept a position that would make him a "face" for a federal government that has had a sordid history of mistreating Indians. He finally reconciled his hesitation by vowing to be an "agent for change" instead of a mere caretaker.

"How do you reverse 200 years of struggles?" he said then. "It's not going to be easy."

Bureau of Indian Affairs Director Michael S. Black announced that he has named Hankie Ortiz deputy bureau director of the BIA's Office of Indian Services at the bureau's headquarters in Washington, D.C. Ortiz is an enrolled member of the Kiowa Tribe of Oklahoma with Caddo and Comanche ancestry as well. She had been serving as director of the Office of Tribal Self-Governance at the Indian Health Service (IHS) since September 2007. Her appointment with the BIA became effective on March 26, 2012.

From 2A/March 28 OBC meeting

meeting addressing the non-binding referendum question "Should the Oneida Chief of Police be an Elected Position?"

Delgado also referred to a recent accident in the Three Sisters housing site where a young girl was struck by a vehicle and called for stricter enforcement of speeding laws within the reservation boundaries.

"I would like to see us come down hard on people who speed in the housing sites," said Delgado.

The OBC posted one position for the Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee. The OBC also approved three additional meetings for the Powwow Committee and extended Mike King's appointment until a new committee member is selected.

Standing Committees

The OBC approved the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC) minutes for meeting held February 13 and March 9. The committee also approved a May 1 public hearing date for Canons of Judicial Conduct.

The OBC approved emergency amendments to the Oneida Indian Preference Law in regards to Indian Preference in Contracting with projects involving Indian Housing Block Grant (IHBG) funds. It was found that giving preference to Oneida descendants was not in compliance with IHBG Indian preference requirements.

The OBC approved a resolution concerning the Division Directors and the Grievance Process.

March 23 meeting minutes for the Finance Committee were accepted by the OBC.

Unfinished business

A request to access the Tribe's vendor list for 2012 sponsorship opportunities was declined and forwarded to the Finance Committee to create a standard operating procedure (SOP) for such requests.

New business/requests

The OBC decided that Tsyʔ Niyukwalihótʌ translates to "Ways of the Oneida people from the Creation story to the present day," rather than a "standard of life for our community" in regards to the National Scorecard.

The OBC declared May 2012 as Older Americans Month. It deferred a memorandum of agreement (MOA) between the OBC and the Trust/Enrollment Committee.

Travel

Travel reports were accepted for the 2012 State of the State address and Minority Community Collaboration Meeting attended by DelaRosa and Delgado January 26.

Also accepted was a travel report for a meeting between Attorney Leonard Fineday and DelaRosa in Minneapolis January 12-13.

The committee approved travel for Danforth and her assistant Lisa Summers to attend the Native Nations Institute session in Tucson, AZ, May 1-2, 2012. The session concerns tribal constitutions.

The OBC approved blanket in state travel for the Oneida Tribal Judicial System for training.

The committee allowed the Comprehensive Health Division to convert one vacant physician position to two mid-level positions such as nurse practitioner and/or physician assistant. The change will allow for more patients to receive health care for around the same salary as hiring one doctor.

Notable People I Have Met

In my childhood or teenage days on the farm, I never thought I would ever meet any famous or notable persons. But some of the people I met and sometimes exchanged thoughts with were quite notable.

I spent three years in Germany as a dependent of the United States Air Force. Germany was still an occupied country after WWII. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, or NATO, troops were doing a lot of the occupying. I was the President of the NCO (Non Commissioned Officers) Wives Club and was invited to Berchtesgaden by Gen. Lauris Norstad, Commander in Chief of NATO. It was at one of Hitler's hangouts during the war. Even the sugar bowls and silverware had swastikas on them at this previous Nazi hotel. I drove our stick shift station wagon through the Alps to my destination.

When stationed back in the United States, near an Indian Reservation, I tried to communicate with the leadership. So, when in Great Falls, Montana, I wrote a letter to Walter Wetzel, Chairman of the Blackfeet Tribe. He didn't answer, but years later I served as Minneapolis Vice President of the National Congress of American Indians with Earl Old Person, longtime chairman of that tribe. We became good friends and the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council hosted an honoring event for him at the Riverside Ballroom in Green Bay. I also took my children to the Reservations. Later, I wrote to Chairman Raymond Nakai of the Navajos, when we were stationed in Tucson. He didn't answer, either. Then, in January of 1990, I represented the Oneida Tribe at the inauguration of Albert Hale, newly elected President of the Navajo Nation. I shared the podium with Ada Deer and Paul Harvey, among others and presented some beautiful corn husk dolls to Mr. Hale.

We settled back in Oneida after I had been away for sixteen years and I was soon elected to Secretary for the Oneida Tribe. Then I was employed as Assistant Director of GLITC, Inc. even though serving on the Oneida Business Committee. While Minneapolis Area V-P in 1969-70, I became acquainted with all the tribal leaders. One of my main tasks was to keep the lands of Bad River and Red Cliff Reservations out of the Apostle Islands National Lakeshore legislation, sponsored by Senator Gaylord Nelson. With the help of all the tribes from coast to coast, we were successful in eliminating 14,000 acres of Ojibway tribal lands from being incorporated into the National Park. I met and discussed this issue with many political leaders in Washington as well as those of the American Association of Indian Affairs in New York City. I walked the Halls of Congress, often in the evenings, putting my letters under their office doors. Today, that would not be permissible with the security measures that are in place.

January, 1973, was the first time I wrote to Bishop Aloysius J. Wycislo concerning the Seminary Buildings we now know as the Norbert Hill Center. From that day until the complex was acquired by the Oneida Nation in April, 1984, I had many cups of tea with him in the Bishop's home on Webster Avenue during those eleven years. A few years ago, I was doing some research in the Catholic Archives in the basement of that building when Bishop Wycislo appeared and we had a nice chat.

In 1995, I traveled with three other Native American women to Beijing, China. It was a NGO (Non Governmental Organization) conference for 35,000 women from all countries around the World. We were scheduled to make several presentations. We also took a walk on the Great Wall of China and flew over to Inner Mongolia. There we had a wonderful guide, a young man who took us out to the Steppes where Tribal people herded sheep. We rode on their little long-tailed ponies and visited the Buddhist temples and villages. I'm sorry that I cannot now remember his name, but I shall not forget him.

When working on New York Land Claims, I often got to talk to Senator Daniel Inouye and some of his staffers on the Indian Affairs Committee, especially Alan Parker, who is of Oneida lineage. Senator Inouye told me about his military experience. He was wounded in Italy during WWII. The quote I remember best is that he said his parents told him to "never dishonor your family". Senator Inouye is from Hawaii and of Japanese descent, so that it would be difficult for him to be in the United States military during WWII, when the U.S. was fighting Japan. I much admire him. We have a nineteen minute DVD of him expressing Tribal Sovereignty. He knows the history of Tribal Treaties.

In September, 1996, I went to South Africa to see if any Native American Tribe could partner with some of their businesses to build the millions of needed homes and infrastructure. I have five business plans that I brought back, but the Oneida Business Committee did not review them. Our party toured much of the country and met with the Premiers (Governors) of the Provinces. Toward the end of our journey, somewhere in Mpumalanga, President Nelson Mandela was dedicating a new health center and a school. We were invited to the event and invited to make a presentation to President Mandela. I gave him a Pendleton World Turtle quilt and explained the meaning to him as Dawn (Mitzy) Mineau and I placed it about his shoulders.

Of all the people I met, the two people who made the greatest impression on me and taught me about Indian Affairs is Wendell Chino, long time Mescalero Apache Chairman and Roger Jourdain, Red Lake Chippewa Chairman for over thirty years. Both of these leaders spoke their respective languages, knew Indian law, and could debate any lawyer and politician, were as tough as nails and never backed off any issue. They were my good friends and teachers. They are both gone, now as is Chairman Franklin Ducheneaux, Cheyenne River Sioux. He is gone, too. He was also my teacher and I miss them all.

Councilman

I would like to take this opportunity to update our community about the media attention on the Oneida Seven Generation Corporation Biomass Project. You may have seen the protesters on television opposing this project. What the media doesn't communicate is that this project has gone through extensive approvals by various state, federal and local government agencies. After nearly 2 years of study and permitting the project is near completion of every level of acceptance. The permits issued by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources include all applicable air and waste requirements. The US Dept. of Energy issued an impact statement that indicated no significant negative environmental impact would be caused. The BIA also conducted their own assessment to determine their approval. The Green Bay City Council approved this project based upon a recommendation by the Green Bay Planning Commission. Finally, and most importantly, our Oneida Business Committee and General Tribal Council have supported this venture.

Prior to my election to the Business Committee the past administration passed a resolution in 2010 to enthusiastically support OSGC in this venture. As an elected official, I stand behind that action and I have reviewed Resolution 12-8-10-B which identifies the many issues in reference to this project. Amongst the important issue of advanced technology and production of renewal energy is the creation of jobs. This project will create 45 new construction jobs and 30 full time jobs to run and maintain the facility once it becomes fully operable. Those who have done their homework will also find this IS NOT AN INCINERATOR! The vocal opposition continues to use the misguided terminology to lead people to believe this is an incinerator, when in fact it is not. This project will generate approximately 4 to 10 megawatts of electricity for 3000 to 5000 residential homes. I support these efforts to decrease our dependency on fossil fuels and utilize alternative energy sources.

Last week we were delivered a petition signed by several hundred people, however the signatures have not been verified by the enrollment office. At any rate, a petition with signatures that are a fraction of what our General Tribal Council consists of, carries little weight with me. As far as I am concerned, the Oneida people have spoken and I respect the voice of more than 2000 Oneida General Tribal Council members over a small group of anti-Indian protesters. In my heart I believe the foundation for this petition is not about the environment, but rather it is founded on racial undertones. If the activities of these folks were truly people protesting about the environment, they would bring forth scientific and certified proof, not run around and get signatures on a petition that doesn't have factual or trustworthy information on it. All we have to do is look at who is behind the petitions, and the anti-Indian movement they stand for to come to this conclusion.

I am a person of who cares deeply about the quality of our environment, and I would not support anything that I felt would harm the people. With the multitude of tests, studies, and processes of approval that have been done to date, there is no reason for me to stand down or even reconsider my support. However, I just want to bring your attention to more of the story, and hope you do your own research, if you are truly interested, and not rely on the unsavory antics and untrustworthy information being promoted through these petitions and actions of the opposition.

67th Anniversary of Iwo Jima

By John A Scocos

Secretary, Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs

The month-long battle of Iwo Jima took place sixty-seven years ago. The bloody battle for an eight square mile volcanic island involved 80,000 Americans and consumed the lives of 6,821 Marines. More than 20,000 others were wounded. Nearly the entire Japanese garrison of 22,000 died. The titanic struggle for Iwo Jima became emblazoned on the memory of Americans when a photographer captured the image of six Marines raising the U.S. flag on Mount Suribachi (the highest point on the island), while the battle raged. Three were killed shortly thereafter.

The unforgettable image remains an icon forever associated with American valor and it became the basis for the Marine Corps Memorial in Washington DC. John Bradley of Antigo, Wisconsin helped raise the flag on Iwo Jima. John Bradley never spoke to his family of the photograph or the Navy Cross he had been awarded during the war. An unassuming hard working small town Wisconsinite, Bradley lived a simple life— he married his third grade sweetheart; opened a funeral home; helped raise eight children; joined the PTA, the Lions, and the Elks. But Bradley's quiet ways, like those of so many of his comrades in the Greatest Generation, masked the reserves of strength and resolve that America's enemies never counted on.

Marine veterans received slightly more than one third of the total Medals of Honor awarded to the Marine Corps in the entire Second World War during the thirty-six day Iwo Jima campaign. More medals for heroism in combat were awarded at Iwo Jima than at any other battle in U. S. history. Two out of every three Americans who fought on Iwo Jima were killed or wounded. "The heroes of Iwo Jima," John Bradley told his son, "are the guys who didn't come back."

From the vantage point of more than sixty years later, we can take pride in the accomplishments of the Greatest Generation's veterans. They showed us the way. It is up to our generation to live up to the example of service and sacrifice they set. We owe the veterans of that time, and since, a debt of gratitude.

NOTE: "Operation Greatest Generation" is an event that will take place on May 4, 2012 at the National Railroad Museum in Green Bay, for a day to recognize the Wisconsin men and women who shaped the course of history during World War II.

Letters & Opinions...

Concerned for the Future

Shekoli,

In the March 15 Kalihwisaks, my eye caught the Treasurer's report by Mrs. Christina Danforth. Wow, the $18 million deficit the tribe is facing in 2013 was very disturbing because it affects me directly being here (prison). I depend on my mother and other family members for financial support. But what got me through my isolated time here is the fact that they are safe and healthy in the free world. Anyway, Mrs. Danforth's commitment to our nation's prosperity and its continued economic growth is very assuring in these years of uncertainty. She along with other tribal leaders have the toughest gig of all directly in the front line of the struggle. Mr. Vince DelaRosa's and his dedicated assistant Mrs. Cathy Bachhuber's dealings with pressing issues (see OBC Forum March 15) gives me hope.

Even though I'm a convicted felon, I am still a thinking and ever struggling father of four beautiful children. I have dreams, ambitions and rolls I have to play. As I rot away in this correctional facility, ideas for change and plans of redemption come to my mind. Aside from atoning my violent transgressions on a family of native people, I make plans to make my little piece of the world a better place to live and thrive in.

I was once a young thug on a destructive mission to conquer and corrupt every thing and person I could, this being the end result to my thuggish malicious ways. I could have met my Creator, but was given a chance to learn a few life lessons and turn my young life around with the possibility of me being given a second chance by my Creator, and hopefully my people. I am able to brainstorm and create tons of ideas on tribal improvements and upgrades:

Look into creating living environments for our single native men who are impoverished and on the verge of homelessness

Create programs for convicted felons to actually reunite with community members, build their trust up to a respectful, honorable individual status. Make a hands on program with consequences like license suspension, and rewards like dinner and a show, community congratulatory benefit luncheon/dinner, acknowledgement in the Kalihwisaks

Offer tourist packages year round. Snowmobiling and cycling, sightseeing, golfing, casino and educational, heritage and history, fishing, trial walking

At-risk youth and real life reformed convicted knuckleheads like me, cleaning and fixing up tribe for community service, court fees, tribal fees and truancy.

Create bus plan for tribal travel services

Use Norbert Hill powwow grounds for GTC meetings and vote by text messages

Use computers to broadcast GTC meetings to tribal members physically unable to attend. Use Skype for membership participation.

Create a tribal jail to house offenders who commit crimes in our boundaries

Department by department evaluation of employee needs vs. wants

Make accountability for one's conduct on the job more direct

May per capita payments via debit cards or direct deposit

Create a temporary living place on the reservation

Family first,
Willie Adams

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Opposed: Vince DelaRosa
For record: Vince DelaRosa stated I oppose the motion on this matter to defer this issue to other areas. This is a needless delay causing further harm to all those Oneida families and people who need their elected officials to deliver on housing matters.
As you may be aware, we are in a crisis on housing, it is an emergency. Over the last few weeks my office has heard for many tribal members asking what we are doing about housing. We know there are hundreds of people who need housing right now!
I would just add the idea of saving cost and offering over 30 new Oneida jobs could not come at a better time. Not to mention the overall quality of the homes that Oneida tribal members would be building in this new facility, this is unquestionably needed now.
Here is my final thought as you may be aware, in terms of the emergency, here is a quick thought:
The US Census Bureau reported in 2008 that Native Americans are almost twice as likely to live in poverty as the rest of the population. For the same year, the GAO reported that nearly 46 percent of Native households were overcrowded, a rate that was almost three times as high as the rest of the country. According to the 2009 Annual Homeless Assessment Report, American Indians make up less than one percent of the general population, but eight percent of the country's homeless population. Together, we must work to reverse this trend.
The time to move is now!
Motion by Tina Danforth that councilman DelaRosa receive cooperation from any relative entities within the Tribe, to help him put together a business plan to pursue the Homeway Homes Manufacturing Plant, which would include housing, land management, law office, TDHE or any other relevant entities within the Tribe, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one opposition:
Ayes: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Melinda J. Danforth
For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated, as stated in the meeting already I support the concept that's being presented verbally by the Councilman, but cannot support the expenditure of $40,000 until a written plan of action is presented to the committee, as well as the finance committee. At this point there is no project or proposal that's in writing that I've been requesting, but like I said I support the verbal concept of it but I'd like to just see something in writing prior to me giving it my stamp of approval.

Motion by Vince DelaRosa to approve the resolution along with the agreement, seconded by Melinda J. Danforth. Motion carried unanimously.
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Excused: Tina Danforth

For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated that I support this initiative moving forward. I think it's a great example of the growth that we've expected OTIE to have over the years. We've had some challenges that OTIE's been able to overcome without actually coming back to the Tribe for some cash outlay and this is another example of our corporations thinking outside the box, trying to retain their earning within their corporation and not really trying to rely on the Tribe to inject funding into the corporation. So I appreciate this effort. I think that this is a good example of the growth of OTIE and I'm excited about it. Thank you for the effort and thanks for the committee, for the great debate-spirited debate, on Monday because this is exactly the type of debate and information that we need to have in order to move us forward and so that our board understands what the expectations of this committee is going to be when it comes to OTIE.

For the record: Tina Danforth I oppose the creation of a new corporation, based on the resolution which I believe has issues about conflicts of interests with the appointment of certain board members and I also believe the second resolve of this resolution creates a perceived 8A violation, based on money being utilized from one 8A to fund another 8A. To me that is not an appropriate course of action for this committee to be endorsing and I have other due diligence items that I had reviewed and discovered through my research, that I am not able to support this resolution at this time.

3. Gaming General Manager contract recommendation

Excerpt from Feb. 22, 2012: Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the report from the Chairman, with recommendations due back in two weeks, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously.

Federal tax credits ease reservation housing crunch

WHITE EARTH, Minn. (AP) ~ A federal program that provides tax credits for investors who build homes on the White Earth Indian Reservation is easing a chronic housing shortage for tribal members.

Thirty families are living in new homes this spring because of the program. The tribe hires contractors to build two- and three-bedroom homes with money from private investors who receive a 10-year tax break. After 15 years, the tribe will own the homes. It will then decide whether to transfer ownership to individuals or continue to rent them.

Minnesota Public Radio News says about 9,200 of White Earth's 20,000 members live on the northern Minnesota reservation where housing is a mix of single-family homes and apartment buildings. The tribal housing authority manages about 310 units and has a waiting list of about 200 families.

FSA loan process easier

Appleton, WI - USDA Wisconsin Farm Service Agency (FSA) reminds Wisconsin producers and landowners that they now have a more efficient, timely option for receiving important FSA program eligibility requirements, deadlines and related information.

Participants will now have the option to receive FSA news via e-mail right to their home or farm office– allowing individuals to receive immediate notification of pertinent FSA program news.

To begin receiving e-mails from the county FSA office, producers need to contact their local office to sign-up.

If, after using the electronic system, producers no longer wish to receive hardcopy newsletters or other information from their local county office, they should contact the office to make their preferences known. Electronic mail will enable FSA to keep producers better informed and allow us to conserve resources and reduce taxpayer expenses associated with the preparation, printing and distribution of hardcopy newsletters.

Please contact your local FSA office if you have questions regarding Wisconsin FSA's electronic news service.

Public Hearing Notice

11:30 a.m. • Norbert Hill Center, 2nd Floor - (BCCR)

April 17, 2012

Purpose:

Legislative Procedures Act

The intent of the Legislative Procedures Act (the Law) is to provide an improved lawmaking process to replace the lawmaking provisions currently found in the Administrative Procedures Act (APA). The Law also re-charters the Legislative Operating Committee's (LOC) role in the lawmaking process. The Law provides a streamlined lawmaking process, which includes:

- Fiscal Estimates. A fiscal estimate would be required for each legislative proposal, which would estimate the total fiscal year costs associated with the legislation. This would include items such as: startup costs, personnel, office, documentation costs, legislative mandates, as well as an estimate of the amount of time necessary for an individual or agency to comply with the law after implementation.
- Legislative Analysis. An analysis describing the important features of the legislation, impact to the Tribal operations, as well as the general public would also be required for each legislative proposal.
- Holding a public comment period and requiring an actual public meeting only be held when determined necessary by the LOC or OBC. Currently, public hearings are required to be held before any legislation is adopted on a permanent basis. Public meetings would now only be required to held if the LOC or OBC determines a public meeting is in the best interests of the Tribal membership. A public comment period will be noticed before any legislation is considered for adoption on a permanent basis and written comments received during this time will be considered before moving forward with the legislation.
- Creation of an Oneida Register. The LOC would be required to post agency regulations, proposed legislation and notices, and the Oneida Code of Laws in the Oneida Register.
- Notice requirements would be the responsibility of the LOC (and no longer the Tribal Secretary). TheLOCwould be required to give specific notice of all public hearings to the Tribe's managers and directors, who would be responsible for informing Tribal employees of the public hearings. The managers and directors would direct that written or oral testimony be provided by Tribal employees who have special knowledge or expertise on the subject of the public hearing. Under the current APA, notice of public hearings is the responsibility of the Tribal Secretary.
- Adoption of emergency legislation. Emergency legislation would still be able to be adopted for six months, with the option of renewing the adoption for an additional six months. A legislative analysis of the emergency legislation would now be required before it is adopted.
- Repeal of the Format for Laws. The Format for Laws would be repealed and the relevant portions of that law would be incorporated into the Legislative Procedures Act.

Public Hearing Process

I. Testimony:

A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Tribe encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of ten (10) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft) or to the Legislative Reference Office Paralegal, Tonya Boucher, at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor or mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155.

These Canons are intended to govern the conduct of Judges and Judicial Candidates under the Judiciary Act. ## From 1A/Teacher of the year

National-Louis University in 2007.

Bonin is quick to credit the Oneida Higher Education Department and Oneida Tribe for his success.

"I wouldn't have gone to college if it wasn't for the Oneida Higher Education Office. I would have stayed in Manitowoc, worked in a factory. Because they paid for me to go to school I got to play college baseball and do all these things I never thought I would be able to do. I obviously have Oneida to thank for that, it's a gift," he said.

Bonin chose Milwaukee with the intention of using that gift.

"When I came to Milwaukee I noticed that kids in Milwaukee are getting shortchanged. I wanted to use (my education to help) with people who maybe don't have those advantages," said Bonin. "As stressful as it can be, it does have it rewards like seeing them excel when they have challenges; school and socially."

for the Court's decision.

Director Danforth explained that the OCHC sees all enrolled Native Americans in the area.

"We have people that travel from Door County, we have people that travel even from Milwaukee," she explained. "We're one of the few remaining that have an open door policy."

Vice Chairman Matson highlighted the veterans' services that Oneida offers.

"We've always tried to maintain that philosophy of offering everybody the open arms, the open door policy on any service that we can provide," he said.

"We ought to do everything we can that these things that are hurdles ought not be hurdles," said Rep. Price.

Director Danforth also asked for support for the Special Diabetes Program.

"That in of itself has had the biggest impact in terms of our ability to improve services specific to diabetes, because the impact that it's had on our population," she said. Director Danforth stated that the number of amputations caused by diabetes has gone to nearly zero in recent years. She shared a story of a meeting with an area surgeon.

"His comment at that meeting was 'you know, you guys have always sent me all your referrals, you've always sent me all your amputations, and I want to know where you're sending them, because I'm not getting any," she said. "After 25 years of working here, we're finally seeing the impact of the education work that we've been doing in our community."

Tribal Environmental Response Law

The intent of the Tribal Environmental

Response Law is to direct the Environmental Health and Safety Division (Division) to create a Tribal Environmental Response Program (TERP) which will address situations where the discharge or potential discharge of a hazardous substance has occurred and may have contaminated the environment. In order to regulate the identification, investigation and remediation of discharges of hazardous substances, this law:

- Requires individuals who are responsible for or aware of a discharge of a hazardous substance to notify the Division and, in most cases, to be responsible for the remedial action necessary to restore the environment to the condition it was in before the discharge occurred.
- Makes the Division responsible to:

o Adopt standards for environmental quality that are protective of public health and the environment. Business Committee approval of these standards is required, except when the standards are consistent with federal standards.

o Conduct investigations of sites and facilities that are, or are suspected of being, contaminated from the discharge of a hazardous substance.

o Identify parties that are responsible for the clean-up of contaminated sites and facilities.

Small explosive damages WI Planned Parenthood

GRAND CHUTE, Wis. (AP) _ A Wisconsin police chief says no threats had been received by a Planned Parenthood clinic in eastern Wisconsin where a small homemade explosive caused minimal damage over the weekend.

Grand Chute Police Chief Greg Peterson says a bottle containing a chemical was placed on the clinic's outside window sill about 7:40 p.m. Sunday. A small fire broke out when the bottle exploded, but quickly burned itself out.

Planned Parenthood of Wisconsin CEO Teri Huyck (HEYEK) says there was minimal damage to an exam room and that the clinic will reopen Tuesday. No one was in the building at the time.

The Grand Chute Fire Department responded to the clinic's fire alarm and alerted police after finding the bottle.

Peterson says the FBI is helping investigate. No suspects are in custody.

Wis. utility seeks 9.2 percent electric rate hike

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) _ A Green Bay utility wants to increase electric rates 9.2 percent for its customers in northeastern and north-central Wisconsin.

Wisconsin Public Service Corp. filed its rate plan with the state Public Service Commission.

Under the new rates, a typical electric customer would pay $7 more a month.

The company says the proposed increase follows four years of rate stability. Rates were unchanged for two consecutive years and then went up less than 1 percent the past two years.

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel (http://bit.ly/HgjNy7) reports a WPS official says the company is forecasting a decline in electricity sales in 2013 compared with its sales in 2011. That's one of the biggest factors driving the rate request.

A final decision on the rate case probably won't be reached until November or December.

WI gov signs text solicitation ban

MADISON, Wis. (AP) _ Gov. Scott Walker has signed a bill that extends no-call prohibitions to text messages.

Currently, telephone solicitors can't call numbers people place on Wisconsin's no-call list. The ban doesn't include nonprofit organizations, calls made in response to a request for solicitation or to a solicitor's current customers.

The bipartisan bill bars solicitors from sending texts to numbers on the no-call list.

The Senate passed the measure in October on a voice vote. The Assembly passed the measure 94-0 in February. Walker signed it Monday afternoon.

The bill's author, Sen. Van Wanggaard, a Racine Republican, says the extension will save people money on their cell phone bills.

She had been serving as director of the Office of Tribal Self-Governance at the Indian Health Service (IHS) since September 2007. Her appointment with the BIA became effective on March 26, 2012.

"I am pleased that Hankie has accepted this challenging opportunity to lead the BIA's Office of Indian Services," Black said. "Her background as an experienced senior executive is proven and extensive. Her knowledge and experience in management from her previous work with tribes at the Indian Health Service makes Hankie a strong addition to my team."

"I am happy to have the opportunity to become a member of a progressive and vital agency like BIA," Ortiz said. "I am looking forward to working with Director Black and Assistant Secretary Echo Hawk in carrying out the BIA's trust responsibilities and services to the tribes."

Ortiz began her federal career the IHS's Office of the General Counsel (OGC) in Rockville, Md., in 1997 where she analyzed legal issues and applied legal principles to advise the IHS director and other headquarters staff. In June 2000, she became the Assistant Regional Attorney in the OGC. In that capacity, she provided legal advice to the IHS as the lead attorney for the agency's Phoenix Area and the California Area on legal issues related to health care in the broadest sense and represented IHS headquarters and areas in litigation.

In July 2006, she took on dual duties as the director of the Division of Regulatory Affairs (DRA) and acting deputy director of the Office of Management Services (OMS). Her positions later switched she became the acting director of DRA and the OMS deputy director. Both positions involved significant duties ranging from serving as the liaison with the OGC on such matters as litigation, regulations, and related policy issues to overseeing day-to-day operations relative to the administrative, personnel, and fiscal functions of OMS, including monitoring OMS budget expenditures, personnel levels and contractor costs, and workflow between nine OMS divisions and staffs.

Ortiz became director of the IHS Office of Tribal Self-Governance in September 2007. Her primary responsibility was for the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA) as it pertained to the IHS Tribal Self-Governance program. She served as the principle advisor to the IHS director on tribal self-governance issues and as an effective proponent for tribal governments within the agency on the development and implementation of federal self-governance policy in accordance with IHS priorities.

Prior to starting her federal career, Ortiz served as a research attorney with the Native American Rights Fund (NARF) from January 1997 to July 1997, and as a research attorney for Charles B. Morris & Associates from April 1996 to September 1996. In addition to these positions, she was also a law clerk and research attorney for F. Browning Pipestem & Associates from October 1995 to April 1996.

Ortiz holds a Bachelor's degree in Psychology from the University of Oklahoma in Norman (1991), and a Juris Doctor degree from the University of Montana School of Law in Missoula (1995).

The deputy bureau director of Indian services reports to the director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and is responsible for all headquarters activities associated with support for tribal people and tribal governments by promoting safe and quality living environments, strong communities, self sufficient and individual rights, while enhancing protection of the lives, prosperity and well being of American Indians and Alaska Natives.

FTC targets alleged payday scam, race car driver

By Jennifer C. Kerr
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) ~ A payday lending operation that offers quick cash over the Internet to desperate people, and the race-car driver allegedly running it, are under federal scrutiny after more than 7,000 complaints to authorities.

The Federal Trade Commission filed a complaint Monday in U.S. district court in Nevada against driver Scott Tucker, his brother and several Internet-based lending companies, including AMG Services, Inc.

Tucker has raced in the American Le Mans Series. The FTC charges that he and others controlled lending companies that piled on undisclosed and inflated fees - in some cases more than triple the amount borrowed - and then collected on the loans illegally by threatening borrowers with arrests and lawsuits.

In one example, a consumer was told that a $500 loan would cost him $650 to repay. Instead, the FTC says, the defendants attempted to charge him $1,925 to pay off the loan. The agency says he was threatened with arrest if he didn't pay that amount.

Payday loans are typically small, short-term loans with extremely high interest rates that are effectively advances on a borrower's next paycheck.

According to the FTC, the payday lending operation involving Tucker has claimed in state legal proceedings that it is affiliated with Native American tribes and therefore immune from legal action. Tribal affiliation does not exempt Tucker and others from complying with federal law, the commission says.

Over the last five years, more than 7,500 complaints about the operation have been filed with law enforcement authorities.

Tucker and his brother, Blaine, are accused of transferring more than $40 million collected from payday loans to consumers to another company, Level 5 Motorsports, which is controlled by Scott Tucker. The FTC says the money was transferred as "sponsorship" fees for Tucker's racing career.

Tucker did not immediately respond to a request for comment to his office email.

McLester Davis named Outstanding Teen

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Lauren McLester Davis added another tiara to her collection winning the 2012 Miss Green Bay Area's Outstanding Teen crown on February 26.

"The pageant was really fun because I got to meet a lot of girls that were participating for the teen pageant, but also for the Miss pageant," said McLester Davis, referring to the other participants as pageant sisters.

The pageant was open to young ladies ages 13-17 living in the Green Bay area and organized by Miss America Organization. Pageant winners receive college scholarships.

"That's really important to me because I know I'm going to have a lot of schooling because I want to become a doctor someday," she said. "I want to help in the burn units of metropolitan hospitals."

McLester Davis got to meet the current Miss America Laura Kaeppeler at a homecoming event.

"She's just a really amazing and down to earth person, and I think it really inspires a lot of girls here in the state that ... people from anywhere can do anything," she said.

McLester Davis is a fan of Kaeppler's singing, and enjoys adding her own voice to the Oneida Hymn Singers on Sundays. She participates with her grandparents Thelma and Wendell McLester. McLester Davis' mother Joan McLester says the grandparents are a moral compass for her daughter who's Oneida name Yo we lúh was handed down to her by Wendell.

"Her grandparents are directly in her life everyday," said McLester.

McLester Davis skipped a year in school and is a freshman at Notre Dame Academy where she takes honors level classes.

"She's continuing getting highest honors which we're thrilled with," said McLester.

McLester Davis enjoys sharing her love of reading through First Book of Greater Green Bay which helps buy books for economically disadvantaged children. She first became interested in the issue when she was a volunteer reading buddy.

"I asked my child that I was tutoring what books do you read at home for fun, and he said 'I don't have any book to read at my house,'" she said.

Walker signing wolf hunt, youth concussion bills

By Scott Bauer and Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) _ Wolves could be hunted in Wisconsin for the first time and schools would have to do more to prevent youth concussions under a pair of bills Gov. Scott Walker signed into law Monday.

Walker held three public bill signings across the state, the first at an elementary school in Wausau and the last at Lambeau Field in Green Bay. He signed the wolf hunt bill at a dock maker in Woodruff.

The new wolf hunting and trapping season will run from mid-October through the end of February. If applications exceed the number of licenses, the Department of Natural Resources would issue half of the licenses at random and the other half through a preference point system.

Wisconsin wolves came off the federal endangered species list last year, freeing state officials to manage them as they see fit. Walker said in a statement the state's wolf population has grown to more than 800 animals and a hunt will help farmers protect their livestock.

``The DNR is ready to put the rules in place that will allow them to reduce the herd to a healthy, sustainable level,'' the governor said.

Walker signed the youth concussion bill, which has the support of the National Football League, at Lambeau. The measure, which passed the Legislature with bipartisan support, requires that athletes who suffer apparent head injuries during games or practices be immediately removed and not allowed to resume playing without the written clearance of a health care provider who has examined them.

It also requires the state Department of Public Instruction, in conjunction with the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association, to develop guidelines and other information to educate coaches, athletes and parents about the risks of concussions and other head injuries.

The NFL has been lobbying states to pass similar laws even as it is being sued by former players and others blaming the league for concussion-related dementia and brain disease.

Earlier this year, when the bill was stalled in the Senate, longtime Green Bay Packer offensive lineman Mark Tauscher came to the Capitol where he joined high school athletes, doctors and others to push for passage.

The Wisconsin bill was modeled after Washington state's 2009 ``Zackery Lystedt Law,'' which was named for a middle school football player who sustained brain damage after he suffered a concussion and returned to play.

Other bills Walker signed included:

_ EDUCATION REFORM: Walker signed a measure that requires all new kindergartners starting next fall to be tested on how well they can read. It also requires prospective elementary and special-education teachers starting in 2014 to take a new reading instruction test before they can obtain their teaching licenses. The new law also requires students performance measures to account for half of a teacher or principal's evaluation.

State Superintendent Tony Evers joined Walker for the bill signing. He said the new law will help the state better identify incoming kindergartners struggling with reading and improve reading achievement for all students.

The law was developed following recommendations of two different bipartisan task forces that included teachers, administrators, Evers, the governor's office and others.

_ PIERS AND DOCKS: Walker signed a bill that would ease restrictions on pier and dock construction. Currently, the DNR issues general or individualized permits for such construction. General permits are broad, one-size-fits-all authorizations. Individual permits convey customized permission for specific projects.

The new law grants the DNR the authority to issue general permits for any activity that requires an individual permit, easing the regulatory path for shoreline property owners and developers.

Many Stops Along the Way For CMN Student of the Year

Therese Coon

Area resident Therese M. Coon was honored at the American Indian Higher Education Consortium (AIHEC) student conference held in late March in Rapid City, SD. The national event is held annually for tribal college students from across the U.S. During the program, Coon received Student of the Year honors for her accomplishments at the College of Menominee Nation.

Coon, a sophomore at CMN's Green Bay campus, is a Green Bay resident and a member of the Oneida Tribe. Along with recognition as an American Indian College Fund Student of the Year, she received a $1,000 Adolph Coors Foundation scholarship.

Nomination material for Coon identified her as an adult learner who brings "a wealth of maturity, experience and knowledge to her studies" and is highly regarded by the College's faculty, staff and students. She was cited as one who "excels in challenging courses and adds a great deal of insight and depth to any classroom discussion."

A former journeyman metal fabricator and law enforcement officer, Coon is currently completing studies for Associate Degrees in Public Administration and in Biological and Physical Science. Following graduation from CMN in June, she plans to continue work toward a bachelor's degree in Public Administration. Her long-term goals include a master's degree and "employment that would allow me to promote environmental protection through research and using the core principles of sustainability."

Coon, who grew up in the Manitowoc area, came to higher education after a varied career in several fields. She has worked as an Upward Bound tutor, dispatcher for the Manitowoc County Sheriff''s Department, patrol officer for the Menominee Tribal Police Department, journeyman metal fabricator, master welder, and child support specialist and caseworker.

"My educational journey began," Cook says, "when I became physically unable to do the required work as a journeyman metal fabricator or return to my past career in law enforcement. Needless to say, I was devastated because I enjoyed the physical and intellectual demands of these past careers, as well as the quality of life that it provided for my family. With the support of my husband and family, I decided to seek a college degree knowing that it would be another life-changing event."

Married, the mother of four adult children and grandmother to one, she has maintained a high grade point average throughout her College years and is no stranger to the academic Honors Roll. Along with classroom achievements, Coon has been fully involved in campus life at CMN's Green Bay campus on South Ridge Road. She has worked as a student tutor in math, biology and business; served as a volunteer in the VITA tax assistance program; held the lead role in a College's theater arts production, and participated with the campus chapter of the American Indian Business Leaders (AIBL) student organization.

Coon says that her experience at CMN has given her "the tools and aspirations to reach beyond the norm" and the nomination for the Student of the Year award "came as a surprise" that left her "honored and humbled" and feeling "very fortunate to be able to attend the College of Menominee Nation."

CMN President Receives Tribal College President Award

Dr. Verna Fowler, founding president of the College of Menominee Nation, Keshena, has been chosen for the Tribal College President Award in recognition of her contributions to American Indian education during her career.

The President Award was announced at the American Indian Higher Education Consortium's student conference held in March in Rapid City, SD, and presented by American Indian College Fund President and CEO Richard B. Williams.

Dr. Fowler said, "I am extremely grateful to the American Indian College Fund and the American Indian Higher Education Consortium. If it were not for those two organizations that were the pioneers, that had the initiative and the drive, and the determination… none of us would be here today. I also owe a lot to the tribal college presidents, both the current and the past, who set a path and called us all to a higher excellence in education.

Dr. Verna Fowler

"Way back in 1912 the Menominee sent a letter to the Bureau of Indian Affairs asking for a tribal college. It was finally these two organizations that came along and brought it to fruition."

Dr. Fowler established the College of Menominee Nation in 1993. CMN's flagship campus in Keshena and an urban campus in Green Bay, currently serve more than 700 students in Bachelor's and Associate degree academic programs, and in technical and trades diploma program. The College, which is open to all, is chartered by the Menominee people and accredited by the Higher Learning Commission, North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

An enrolled member of the Menominee Tribe, Dr. Fowler earned a master's degree in 1986 and a doctorate in 1992, both in education administration from the University of North Dakota. In 1999, she was appointed by President Bill Clinton to the White House Initiative on Tribal Colleges and Universities and was reappointed by President George W. Bush in 2006. In 2010, she was chosen for the George Washington Carver Agricultural Excellence Award by the U.S. Agency for International Development for work connecting indigenous peoples in the USA to peer groups in Latin American through sustainable forestry and agriculture based on indigenous perspectives.

Area Collegians Take Part In National 'Bowl' Competition

Test scores improve for Milwaukee voucher schools

By Carrie Antlfinger
Associated Press

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Students who received vouchers to attend private or religious schools in Milwaukee improved their performance in mathematics and reading last year but still lagged behind public school students, according to a report released Tuesday.

The Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction found that in the second year of testing last fall, about 40 percent of Milwaukee voucher students showed they were proficient or advanced in math, up nearly 6 percent from last year. Nearly 49 percent of local public school students and 78 percent of public school students statewide reached that mark.

On reading scores, about 56 percent of voucher students were advanced or proficient - an increase of about 1 percent from last year - compared with about 58 percent of Milwaukee public school students and nearly 82 percent of public school students in Wisconsin.

State Superintendent Tony Evers said math and reading achievement need to improve for all students. He pointed to Wisconsin's application for a waiver from No Child Left Behind, hoping to join other states that have already been granted breathing room from the landmark educational requirements.

"In our request for waivers from No Child Left Behind's broken system for evaluating schools, we advocate for accountability for results for all publicly funded schools," he said.

The Milwaukee choice schools tested more than 11,400 students. This year, the state also tested 60 students from the Racine voucher program. About 51 percent of those students were proficient or advanced in math, compared to about 62 percent in Racine public schools. Overall, student achievement in mathematics increased and achievement gaps between some races narrowed this school year compared to six years ago - despite the increasing number of children in poverty.
